IN HOTEL CORRIDORS.

"For the United States to be without a merchant marine is as absurd as it would be for a department store to depend upon a competing store to distribute its goods," said Francis B. Thurber, a well-known New York business man and writer on economic topics, at the Arlington. "Every ship is a missionary of trade, and steamship lines work for their own countries just as railroad lines work for their terminal points.

"An Isthmian canal, connecting the Atlantic and Pacific waters, would also be of great benefit to the extension of American commerce, especially in the countries bordering on the Pacific, in which three-fifths of the entire population of the world reside. Ocean cables across the Pacific are also necessary. The establishment of international banks with American capital is desirable so that this country may derive the benefits in this line which now largely accrue to foreign bankers.

"Our consular service should embody the features of permanency and promotion to a greater extent than it does at present. In the system now current, with every change of administration many of our most efficient representatives are retired just at the time when they have acquired a knowledge of the language and of business in their consular districts.

"Commercial education in our high schools is desirable, especially the more general teaching of the modern languages most used in international commerce. The United States Export Association is laboring steadily to secure these advantages, and I find that the combined influence of a large number of the leading houses of the country in such an association is most useful to this end. The press can also do much to aid this much-desired-to-be consummation. It is most important that American labor and American capital should be permanently and remuneratively employed, and if we would avoid the frequent recurrence of periods of commercial depression it can be done by intelligent effort to widen our markets."

Judge Le Roy D. Thoman of Chicago is spending a few weeks in Washington and is at the Arlington. Before he was appointed a member of the first board of interstate commerce commissioners, a dozen years ago, Judge Thoman was a practicing lawyer in Youngstown, Ohio, where Mahoning county was a part of the congressional district then represented by President McKinley. As a young man he served for several terms as probate judge, being elected as a democrat in a county normally republican because of his popularity. After retiring from the interstate commerce commission Judge Thoman moved to the windy city, where he has been very successful in the practice of the law. He is a good speaker and is usually sought after in presidential and important state campaigns.

Judge Nicholas Nichols Cox, who represents the Franklin, Tenn., district, is one of the best-natured men in Congress. For ten years, during congressional sessions, he has lived at the National, where he is regarded as a permanent fixture. He fought four years in the confederate service and carries, among other mementos of that great struggle, a gunshot wound in the knee, which at times stiffens him up in such a manner as would perturb the equanimity of many persons possessed of a less passive nature.

"This has been a great fall for hunting along the peninsula," said ex-Representative R. A. Wise of Williamsburg, Va., at the Ebbitt. "If anything, the birds have been too plentiful for the real sportsman. Quite a number of deer have been killed along the peninsula. The morning I left home I saw eight deer in the woods near my house."

"There are many laudable enterprises that one may engage in to make a living in this world, but I must confess the most novel one I have ever encountered was over in my state last week," said Mr. C. E. Jamison of Conneaut, Ohio, at the Johnson. "In a little town called Leroy I found a man running a skunk farm. Yes, skunks, or polecats, if you prefer; you know what I mean if you ever lived for any time in the country. His name is Wolever, and he told me that he expected to make a pretty fair thing out of it. He showed me ten fine, black skunks. It goes without saying that I viewed them from a distance. But this man is putting into operation some very good ideas of his own, such as patent inclosures and sleeping logs, and which he expects will bring out the best qualities of fur. As skunk skins are worth about $1 apiece, the business may become lucrative. Who knows?"

Among the arrivals at the Ebbitt is ex-Governor Fifer of Illinois, recently appointed a member of the interstate commerce commission. Senator T. B. Turley of Tennessee, with Mrs. Turley, Miss Turley and Miss Stewart, has taken apartments at the Ebbitt for the winter.

Legion's Officers Installed.

Encampment No. 23, Union Veteran Legion, held its annual public installation recently, when the following named officers for the ensuing year were installed by National Chief Mustering Officer F. J. Shannon: Stanton Weaver, colonel; A. B. Mackenzie, lieutenant colonel; W. S. Canatsey, major; Napoleon Gates, officer of day; B. W. Bonney, quartermaster; T. B. Jackson, chaplain; Wm. H. H. Price, M. D., surgeon; O. D. Thatcher, adjutant; Jacob Adams, officer of guard; E. S. Wood, sergeant major; H. C. Bradley, quartermaster sergeant; P. J. Doolan, color sergeant; Lemuel Adams, trustee.

Addresses were delivered by Installing Officer Shannon, Past Col. Stewart and Col.-elect Weaver. A congratulatory telegram was also received from the national commander at Philadelphia regretting his inability to be present.

PILES

"I suffered the tortures of the damned with protruding piles brought on by constipation with which I was afflicted for twenty years. I ran across your CASCARETS in the town of Newell, Ia., and never found anything to equal them. To-day I am entirely free from piles and feel like a new man."

C. H. KEITZ, 1411 Jones St., Sioux City, Ia.

KNIGHTS AT A FEAST

Washington Commandery, K. T., Celebrates Its 75th Anniversary.

COMPANY NUMBERS THREE HUNDRED

Distinguished Guests From All Sections of the Country.

