SOME GOOD SHOOTING.

The First Regiment Team Wins in the Preliminary Trials at Sea Girt.

Staff Correspondence of The Evening Star.

CAMP POLLARD, SEA GIRT, N. J., August 26, 1891.

There may have been at some time two organizations more keenly anxious to eclipse each other's record than are the teams of the first and second regiments, but history has failed to show the existence of such bodies. Today the second and last stage of preliminary practice for regimental teams was shot, and when the skirmish runs ended great was the jubilation of Capt. Cash and his men, for their victory of yesterday was made complete. At known distances—200 and 500 yards—Capt. Cash and his team were winners by seventeen points. This morning in the skirmish run they upset Capt. Bell and his aggregation without turning more than three or four hairs. It was done this way: Long before sunrise the sound of voices and the rattle of tin wash basins disturbed the slumbers of those who had fallen to get up when gray daylight first put in an appearance. There was a rush for the hydrants, many of the rushers being clad after the fashion adopted several summers ago by the Apollo Bevedere, the Greek slave and several other social leaders of prominence, the only deviation from the artistic rule being garments of exceeding thinness and mighty abbreviated. When the washing and dressing had been disposed of half an hour was devoted to the rifles, most of the time being used up (in company with some yards of canton flannel) in scrubbing the interiors of the respective barrels. A few of the Washingtonians partook of a light breakfast, but quite as many did not, they wanting to supply meat and go it. Cartridge belts, with twenty rounds of ammunition in each, were adjusted, and shortly after 7 o'clock every one of the District of Columbians was awaiting orders at the 500-yard firing point. Gen. Spencer, Gen. Howard and all the other necessary officers were on hand at the appointed time and without any delay everybody moved back to the 600 yards firing point, from which place the skirmish runs were to start. The District men ran five at a time, alternated between Jersey soldiers, there being ten men in the line to fire the ten targets. To be strictly correct skirmish firing should be done at silhouette figures representing men in the three positions of standing, kneeling and lying down, but the authorities here, realizing that only a few national guardsmen could give sufficient time for the practice which would be necessary, substituted for the regulation figures mid-range targets. At the sound of a bugle the men advanced, first in common, then in double time, halted, fired, arose, proceeded forward and backward, until they had been halted ten times. Each man was supposed to average two shots at each halt, he being allowed thirty seconds between the two signals "commence firing" and "cease firing," but most of the men had fired the last of their twenty shots at the eighth or ninth halt. It took four runs to dispose of the competitors, and as soon as the last test was complete there was very general anxiety to know what the results looked like. So far as Washington is concerned they look like this:

THE SCORES.

First regiment team:

	No. of hits.	Score.
Capt. W. L. Cash	17	53
Lieut. George H. Harries	17	50
Lieut. J. M. Stewart	13	36
Private Rollins	20	72
Private Himebaugh	17	58
Private Appleby	15	53
Team total	99	322

Second regiment team:

	No. of hits.	Score.
Capt. James E. Bell	18	74
Col. Clay	15	38
Lieut. King	14	46
Com. Sergt. Laird	10	36
Sergt. Smythe	18	51
Private Walter Cash	11	38
Team total	86	283

So the preliminary practice puts the first regiment team ahead by the tune of fifty-six points. Whether the match itself, which opens tomorrow, will result similarly no one knows, but it seems to be evident that the second boys will have to get a very rapid move on themselves if they want to stay with the procession. What the three Jersey teams can do is not yet apparent, for they have kept their scores very closely to themselves. They are first-class men, and of course are possessed of the advantage which comes from familiarity with the range. The match has not commenced yet, so Col. Moore had better restrain his joy until he receives definite information. The racers are not always to the man who runs with his lungs.

OTHER SCORES.

Others of the District troops, besides those already named, were in the skirmish runs today. Some of these will be on the brigade team. Hereare their scores:

	No. of hits.	Score.
Maj. J. M. Pollard	20	54
Lieut. E. L. Graham	19	58
Lieut. Farrabee	12	42
Sergt. Hatterly	16	59
Private Dickey	19	74
Private Hecox	15	50
Corporal Rotramel	10	23

More than a few of the natives who watched the skirmish runs were surprised beyond measure when Col. Clay started the range. They had at first figured out that a man with but one arm could hardly give a reasonably good imitation of the genuine article, and when they saw him dispose of his last cartridge on the seventh halt they doubted the silent veracity of their vision.

CAPT. PARMENTER AND THE SNAKES.

