THE SANITARY LEAGUE.

Its Purposes and Plans—How One Can Become a Member.

The objects of the Sanitary League of the District of Columbia have already been set forth in THE STAR. The need for such an organization was demonstrated in the lecture recently delivered here by Dr. J. S. Billings. The general issues of the league are stated in a circular recently prepared by the league, as follows:

"The belief that many deaths and much sickness are annually caused in Washington, as in other cities, by conditions that might be remedied by intelligent effort, and that these conditions would become the source of great danger to human life in the event of the appearance of cholera or other epidemic, has led to the organization of the Sanitary League of the District of Columbia, of which you are urged to become a member. The aims of the league are to secure, by the voluntary co-operation of residents, such a thorough supervision of the city as is beyond the power of the municipal authorities with the means at present at their disposal; to make a thorough house-to-house inspection; to procure the removal of conditions that are dangerous or threaten to become so; to prevent, if possible, contaminations of the water supply; to effect such improvements as may be found desirable in the system of sewage disposal; to disseminate useful knowledge of sanitary matters and domestic hygiene among the residents of the city, and to accomplish whatever other good it can in the way of saving the people from the dangers ever threatening them by reason of the existence of unsanitary conditions."

The officers of the league are R. Ross Perry, president; Dr. J. S. Billings and Theodore W. Noyes, vice presidents; John Joy Edson, secretary, and E. Francis Riggs, treasurer. It is desired for obvious reasons to secure as many members as possible. At present no dues are required of members. All that is asked of them is an active interest in carrying out the plans of the organization and co-operation in the work of the various local committees.

If you desire to become a member of the league please fill out the accompanying coupon and send it to the secretary of the league, Mr. John Joy Edson, 1003 F street northwest:

Washington, D. C., ...1893.

You are hereby authorized to present my name for membership in the Sanitary League of the District of Columbia.

SEDGWICK COMMAND'S INSTALLATION

Officers of the Union Veterans' Union Publicly Inducted Into Office.

Last evening Sedgwick Command, No. 3, Union Veterans' Union, held a public installation of its officers at Hamline M. E. Church, a good attendance witnessing the interesting ceremony. Past National Commander Aiden acted as mustering officer and Capt. J. P. Palmer was officer of the day. By these the installation was conducted and the beautiful ritual of the order was made unusually impressive. The officers installed were: Colonel, Wm. Edgar Rogers; lieutenant colonel, Frank T. Howe; major, George J. P. Wood; adjutant, B. F. Chase; quartermaster, Chas. Garrett, and surgeon, Sherman A. Johnson. The other exercises consisted of an excellent address by District Commissioner Parker, who spoke of his own army experience and of the duty that the government owed to the men who fought for the flag saved the country. Prof. Dushane Cloward sang "The Bugler" in a spirited manner, his full rich baritone voice being heard to excellent advantage. Gen. S. S. Yoder, the commander-in-chief of the corps, gave some highly interesting statistics in regard to the rapid strides that the order is making throughout the country and predicted a most enjoyable time at the annual encampment that will be held in Boston next August. Capt. Thos. H. McKee made an earnest address full of patriotism and paid a high tribute to the old soldier. A male quartet sang two numbers with fine effect and the organ was presided over by Mr. Harry S. Barnes, who is gaining quite a reputation as a solo performer. His work also as an accompanist to Prof. Cloward was artistic. The whole entertainment reflected credit upon Sedgwick Command and upon the officers composing the committee that had charge of the arrangements. A message was received from Senator Palmer regretting his inability to be present and make an address.

THE WASHINGTON NAVY YARD.

It Has Now Been Restored to Its Old Importance.

Gath in the New York Commercial Advertiser.

Being at the Washington navy yard a few days past and seeing there the magnificent machinery for making guns, whereby the navy yard has been restored to its old importance, I reflected that the favorite dogma of Jefferson for twenty-five years was hostility to the navy. This he numbered among the usurped powers of the federal state. His animus, of course, was the creation of a navy by John Adams, in anticipation of our war with the French in 1798. The frigates then built, nearly all, I think, at Philadelphia, relieved Madison's administration from the almost uniform defeat of our land forces. They included the frigates President, Constitution, Constellation, Congress, &c. Jefferson had all the while been building a small gunboat navy, for he said the only naval right we had was to defend our rivers. The British ran these gunboats up into shallow water, where they had to be burned. They showed their contempt of a country without a navy by firing on the Chesapeake in 1807, whereby Mr. Jefferson deserted his administration and fled to Monticello, leaving Madison, who had as much nerve as a small cat, to be the second Washington and meet the military situation. We should have been conquered by Proctor and his Indians in the west but for the appearance of Perry and his fleet on Lake Erie, and after Perry's victory Harrison was able to cross over into Canada and kill Tecumseh and clean up the war in that quarter.

Another thing occurred to me as I had recently been reading Gen. Butler's book.

Butler said that the reason he went to Annapolis in order to get around Baltimore to come to the relief of Washington city in 1861 was that he had at some time in his youth read an attack by Edmund Randolph—another historical character who has recently been whitewashed by Moncure Conway—upon Gen. Washington, who threw him out of his cabinet for attempting to dispose of his services to the French minister. Randolph charged that Washington city was improperly placed on the Potomac in order to gratify the Carrolls and the Calverts, connections of Gen. Washington, who owned the real estate. He said that the Potomac was a tortuous and shallow river, and that a navy yard at Washington never could amount to anything.

This attack was answered by Maj. L'Enfant, the engineer of Washington city, who said that it had never been intended to make the Washington navy yard the roadstead for the city of Washington, and that Annapolis was the true port of Washington, and had a splendid roadstead and was only distant thirty to forty miles.

Butler says that by remembering this Annapolis was kept in his mind as the place for his steamers to proceed to. Subsequently, in our civil war, many of the expeditions which went to the south were fitted out at Annapolis, and Maj. L'Enfant turned out to be a better topographical engineer than Mr. Jefferson.