LIST OF THOSE PRESENT

In the delicately tinted banquet hall of the Raleigh Hotel the members of Washington Commandery, No. 1, Knights Templar, celebrated Saturday evening, with one of the most elaborate and handsomely appointed dinners ever served in Washington, the seventy-fifth anniversary of their organization. Gathered about the gridiron of white-clothed, flower-laden tables nearly three hundred knights, with distinguished guests from all parts of the country, all, however, being members of the craft, partook of an elegant feast and made merry until a late hour. Fraternal good fellowship reigned throughout the occasion. There were a few after-dinner speeches, brief and sparkling, the commandery having decided to keep without the lines of the antiquated responses of lengthy duration.

Seventy-five years ago, January 14, 1825, Washington Commandery, No. 1, came into being. Its birth was auspicious and up to the time of the civil war it was the only organization of Knights Templar in the national capital. Its growth has been steady since, and the commandery has from time to time numbered among its members the most distinguished Masons residing permanently or temporarily in Washington. Albert Pike and Benjamin B. French, of continental reputation, were honored members. Today the commandery is one of the foremost in the country, as well as one of the oldest. It was organized just nine years after the formation of the grand commandery of the United States, and might appropriately be termed the parent of the organization of Knights Templar of the present time.

Present Membership.

The membership of Washington Commandery is now about five hundred, and includes, as will be seen by a glance at the appended list of those present at Saturday evening's celebration, many of the most prominent business and professional men of the city, as well as a large number of senators and representatives and other officials of the government. The seventy-fifth anniversary of the organization actually occurred yesterday, but for obvious reasons it was decided to anticipate it one day that the banquet might be served Saturday evening. The occasion was one in every way befitting the important occasion and its splendor will long live with those who were present.

A magnificent scene was presented when the guests, immaculate in evening dress, seated themselves about the great table shortly after 7 o'clock. The banquet hall, situated upon the topmost floor of the 12th street addition to the Raleigh, was tastily decorated with twining vines and green foliage. The tables were banked with roses, carnations and other blossoms, while a each plate was a boutonniere of violets. Mr. Huhoff had the decorations in charge, the flowers being furnished by Mr. J. Henry Small, jr. Draped from the orchestra balcony were the flag of the commandery and a large silken ensign. Directly across the hall, and immediately to the rear of the toastmaster, was the Maltese cross, insignia of the order, composed of flowers and outlined in miniature electric bulbs. The years "1825" and "1900" were also worked in flowers and hung upon the western wall. MacLeod's orchestra furnished an enjoyable program of music during the evening.

Health to President McKinley.

When the wine was served with the first course a health to the President of the United States, an honorary member of the commandery, was offered, the sir knights drinking the same standing and in silence. The commandery quartet sang a stanza of "America," the orchestra accompanying. The quartet is made up of Messrs. G. F. Johnson, H. C. Pearson, W. D. McFarland and C. E. Rice. During the dinner the quartet gave selections at intervals, Mr. Henry Webber rendered a violin solo, and Mr. W. H. Conley entertained the diners with a number of humorous songs and stories, he being encored time and again.

After the fifth course was served the toastmaster, Mr. Thomas P. Morgan, past eminent commander, introduced Mr. Frank H. Hosford, whom he designated "as the greatest orator of Washington Commandery, No. 1." Mr. Hosford made a speech teeming with good humor. He dealt in pertinent personalities, which were greatly enjoyed and appreciated by all present. His good-spirited speech set the pace for the remainder of the evening. Mr. Hosford concluded by presenting the commandery with an enlarged photograph of the present commander, Mr. Jesse F. Grant, taken while that high officer was disporting in the waves that break upon the sands of the Jersey coast metropolis, Atlantic City. The picture was hilariously received. Mr. Hosford said he hoped it would always adorn the walls of the commandery. Commander Grant retaliated by reading a letter, which said all sorts of things about Mr. Hosford, and which, the commander said, he suppressed "for the good of the order."

Trials of a Statesman.

Toastmaster Morgan made a gracious and witty director of affairs. He was introduced by Commander Grant. When the cigars were lighted Mr. Morgan introduced Representative T. E. Burton of Ohio, a member of Oriental Commandery, Knights Templar, of Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Burton's remarks were short, but pointed. He was called upon to tell something of the "trials and tribulations of statesmen." He said an account of a few of these would fill a large volume. Personally, he owed lots to Masonry. He urged those present not to be envious of a senator or representative, for their lives were lives of labor without accomplishment; of patriotic endeavor without reward, and of hope without realization. All the same, he said, better two years of American Congress than a century in the legislative body of any other nation of the globe. He wished great success, happiness and prosperity to every member of Washington Commandery, No. 1.

Senator Clarence D. Clarke of Wyoming was the next speaker. Like his predecessors, he spoke but a few words, but they were words of meaning and were deeply appreciated. He was asked to tell something of the woman's suffrage question. In reply he stated that the ladies enjoyed their suffrage privileges in Wyoming. What influenced them, he did not know, but to gain their votes a man must be a pretty good sort of a fellow. He closed by giving his best wishes to the commandery.

The last speaker of the evening was Mr. Warren LaRue Thomas of Kentucky, past grand master of the Grand Encampment of the United States, Knights Templar. He said he was exceedingly gratified to be present, and considered himself fortunate indeed. He congratulated the members upon the peace and prosperity of their commandery and said theirs was a record equaled by few, and to be indeed proud of.

Mr. Herndon Morsell closed the evening with an enjoyable solo.

The committees in charge of the affair were:
