THE SEMI-WEEKLY NEWS,

THE GREAT COUNTRY PAPER OF THE WEST.

is issued Mondays and Thursdays and contains all the cream of the Daily and Saturday News.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

The installation yesterday at Ogden of a local council of the Knights of Columbus was attended by 100 of the cult from this city, as well as by delegations from Denver and Seattle.

Florence L. Wright, the little daughter of J. A. Wright of 823 Lake street, died last night, as the result of injuries received from scalding by falling into a tub of hot water two weeks ago.

Capts. John L. Hayden of the artillery corps and G. W. Read of the Ninth cavalry, and Veterinarian R. B. Corcoran of the cavalry service, are at the Kenyon from the Presidio to buy horses for the army.

Manager Albert Hertz of Calder's park was surprised yesterday morning by the employes of the resort, who presented him with a watch charm representing the emblem of his order, the Eagle's claws, mounted with a gold eagle in the center and a gold bar with the letters "F. O. E."

Lee Pole of Poplar Grove, aged 19, was accidentally shot Saturday afternoon by his brother Bert, aged 19, while the latter was fooling with a revolver. The bullet went into the child's abdomen, but as it did not cut the intestines, it will be allowed to remain undisturbed for the present.

The Faust creamery has just shipped to San Francisco the second car of butter ever shipped to the Pacific coast, the first having been shipped about three years ago. The butter market in San Francisco has had a great boost recently on account of a demand for foreign shipments, and prices are soaring.

General Secretary Hubert Carleton of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew was in the city yesterday from Pittsburg, Pa., and spoke in St. Mark's cathedral and at St. Paul's church. He is en route to San Francisco, and will arouse enthusiasm and interest in the coming convention of the order to be held in Denver next October.

George Meridith, one of the members of the city's chain gang, made his escape Saturday afternoon. His absence was not discovered for some time. The prisoners were working on the road in City Creek canyon when a large piece of hill side caved in. Some of the prisoners thought that Meredith was buried under the dirt and they worked hard for several minutes to clear away the dirt. When Meredith was not found they realized that he had escaped.

State Treasurer Henry G. Hay of Wyoming is to be married to Mrs. Mary A. Seabolt, formerly of this city, and now a resident of Denver. The bride was formerly the wife of Mert Seabolt, the well known asphaltum mining man of Salt Lake, but she secured a divorce from him two years ago in Chicago, and removing to Denver, managed a hotel there until the first of this month. The wedding is to come off next month, when Mr. and Mrs. Hay will remove to New York, where the groom is assured of a lucrative position.

The State Prison Society of Christian Endeavor adopted yesterday morning a constitution and pledge specially adapted to all prison societies, and will send the same to the Denver convention for consideration there. The society also listened to an epitome of the life of E. U. Trout, an evangelist attached to the Jerry Macauley mission, and who was pardoned from the New Mexico penitentiary last Christmas. Trout was sentenced to 40 years on purely circumstantial evidence for a murder which has since become patent was committed by a Mexican named Esequiel Cano, now in prison for life for another murder, or rather series of murders. Trout was converted in the pen, and became an enthusiastic Christian Endeavorer.

The remains of the late Captain Daniel W. Fisk arrived in this city today from Brooklyn, N. Y., where he died on the 5th inst., and the interment will take place this afternoon in the family plot at Mt. Olivet, by the side of his wife, who died some time ago. A. J. Fisk, a brother of the deceased, accompanied the body west, and another brother, Captain R. E. Fisk of California, arrived in this city yesterday. The deceased and his two brothers founded the Helena Herald in 1866, and for 23 years conducted a successful paper at the Montana capital. It was the Herald that discovered the beauties of the present National park and was the means of so exploting it that it became known to the world for what it is. Captain D. W. Fisk was a brother-in-law of O. J. Salisbury of this city.