Let no man say "snakes" in the presence of Capt. Parmenter. The story is sad one, but true in every particular. Capt. Cash prepared to shave himself this morning and among other things he did was to drop a black necktie, nicely cross-patched in white, outside and near one of the cases of his tent. There it lay, motionless and silent, until Capt. Cash happened to see it. Prompted by the spirit of mischief which prevails in and around camps, the rifleman yelled "Snake! Snake! Kill him! Somebody hit him with something!" Without a moment's hesitation Capt. Parmenter picked up a long and heavy tent pin and with that he pounded the inanimate strip of silk until sixteen or eighteen men who had caught on to the situation laughed until laughter was painful. Maj. Pollard came very near being caught. He heard the cry of "snake" and was sallying forth armed with a cleaning rod, when the situation became apparent. If the busy, big-hearted quartermaster owned the earth he would give it to any one were he sure that the present would prevent him from making reference to the little incident I have sketched.

Lieut. J. M. Stewart will get into serious trouble some of these days. He brought with him a camera and some of the pictures he has taken are, to say the least of them, interesting. Members of the team say they will be compelled in self-defense to destroy both the instrument and the plates, and perhaps the operator too. When a man is the unfortunate possessor of a tight shirt and is struggling to get into or out of it, it hurts his feelings to have a good, reliable camera snapped at him.

THE JERSEYMEN AHEAD.

August 27.

A struggle, the end of which is not yet, commenced on the range this morning; a struggle that brought out lots of good shooting in the aggregate and some very poor shooting so far as several individuals were concerned. The Washington boys were out bright and early and disposed of breakfast with the customary neatness and dispatch; that is, some of them did. One of them, Lieut. Harries, was decidedly sick—peaches—and as the fruit was brought into camp by Col. Clay, and as Col. Clay commands the second regiment, there were not wanting those who charged the colonel with attempting, in a kindly way, to damage the first regiment team. The colonel's defense is that he did not compel any one to eat more peaches than wanted for him.

Four teams took up positions at the 200 yards firing point at 9:30 and looked dubiously at the flags and streamers which were fraying themselves out in a tolerably violent wind that cut directly across the range from the south. No one looked for any large scores and, as a consequence, no one was disappointed. Many a promising bullet evaded the targets and many a marksman used language not common in religious circles. Very soon it became evident that the contest was to be exceedingly close, and when the work at 200 yards and 500 yards had been finished the first battalion team of New Jersey was ahead with 280 points to its credit, the seventh regiment (Jersey) had 277, the first regiment team (D. C. N. G.) rejoiced in 275, while the second regiment half dozen had an aggregate of 271.

THE FIRST REGIMENT HAS WELL WON.

Firing at the 500 yards stage commenced right away, and although the wind kept up its antics incessantly some very fine shooting was done and a lot of the necessarily faulty work at the shorter distance was covered up. Even the sickness brought up his average. Here are the local scores:

First regiment:

	200 yds.	500 yds.	Total.
Capt. Cash	34	40	74
Lieut. Harries	30	47	77
Lieut. Stewart	42	46	88
Private Himebaugh	39	43	82
Private Rollins	40	31	71
Private Appleby	33	41	74
Team total			473

Second regiment:

	200 yds.	500 yds.	Total.
Capt. Bell	35	46	81
Col. Clay	38	32	70
Lieut. Vale	37	37	74
Lieut. King	38	35	73
Sergt. Smythe	34	34	68
Private Walter Cash	36	40	76
Team total			442

So you see that the first regiment once more got away with the second. Col. Moore may smile still. His smile could develop into a laugh right now but for the fact that the seventh (Jersey) team closed at 500 yards with a total of 476, thus leading the first regiment of the D. C. N. G. by three points. This would not have been thus had the home boys done a little better work at 200 yards, or had Private Rollins made all of his bull's-eyes on his own target at 500 instead of putting one on a target that belonged to another man. That shot cost Capt. Cash's team five points. The first (Jersey) battalion made a record of 469 points, thus throwing Capt. Bell and his aggregate down to the tail end.

THE STRUGGLE NOT OVER.

But the struggle is not over. Tomorrow each of the competing teams will make two skirmish runs, so the match is still anybody's. Now it is something like the last inning in a good game of base ball. Skirmish is a decidedly uncertain exercise, the possible results of which no man can forecast. Team captains are busy tonight: training their men and acquainting themselves thoroughly with the range. It is no easy thing for hastily formed regimental teams like those commanded by the zealous Capts. Cash and Bell to finish on nearly even terms with old and well-organized teams who shoot here all the year. Just what the Jersey men can do at skirmish so one among the visitors knows, so any estimate or prophecy as to the final outcome of the match would be of no value.

