THE BERING SEA AGREEMENT.

The Correspondence Leading to a Suspension of Seal Catching During the Present Season.

The correspondence on the Bering sea controversy leading to an agreement between the United States and Great Britain that both countries shall cease the taking of seals during this season or until the dispute has been settled by arbitration, has been made public by the State Department.

MR. BLAINE'S PROPOSALS.

The terms of the agreement for the closed season as proposed in Mr. Blaine's letter of May 4 are that:

"The government of the United States limits the number of seals to be killed on the islands to seven thousand five hundred. The government of the United States guarantees that no seals shall be killed in the open waters of the Bering sea by any person or any vessel sailing under the American flag or by any American citizen sailing under any other flag. The government of Great Britain guarantees that no seals shall be killed in the open waters of the Bering sea by any person or any vessel sailing under the British flag, and that no British subject shall engage in killing seals for the time agreed upon on any vessel sailing under any other flag. These prohibitions shall continue until the 1st day of May, 1892, within which time the arbitrators shall render final award or awards to both governments."

These several propositions were submitted for the consideration of Lord Salisbury.

The correspondence is devoted chiefly to the adjustment of several points of difference as to the manner of closing the sealing season, and is very amicable in tone.

The preceding correspondence closed with a note from Secretary Blaine to Sir Julian Pauncefote, dated April 14 last, changing somewhat the six questions proposed to be submitted to arbitration so that in brief they provide for a determination of the old Russian rights in Bering sea, the extent of their recognition by Great Britain, the definition of the boundaries of Bering sea, the extent of the reversion of the Russian rights to the United States, the right of the United States to protect seal outside of the three-mile limit, the determination of the necessary regulations to that end, including the limitation of the close season, and finally the question of the damages sustained by the two parties through seal killing and through seizures of vessels.

THE ADDITIONAL CORRESPONDENCE.

The additional correspondence begins with a note from Secretary Blaine to the British minister, dated May 4, setting forth that the President, in order to avoid any conflict in Bering sea that might be provoked by the modus vivendi, proposed to England that sealing, both on land and sea, should be suspended by both nations during the progress of arbitration or during the season of 1891. Mr. Blaine in submitting this proposition communicated the fact that the President was very desirous of a prompt response from Lord Salisbury, and to that end suggested that Sir Julian Pauncefote request a reply by cable. As no reply was received the President instructed the Secretary of the Treasury to issue to the lessees (the North American Company) the privilege of killing on the Pribyloff Islands during the coming season the maximum number of 60,000 seals, subject to the absolute power of an agent appointed by the Secretary to limit the killing to as small a number as the condition of the herd might, in his opinion, demand. On April 22, eight days after the President had left Washington for his trip to the Pacific coast, and when Mr. Blaine was absent from Washington, the British minister notified Mr. Blaine that Lord Salisbury was ready to agree that all sealing should be suspended pending the arbitration. Mr. Blaine at once telegraphed the answer of Lord Salisbury to the President, who replied that he was gratified at Lord Salisbury's message, but instructed Mr. Blaine to inform Sir Julian Pauncefote that "some seals must be killed by the natives for food;" that "the lessees are bound, under their lease from the government, to feed and care for the natives, making it necessary to send as ship to the Pribyloff Islands each season at their expense;" and that for this service, a very expensive one, the "lessees should find their compensation in taking a moderate number of seals under the lease." The President expressed his belief that this allowance would be readily agreed to by Lord Salisbury, because the necessity is absolute. After a full consideration the President limited the number of seals to be taken to 7,500, to be killed by the company to repay them for the outlay demanded for the support of the 300 people on Pribyloff Islands. He further directed that no females be killed, so that the productive capacity of the herd be not impaired.

WAITING FOR LORD SALISBURY.

To this note Sir Julian Pauncefote replied on the following day that he regretted that a misconception had arisen concerning the delay and explaining that he felt some reluctance in sending any more proposals to Lord Salisbury while his dispatch of February 21 last, submitting amendments on the questions for arbitration, remained unanswered and that Sir Julian suggested that it would be more satisfactory if the new proposal were made to concur-rently with the reply to Lord Salisbury's dispatch. Sir Julian adds that he understood Mr. Blaine to say that he "would proceed in that order." Sir Julian further says that if Mr. Blaine had informed him that the President desired that the alternative proposal should be telegraphed it should have been done, but that he (Sir Julian) cannot call to mind that the President's name was ever mentioned at the interview. Sir Julian adds that no appreciable loss of time occurred.

Mr. Blaine falling ill, the correspondence was taken up by Mr. Alvey A. Adee, the acting secretary of state. Mr. Adee, under date of May 20, wrote to the British minister that the President was desirous to learn the reply of her majesty's government to his proposal to stop sealing. That note elicited no reply. Mr. Adee wrote again on May 26, urging the necessity of an immediate reply, as the Canadian vessels were leaving for Bering sea and the United States could not longer hold back its revenue steamers.

To this note Sir Julian Pauncefote replied the following day, regretting any inconvenience caused by the delay, and assuring the State Department that Lord Salisbury is using the utmost expedition.

Gen. Grosvenor's Friends Distressed.

From the Baltimore American.

The friends of Gen. Grosvenor are much chagrined at his unfortunate and unworthy denial of the recent interview in which he made such an indiscreet and reckless attack on the foreign element. They know only too well that Gen. Grosvenor's denial is inspired by a desire for personal political safety and that it is at complete variance with the truth. Gen. Grosvenor did say the very words he was quoted as saying. Since he has forced the issue between himself and the correspondents he can only blame himself if his unfortunate attitude in the matter is told. When the interview appeared in print he was very proud of it. A number of his friends—correspondents of republican newspapers—immediately showed him the mistake he had made in his reckless language, and warned him that he would be severely called to account for his words. "I don't care," replied Gen. Grosvenor; "it's time somebody told the truth about this matter, and I have the courage to tell it."

It is unfortunate that Gen. Grosvenor's courage to tell the truth did not abide with him long enough to stick to the truth. He never repudiated the interview until he learned several days afterward that Secretary Foster was very much annoyed and was considering the propriety of revoking his commission. Gen. Grosvenor has caused his friends sincere distress.

Posts to Be Abandoned.

An order has been issued from the headquarters of the army announcing that the garrisons of Fort Abraham Lincoln, North Dakota, Fort Lewis, Colorado, and Fort Shaw, Montana, will be withdrawn, and the several posts named will be abandoned. The troops thus withdrawn will be assigned to other stations. The commanding general department of the Missouri is, however, authorized to retain the present garrison of Fort Lewis until the 1st of October next, if he thinks it advisable.

Division and department commanders will give the necessary orders to carry these changes into effect as soon as it can be done with a due regard to economy. They will report by telegraph to the adjutant general of the army the date when the troops shall have been withdrawn, that the necessary arrangements may be made for the transfer of the reservations to the Department of the Interior for disposition under the act of July 5, 1884, "to provide for the disposal of abandoned and useless military reservations." Upon the withdrawal of the garrisons, a schedule will be forwarded to this office showing in detail the description and condition of the public buildings and improvements left on the reservation, together with an approximate estimate of the value of each, to be accompanied by a report showing what, if any, of these buildings or parts of them can be removed and used to advantage at other military posts or stations.

Wm. Seef, Lawrence Hayes, Wm. James, John Fry and Wesenm Catlett were killed by the explosion of a boiler at J. L. Jordan's saw mill near Bowling Green, Caroline county, Va., yesterday.