Tomorrow will be a big day with the Fraternal Order of Eagles, and large delegations are pouring into the city to help the local lodge carry out its program successfully. A 10-car special reached this city yesterday from Carbon county, with Italian Eagles who paraded the streets in the afternoon. A parade will be indulged in tomorrow noon, prior to going to Calder's park for the celebration there. The procession will pass north on East Temple street to the Brigham Young statue, thence east to State, down State to Third South, west to West Temple and north to Second South, when it will proceed eastward again and back to the hall. In addition to a big delegation from Sunnyside the Mercur, Ogden, Logan, Park City and Eureka lodges will participate. Crowds are also expected from La Grande, Rock Springs, Wyo., Carlin, Nev., Pocatello, Ida., and other cities. Ogden is expected to supply 250 Eagles, and 20 members will come from the La Grande lodge and 20 from Pocatello.

DESERET NEWS HOUSE WARMING

More Than Two Hundred Participate in Banquet and Ball.

GOOD SPEECHES, FINE MUSIC

Master of Ceremonies Whitney Delivers Speech of Welcome—Response By Editor Penrose.

The Deseret News housewarming given in the Annex on Saturday night was pleasant and successful beyond the fondest anticipations of the employes who worked it up and under whose auspices it was given. More than 200 persons were present and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves, first in looking over the various departments, then in partaking of the banquet, served in fine style by Franklin, in listening to the interesting program, and finally in the dance which continued until just before midnight, permitting the crowd to catch the last cars.

The banquet was served in the bindery, occupying the whole of the sixth floor. The great hall was profusely decorated with bunting from the Temple and flags from Zion's Savings bank and the National Guard armory, all being kindly loaned for the occasion. There was a plentitude of potted plants, palms and cut flowers furnished by the Salt Lake-Huddart Floral company. The mirrors for dressing rooms came from Dinwoodey's. Music for the dance, which took place on the seventh floor, was furnished by Christensen's orchestra. Among the guests of the evening were President Anthon H. Lund, Hon. John Henry Smith, Hon. Rudger Clawson, Bishops Preston and Miller, Hon. Angus M. Cannon, Hon. Joseph E. Taylor and Bishop George Romney. President Joseph F. Smith was to have been present but was unavoidably detained. Letters of regret and congratulation were received from President Winder and Senator Reed Smoot; also one from Richard Matthews, a faithful servant of the "News," in the old days, unfortunately an invalid for several years. Robert Lawrisch, another old and incapacitated employe of the book bindery department was borne to the banqueting board by former associates. Their kindness caused unbidden tears to flow and extreme thankfulness to well in the old gentleman's heart. The musical numbers rendered on the banqueting floor were a banjo solo by John D. Ford (Slug Eight), a banjo solo and song by Harry S. Harper, and a trio by Messrs. Ford, Martin and Jensen. On the dancing floor Laron Pratt gave an imitation of the theft and consumption of a watermelon from a real watermelon patch. The selection was in pantomime and was thoroughly enjoyed.

THE CALL TO ORDER.

Mr. H. G. Whitney, the "News" business manager, called the assemblage to order as follows:

"My fellow laborers and friends: Most heartily I desire to congratulate you all on the occasion that has brought us together this evening, and I specially wish to congratulate those who first thought of the idea of having all the employes of the Deseret News meet in a social gathering, to look into each others' faces, and to become better acquainted one with another.

"In the four years and a half that I have been connected with the "News" I have witnessed many changes take place in its affairs. I have seen it develop from a struggling condition financially, to one of prosperity; I have seen the circulation of some of its issues double, and one of them treble; I have seen the walls of the beautiful edifice we are now occupying, and are about to occupy, gradually rise from the ground to completion—but I have never before seen assembled together the men and the women whose united labor has made all these things possible. Some of us have met, of course, in the hurry and skurry of business, met to plan for the needs of the institution, met while our minds were absorbed with the anxieties of trade and competition, but never before, I believe, have the "News" employes assembled on an occasion like the present, when business cares could be forgotten, when social pleasure was the order of the night, and when we could greet our friends and our leaders, "under our own roof." Let me repeat the hope expressed in the 'News' last night that this may be but the beginning of many assemblages of the same kind.

"But I was not appointed toast master to make you a long speech. Our time is limited. The musicians will soon be waiting for you on the next floor, and there are those among our guests not down on the program from whom we all wish to hear. Before I close however, I wish to take this opportunity on behalf of all the employes of the Deseret News, to return our most heartfelt thanks to the Church authorities for their generosity and enterprise in providing us with our new and magnificent home. I believe I speak all your minds when I say that we will endeavor by renewed faithfulness and diligence to show them that their investment will be a paying one, in more senses than one.

"Next I desire to return my sincere acknowledgments to my fellow workers in all departments of the Deseret News, for the loyal support which they have accorded me during the time I have been laboring with them. You all know that we have had at times an up hill job, but if we have surmounted any of the difficulties that confronted us, it has been because of the willingness, the perseverance, the strong faith, and the arduous work of the men behind the types, the pens, the pencils and the machines. Better aids than I have had at the heads of the various departments of the "News," I never wish to work with. Had the business of the Deseret News been their own, they could not have brought to it more earnestness and fidelity than that which they displayed—indeed, had it been their own, I fear they would sometimes have abandoned it altogether, rather than go through with some of the tasks they have been called on to perform. So I say to one and all, accept my thanks for all you have done. Accept my congratulations again that you are on the eve of removing to your new home—into quarters which I sincerely believe are not equalled for comfort and convenience by any in the whole west—and more than all, accept my congratulations on the fact that whatever the improved conditions may be by which you are surrounded, you have deserved, you have earned them all."

Mr. Whitney, as toastmaster, introduced the various speakers and performers. In introducing Editor in Chief C. W. Penrose, he spoke in warmly complimentary terms of his services in behalf of the paper, and of the relief he had experienced when the late President Snow had told him Mr. Penrose was the man who had been chosen to take the editorial helm. Mr. Whitney also took occasion to speak of the debt of gratitude the Deseret News employes owed to President Snow, who had originally promised them that if they would make the paper a success he would see that they were given a home worthy of hearing the name of "the Church publishing house."

EDITOR PENROSE REPLIES.

Editor Charles W. Penrose, in responding to the toast, "The Deseret News," said in substance:

"Mr. Toastmaster, Ladies and Gentlemen.—I am sure you will be highly gratified to know that I have not prepared a speech for this occasion, for I know that many of you are anxious to leave for regions above (the dancing floor). Neither have I prepared a bouquet for the business manager. However, when President Snow asked me to return to the Deseret News I was gratified to learn that the business management was to be entrusted to my friend Horace G. Whitney. How successful Mr. Whitney has been you all know. But the success attending the publication of the 'News' is not all due to one or two individuals. All have taken a part in this good work. Every lady and gentleman employed in the establishment has contributed to the grand result. The 'News' is the oldest paper in the Rocky Mountains, the pioneer of journalism in the great west. And ever since its beginning it has maintained a splendid reputation and has enlarged in size and influence, until now it is a power for good in all parts of the world. People looked upon as 'outsiders' consider the 'News' the best paper published in Utah, and speaking for the editorial department I want to say that if I had not been surrounded by such a faithful staff of writers and reporters it would not have been so. All desire its prosperity and have worked unremittingly to that end. The 'News' as the organ of the Church has turned out many good tunes, tunes harmonious with its motto, 'Truth and Liberty.' Truth brings liberty when properly learned and practised throughout the world. To be accurate and publish facts has been the aim of the paper ever since its beginning. The Deseret News has been the champion of the principles of the everlasting Gospel as well as a purveyor of general news. It has championed the liberties of all and I believe the day is hastening on when the honest will be glad to receive the truth and will recognize the 'News' as the champion of the good cause. I am proud of our new building. It is a credit to the institution and I trust that as in the past we will continue to have nothing but feelings of love and affection for one another. I endorse the words already spoken in this connection and I believe that we have the finest printing office in the entire west. We honor the authorities who have given us such a magnificent home, we love them and we want the spirit of love to pervade the whole establishment. We welcome you all, we hope the blessings of heaven may attend you and make the 'News' a power in the earth for 'Truth and Liberty!'"

BY WAY OF LEVITY.

George E. Carpenter, a member of the reportorial staff, indulged in a few good natured remarks which were calculated to show some of the ups and downs of the profession. He aimed right and left at everybody and everything from the "grouchy city editor with the big blue pencil, to the business manager, who could smell a free ad farther than Marconi could send a wireless message," and was greeted with a round of applause when he finished.

PREST LUND SPEAKS.

President Anthon H. Lund was the next speaker. He said in part: "I am pleased to meet with you here tonight and to hear that 165 people are engaged in the word of publishing this paper. The Deseret News is a power in the land, a welcome visitor in the homes of most of the Latter-day Saints and in many of the homes of our friends who are not in the Church. I remember the "News" when it was a six-year old, in Denmark, and I have watched the growth of the paper and seen that it has continued to prosper and has now become one of the leading newspapers in the west. I was pleased to hear the editor say it was the best. In saying so he means that he will make it so. I am pleased we have a ready writer like Brother Penrose and a manager like Brother Whitney. In reading the reports of the paper from time to time I see that it has got into a condition where it pays. Brother Whitney is a success and I congratulate the Deseret News on having him for business manager. I congratulate all who work on the paper. You know the hurry and bustle required to issue one, but we do enjoy it when we get it. I remember years ago how we longed for the "News" and how we enjoyed it when we got it. How times are improving! When we had a war in the Philippines we could read of what occurred the same day. The Deseret News I look upon as a defender of Zion, and I hope its motto, 'Truth and Liberty,' will ever be seen through its columns. God bless you all."

HON. JOHN HENRY SMITH.

Hon. John Henry Smith said: "I am happy in the privilege of being with you on this occasion. I have enjoyed the remarks as well as the food; also the sweet music and recognize the fact that the people here tonight are possessed of many talents. The Deseret News to me has been a lifetime acquaintance. I do not remember when I did not read the Deseret News, and while I have not always been its strongest supporter, I have observed that its spirit has been to carry truth to mankind. The men at its head have been in attune with everything that is noble and good and have had to heart the welfare of their fellow creatures. I congratulate you on your new home, also on your editor and manager and trust they may continue with it. I believe that every person connected with the paper should possess the broadest and freest heart it is possible for persons to possess. Our purpose is to conquer the world, not with hate but to convert mankind with love and to guard the rights of all individuals. May success attend you. May your future lives be happy and the spirit of liberty grow with you. God bless you.

HON. RUDGER CLAWSON.

Hon. Rudger Clawson was the next speaker. He said: "I very much appreciate the privilege of being with you to enjoy the spirit of this occasion. It is a splendid thought to come together once a year, and much good, I am sure, will result therefrom. All will be brought closer together and will work in greater harmony than ever. I approve of all I have heard this evening. I rejoice in the progress attending the institution. The Deseret News is a great, strong, good, worthy paper and worthy this good home which, I am sure, is worthy of the paper. President Snow, when he planned such a building, builded better than he knew. The Deseret News building is one of the towers of Zion, and visitors who gaze upon it in time to come will be led to say that a people who build like this must be a strong people because they find solidity in all they do. I wish all here tonight joy and happiness." The speaker closed with a laughable anecdote on feasting.

PRESIDENT A. M. CANNON.

President Angus M. Cannon, one of the early day employes of the 'News,' was the last speaker. He said: "If a man wants to be fluent he wants to fast. I have partaken of two banquets already this afternoon and therefore I am not in good condition to talk to you. The remarks of this evening have awakened within me many recollections of long ago, when Horace K. Whitney, father of your present business manager, the man who set the type on the first issue in 1850, and others were connected with the 'News.' I first entered the institution as devil. Then I became pressman and I well remember that the published the paper on home made sheets. That was in 1854. Thomas Howard was the manufacturer of the paper, and the sheets were as thick as pancakes—I mean thin pancakes. I served my time with the 'News' and selected a wife who also served her time. In November, 1867, I became business manager which position I held for six years; and, if I mistake not, the paper paid its way all those years. I am grateful for witnessing a return to the old system of an annual festival and I hope they will continue. At one of our festivals in the old days A. Milton Musser and David McKenzie solemnized their nuptials. I am grateful for the progress attending the 'News' and more than once have congratulated the management on publishing the most reliable paper in this section of the country. I am glad you have a new building."

President Cannon closed with the hope that the Deseret News and its management would prosper and grow as long as truth should go forth and light be reflected from Zion."

The proceedings of the evening were opened by prayer offered by Walter J. Lewis and closed with a benediction offered by [illegible]