THE LAST STAGE OF PRELIMINARY PRACTICE.

So that the records of the team may be completely before its friends in Washington I send the last stage of the preliminary practice shot yesterday afternoon. Fourteen rounds was the limit for each man, seven of them being used at 200 yards and seven at 500 yards. Once more did the first regiment come out ahead. Here are the figures:

First regiment:

	200 yds.	500 yds.	Total.
Capt. Cash	28	32	60
Lieut. Stewart	34	32	66
Lieut. Harries	36	35	65
Private Himebaugh	30	31	61
Private Rollins	29	32	61
Private Appleby	24	30	54
Team total			367

Second regiment:

	200 yds.	500 yds.	Total.
Capt. James E. Bell	30	29	59
Col. Clay	27	28	55
Lieut. King	24	24	48
Com. Sergt. Laird	29	31	60
Private Walter Cash	28	30	58
Sergt. Smythe	29	29	58
Team total			338

RIVALRY BUT NOT JEALOUSY.

Maj. Pollard has, temporarily at least, lost his grip on first place in the all-comers' match, but he does not feel at all worried about it, for the man who upset his forty-five with a forty-six is Lieut. J. M. Stewart. There is no rivalry between the competing members of the Washington contingent, but there is nothing like jealousy. Two of the team men may be fighting for the same prize, but they will voluntarily give each other points on elevation and windage; their one desire is to have a District of Columbian win, and to bring about such a desirable conclusion they are supporting each other with remarkable loyalty. Private Hickey of the engineer corps still leads in the Kuser match with a score of 100, and the weather has been so windy and rainy today and yesterday that no one has essayed to step over the century mark. This evening and tomorrow more than one man will make the attempt and not improbably at least one sharpshooter may succeed. It is no easy feat, though, even for the most expert, to put in a string of twenty-one bullseyes at 500 yards.

THE SEA BREEZE AND AN APPETITE.

Unless a merciful Providence or some other great power interferes very rapidly Quartermaster Parmenter will have to forward to Washington a requisition for a new uniform—a uniform that will fit the revised version of Commissary Sergt. Laird. The climate is alleged to be responsible for the sudden growth of the sergeant's appetite and so marvelous has been the physical development noted during the past two days that nothing but a rubber suit of clothing could have been equal to the occasion. The sergeant tries to excuse his indifferent gastronomic performances between meals by saying that long intimacy with a Washington boarding house had caused him to neglect the practice of eating, but he hopes before the end of the week to make a clean score three times a day with potatoes, watermelons, green apples and horse cakes scattered promiscuously throughout the remainder of the twenty-four hours. The restaurant keeper who, at contract prices, supplies the camp with provisions, approached Sergt. Laird this morning after breakfast and asked him how much money he expected to win in prizes here. Finding that $15 was the sergeant's limit he immediately offered him $20 to leave Sea Girt before dinner, an offer which the sergeant declined to accept because he expects to shoot on the brigade team. Sergt. Smythe is another of the Washingtonians who is treading in the broad road that leads to destruction. Capt. Bell surprised him last night while the major portion of his features were hidden in a home-made Jersey pie, 15 cents each at retail and warranted to hold elevation up to 475 yards. This was the second pie in three hours. Unless Dr. Tanner or Prof. Succi converts the two gentlemen referred to the chances are that both Laird and Smythe will eat themselves off the team.

Gen. Ordway is expected to arrive here this evening. G. H. H.

Free Coinage the Issue for 1892.

Henry Cabot Lodge in the Forum.

There can be very little doubt that the next Congress will pass a free coinage bill. Have not heard of any one either in or out of Congress or of either party, fitted by experience or observation to judge, who doubted for a moment that such a bill would go through. If a free coinage act passes the next Congress it is equally true that no one doubts that President Harrison will veto it in the interest of honest finance and sound business methods. Should this happen, as it is not believed that the bill can pass both branches over the presidential veto, it will leave the question open to be settled at the polls in 1892, while the position of the parties upon it will have been sharply defined by the action of Congress and of the administration, respectively. Whatever difference may exist within the parties upon this question, the conditions are such that one must sustain and the other oppose it. They cannot both get upon the same platform in regard to it, and it therefore seems inevitable that the free coinage of silver will be the leading issue in the next campaign, the one upon which most popular feeling will be excited and upon which most votes will turn.
