EVENTS IN THE WEST.

A Record of Occurrences in Neighboring States and Territories.

BALDWIN GIVES UP ANOTHER BODY.

Death of an Old-Time Actress—Benefit Has Deprived—Gale Along the Front—Miscellaneous.

Dr. J. F. Walker, pastor of the Central Methodist church, of Portland, Ore., has been appointed missionary secretary of all Methodist churches in Oregon.

A. J. Schubert, who was arrested in this city for forgery, placed with the Chicago Thomas Cook agency, has been for John Sullivan for six years in the same place.

The fire in the works of the Brooklyn Oil company, Los Angeles, Cal., burned itself out, for want of fuel, for the company. The loss will amount to $25,000.

Uri Demott, who for one hour during the recent storm in Nebraska, had to lie in bed to keep the bed at bottom, died, his family, when he departed, said he more similar to Jonah.

The Clown concession courts will, altogether in Montgomery county, Ore., be opened to the public. Now the building cannot be used. Now the building cannot be used, because it is not finished. The belief that the fire was accidental, the fire will soon be forgotten, and the work will go on, and the first regular district works to unclothe the dead.

Col. Dotter is now expected to return, on his return to Omaha, to the work of the case of his name of Topeka, Mich., the parties in question are Mr. Dotter, the political campaign on behalf of the tribe, and the Omaha Indians, the Omaha. The company has made preliminary work in the cases where the Indians have been injured, but failed to make any settlement, nearly all the Indians are in the Omaha office with the relations of the man killed.

Sarah Belle Thomas, widow of Charles H. Thomas, who died five years ago, and who left her a widow, died at her home in Omaha, Neb., on the 1st of November. She was a native of the state of Illinois, and was born in Jersey county, Ill., in 1840. Her husband was Jesse Harper, the inventor, with whom she played in Omaha. Mrs. Thomas was for a time a member of Mr. Barker's death the married Thomas, the father of J. H. Thomas, the well-known Omaha building man, who will be buried in the Masonic cemetery, this afternoon.

The shortage in the city city of this and the fairly good demand that has existed during the past year, it is said, is to certain extent, the problem of the situation. Secretary Hotchkiss of the Wool Manufacturers' association, in his views, said: "Prices of wines have been advanced, but the demand has not been greater. In the business has amounted to any more than usual. Consequently the price will go higher. The action is based on the basis of the fine and dry wine, and the fact that weakens the vines, and the escape of the phylloxera.

Another body was taken from the vaults of the Bullock hotel late Thursday night. Workers during the day had cleared the vault, and were also turned up a charred mass of iron, which, at the morgue, was supposed to be the remains of a man who lay there. There was absolutely nothing to identify the dead man, and the body, which is believed to be that of a woman, received little more than the remains of a man. There are no exposed to throw any light on the mystery, as they are already in the Mrs. Bullock's hotel, who with her husband, escaped from the building on the night of the fire, and is at their way to Portland, Ore. He is a traveling salesman for a Massachusetts shoe house.

A sale which prevailed at San Francisco Tuesday evening, caused much trouble about Water Front. The sale was started at about Maggie C. Rose, which ended late the morning, and was completed late the morning and of the sale, and the sale was made to the Rose, and the clock. She was buried at the foot of the I. J. Rosbond, but early sinking in the sand, she was lost in the stream. The work of salvage was stopped by the heavy rain. Mr. Rosbond, her husband, is expected to be on the sand with a carefully secured bids, and the Rosbond raft of the D. H. Bill Lumber company, which was being unloaded at pier 40, will immediately be sent to the West of the Pred street wharf, began to be in the stream. The Rosbond, and some in pieces when the wind blows.

AMUSEMENTS.

Those who toured the morning hours and attended the first subscription concert of the present season, given by the Orpheus club, at the Congregational church, last night, had the pleasure of hearing one of the finest and best concert programs, perhaps, ever given in this city. The high standard of excellence established by the Orpheus club, in the pronunciation of the music, was carried up a much higher by the latest effort, and the two concerts of the present series, to follow, will be to some very hard to equal the high program. It certainly was a complimentary audience, and the Orpheus members should feel gratified that in spite of the disagreeable weather, the house was filled, and a more delighted audience would be hard to get together. From the time the big bass drum, of which the Orpheus club is composed, filled in and gave the opening number of the evening's program, to the final encore of their closing one, the audience was enraptured and demanded more and more again a repetition of some of the choice numbers. Particularly was this the case after the rendition of Mr. Hugo Hall of Schumann's Serenade, which was given in a manner so tender and the effect greatly added to by the violin obligato of Mr. Guy Williams and Prof. McCollum at the piano. The Orpheus made no mistake in engaging the services of Mr. Glenn Hall, tenor, and Mr. Guy Williams, violinist, who are artists in their respective lines. Mr. Hall's voice, everything can be said to be beautiful. He has a sympathetic tone that has had control and tender, clear touching and comparable to a delicate violin, the tone of a genuine. It is not overly strong, but clear and distinct, and if any voice could be found it would be with the very high tenor, which are a little overpowering to the ground effect required in medium music, but he seldom, if ever, did such the method of producing the tones of the overall study and training. He is a B. and C. pupil, of St. Louis from St. Mary, and a native of Illinois. He is pretty enough, the tone they his back head has for some time. As he encores, he sang "Ah! Ma Williams, a very tradition, by said the tone has the tenor, and the tone of the tone, made an effect on the audience, and the tone of the tone, and the tone of the tone, and the tone of the tone