Nationals Win Final Game, Capturing Series from Boston Red Sox

Boston Helpless Before Hughes

"Long Tom" Twirls One of the Best Games of His Career, and Is Given Stonewall Support—Milan Gets Homer.

By WILLIAM PULT.

For the first time in years the Nationals captured a home series against the Boston Red Sox when Long Tom Hughes held them in the concluding collision yesterday 2 to 1.

Only a fair sprinkling of rare-throated fans turned out to see the bench from Fenway Park this Brewell time here this season, but those who parted with the money were glad they attended the fracas. It was worth the price.

Long Tom, the commonplace timer of late, on previous occasions, been able to fool lucky our aspiring athletes. In fact, he was inclined to make himself [illegible] with the White and Red of Boston, but he had to take his medicine cheerfully, for his pitchers use [illegible] in the fifth, sixth, and seventh rounds, and only pushed three runs across the plate. Little Clyde Milan [illegible] home run of the season, and scored over the right [illegible]

[illegible] Hughes was in [illegible] Wanderer [illegible] the mound behind him [illegible] Hughes [illegible] the velvet in the early [illegible] After [illegible] Hughes [illegible] and Boston was lucky [illegible] a shut-out.

Hooper [illegible] Street [illegible] Williams [illegible] Street [illegible] Milan did [illegible] Hughes [illegible] Pape's [illegible]

In the [illegible] Milan [illegible] Gardner [illegible] up a [illegible] but [illegible] Hughes [illegible] bounced [illegible] off Germain [illegible] Schaefer [illegible] before the [illegible] ball. On Lewis [illegible] Morgan to Street. Gardner reached third and scored on Engle's [illegible] single to left. Hooper batting for Carlstrom drew a base on balls, but Nunamaker who was sent in to bat for Williams stole the base for leading Hooper to second. McBride to Elberfeld.

The Red Sox left for Boston on the midnight train last night. Today is an open date for the Nationals, and the boys welcome the chief people.

FRAGMENTS OF THE FRAY AS SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

Well, we made it two out of three at that from the Red Sox.

No game to-day; the boys will have a rest.

The St. Louis Browns come here Friday for three games. We should clean up on that series.

Tom Hughes pitched good ball, holding the Red Sox safe when a hit meant a run. They should have been shut out.

Had Long held Gardner's fly in the ninth the game would have been a shut-out for Long Tom.

Clyde Engle got his weekly hit in the ninth, and that single scored the lone Red Sox tally.

Hobe Ferris only got one hit yesterday, but that was very seasonable.

Capt. McBride put up a good game in the field. His stop and throw of Williams drive in the seventh is one a catcher.

The Speaker kicked himself off the coaching lines in the last inning. Umpire Perrine called him and then had him cool night.

Larry Pape did not pitch such bad ball, but his errors helped the Nationals a little in the first round.

Carlstrom continued to play short for the Red Sox, and he looked there at least them on his previous performance. The youngster handled everything that came his way in good style, and Morgan caused him of a fall in the seventh session.

Tom Hughes fanned nine Red Sox from the ranks of pitchers and beaten. That is going some for the veteran.

And speaking of Milan, Milan didn't shoot the pill over the right field fence a little [illegible] home runs made on a bench after the fact. The ball called on a line drive [illegible]

The Red Sox would have had several runs if they had run the bases any way near the prescribed form.

The Speaker had a busy day in center field. This had five putouts and an assist to his credit for the afternoon's work.

Young Jennings looked out in practice and looked mighty good. He is as fast as Cunning, and place the box will be [illegible] to the only thing he needs to make him a first-class third sacker.

Jack Lelivelt was again among the missing.

Let it be mentioned that Clyde Milan is some first sacker. In practice he hammered every delivery that came his way.

Hooper met the second ball pitched for a double for Milan drove him out at the plate when he tried to score on Yerkes' single.

Elberfeld engineered Speaker's fine drive in the first inning and enabled Yerkes at second. The ball was traveling a mile a minute.

Tom Hughes sacrificed the second strike out on Engle in the second.

Gardner tried to come home when Lewis stole second, but McBride was on the job and threw him out at the plate.

Germain was in full dress, including a new gray jersey.

With two on the sacks in the fourth and one out, Hughes fanned Duffy Lewis, and Morgan threw Engle out at first.

We had a lot of fun in the fifth. Three Red Sox on the sacks and only one out. But true pearing and some clockwork put the Beaneaters out of that session at last.

Speaker went from first to third in the sixth inning on Gardner's infield out. Gaddy was on the job at third and caught the throw, McBride being in the diamond.

Long slammed out his first extra base hit since joining the Nationals in the sixth, when he doubled to right.

Capt. McBride made a great stop and throw of Williams' grounder in the seventh. Mac threw the ball while on a dead run. It was some stop.

Speaker is always on the job. In the seventh, Williams threw to second to catch McBride, and the ball went through Gardner. Speaker was on the job and held Mac on second.

Tom Hughes pitched a little ball in the eighth. Pape, Hooper, Yerkes fanning in quick order.

All the other teams are in-and-outers, not to be depended upon. The Athletics are the only team that can win games with boxmen out of form, showing the team's all-around strength."

ERRORS LOSE FOR REDS.

Pirates Take Last Game of Season with Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Sept. 13.—Errors and bases on balls accounted for nearly all the runs made by both sides in the last game of the season between the Reds and the Pirates, which was won by Pittsburg, 5 to 4. Boyd worked five innings for the Reds and was effective, but very wild. Compton was much steadier, and Humphries, who pitched the last two innings, lost the game by his wildness, followed by an error by Grant in the eighth inning. Score:

FORD IS DEFEATED BY WORK OF PLANK

Athletics Down the Highlanders by 2 to 0.

New York, Sept. 13.—With the aid of Eddie Plank, the Athletics gave the Yanks their third successive drubbing today by 2 to 0. Plank allowed only four scattered hits. Ford did well in the early innings, but the Mackmen got after him later. A wild throw to Knight let Lord score in the first. McInnis brought in the next run on a single and good work on the bases. McAleer to Get But Half Interest

Will Succeed John I. Taylor as President of the Boston Americans—Jake Stahl Story a Joke.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Jim McAleer arrived here from Youngstown at 4 o'clock this afternoon to join Ban Johnson, who came through from Chicago on the Boston Express, leaving here at 5:15 p. m. They are due to arrive in Boston to-morrow morning at 7 o'clock. McAleer said he expects to close negotiations for his purchase of the control of the Boston club, and President Johnson will be present and approve whatever deal is made.

Although the foregoing dispatch from Buffalo would seem to indicate that McAleer was to obtain the controlling interest in the Boston American League club, according to Tim Murnane, such is not the case.

Mr. Murnane is Owner John I. Taylor's right-hand man, and was present when the papers were drawn up between Ban Johnson and the Taylors. The agreement is to the effect that McAleer will buy a half interest in the club, amounting to $150,000. He will be the practical baseball man and direct the affairs of the club.

According to Murnane, who was here with the Boston club last night, the negotiations will be closed just as soon as McAleer comes across with $150,000. John I. Taylor will drop out of baseball and McAleer will be recognized as the head of the Boston club. Taylor's money will still be in the club, and he will, of course, control half of the stock.

The story that Jake Stahl will be associated with McAleer and act as manager is a pipe dream. The Boston fans do not want Stahl, and McAleer will find this out just as soon as he looks over the situation. Tris Speaker would seem to be the logical leader.

The Washington Herald's story yesterday morning to the effect that George McBride would likely be the manager of the Washington club next season struck a popular chord.

Baseball fans at the park yesterday afternoon were discussing the possibility of McBride's assuming the managership and nine out of ten agreed that the shortstop would be just the man for the job. Every time McBride stepped up at the bat he was greeted with a round of applause.

As McAleer has considerable influence with the local board of directors, and it is known that McBride is his choice, the shortstop stands better than an even chance of being elected.

A special dispatch from Boston late last night reads as follows: Boston, Sept. 13.—James R. McAleer, manager of the Washington American League club, will arrive in Boston to-morrow from Youngstown, Ohio, with the money necessary to close the deal with President John I. Taylor, whereby he will acquire a half interest in the Boston Americans. McAleer has already posted $50,000 with the Boston owner. President Johnson, of the American League, will arrive in Boston to-morrow to witness and sanction the deal.

Taylor will give up the presidency of the Boston club to McAleer, and it is believed that the latter will eventually secure a controlling interest in the Red Sox.

AMES' GOOD WORK HELPS GIANTS WIN

Second Game of Series at Boston Aids the Leaders.

Boston, Sept. 13.—Leon Ames by masterly pitching to-day defeated the Rustlers in the second game of the series. Score, 4 to 1.

Up to the ninth inning Ames had allowed the locals but one lone tap. Bridwell and Flaherty spoiled the great feat by slamming through a hit apiece. They didn't amount to much, though, as the next three men were tossed out without much ceremony. A muff of Kaiser's fly by Devore and passes to Crowdy and McDonald enabled the Rustlers to score their one tally in the second. Score:

APACHES TO HAVE STRONG ELEVEN

More Than Thirty Men Will Try for Team.

What promises to be the fastest club team in the District this fall will shortly begin work. Coach Pegan will have about thirty men from which to pick the Apache football team, and from this showing made by the youngsters last fall a record-breaking season is in store for them.

"Dutch" Bosley, who put up such a great game last year, will not be with the southeast boys this season, as he is in New York attending college, but several able men have signified their intention to come out for the team. Bill Lorcombe, the star quarter back, will again be on the job behind the line, while the other backs will more than likely be Thompson and America. The complete roster of the candidates will be ready in a few days. All teams desiring games with the Apaches are requested to address their challenges care of the Sporting Editor of The Washington Herald.

VOTES POUR IN FOR FREE TRIPS

Herald's World's Series Contest Big Success.

Entries are pouring in for the ten most popular fans of Washington and vicinity at a great rate, but the Contest Editor is a demon for work, and wants more. To-date there are a few more than twenty entrants for the trips to see the world's series games, and there is room for plenty more. The contest is not confined to the District. Persons living in Maryland or Virginia can see the games at the expense of The Washington Herald, as well as the residents of the District.

Another feature that will be a help to the contestants is the subscription votes. Every daily paid in advance subscription will net the contestant 100 votes, while a daily and Sunday subscription will give him 200. This is the fastest way in which to gain votes, so get together and pull for your favorite. Remember, labels and sale slips from many articles, including Berlerich's shoes, Page Laundry, and a lot more.

Frank McLearen, the famous rooter of Alexandria, Va., is in the fight hot and heavy, and bids fair to lead them all, while Bill Neuland, the genial southeast lad, is working day and night, and the men that beat him out for the trip will have to go some.

It is not too late to start, and at the same time the cups already in it will have to hustle. Get busy, boys, and enter your favorite rooter. Now is the time to start in the race for the ten free trips to the world's series games at the expense of The Washington Herald.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS AND GOSSIP

J. G. Hollay, Eastern sales manager for the White Company, is in the city for a few days as guest of the Imperial Motor Company, local representatives of the White car. Speaking of the 1912 outlook in the automobile word, he said: "The coming season promises to be even better than the one just closing. More people are realizing the value of automobiles, both from a pleasure and business standpoint."

Miller Brothers' Auto and Supply Company has sold Model T Ford touring cars to Dr. M. E. Miller and H. G. Machen, who, it will be recalled, won the sweepstakes prize in the Four-Leaf Clover run last spring with a Ford roadster. They have also sold a roadster of the same make to Dr. W. H. Gibbons.

New England hotels keep a list of the automobile parties which make their hostelry their headquarters. The Luttrell Company yesterday received a list of the motoring parties which during the last two months stopped at one hotel in Waterbury, Conn. It shows there were 91 parties driving Packard cars registered at this hotel during the two months against sixty-five, the highest of any other one make of car.

Dr. E. M. Butts has purchased an Interstate "B" roadster from David S. Hendrick.

"Ted" Johnston, manager of the Buick Motor Company, left yesterday for a week's visit to the factory at Flint, Mich.

Fred Harveycutter, local manager for Meeley, the Firestone representative, has returned from a visit to the factory at Akron, Ohio, where he attended the annual convention of the company representatives. Speaking of his trip, he said: "Our convention was held in the immense new factory just completed and now in operation. This building contains five floors and nearly ten acres of floor space. The old plant is being given up to the manufacture of rims, and is running full time on demountable rims for pneumatic tires."

H. B. Leary, Jr., has sold a Hudson "37" touring car to Charles E. Gross.

George A. Bentley has just returned from a 1,000-mile trip through Pennsylvania, New York, and New Jersey in his Regal roadster. He was accompanied by Dr. Seneca Bain.
