CHICAGO DEVELOPES NEW WALL STREET

Monroe Walks Away From La Salle as Financial Center Of Windy City.

CHIEF OF POLICE ON MORALITY

He Says Women Must Get Out Their Brooms Before Town Is Clean.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Monroe street as the financial street of Chicago has made several new strides recently in its walk-away from La Salle, which for so many years held the doubtful prestige of being "the Wall street of the west." Since the First National bank building and American Trust building went up, the Harris Trust and Savings bank has been added, and the National City Bank of Chicago has remodeled the old Commercial National building at Dearborn and Monroe. Now a new 20-story skyscraper is to be erected opposite the First National building, by a brewing company which now operates a restaurant under its lease of that location. The building will have a frontage of 115½ feet and fills in the gap between the Rector and the Inter-Ocean buildings with 16-story structures across the way and a vista of other high buildings, including the Woman's Temple, the New York Life and the Majestic buildings up and down the street. That part of the loop district has become so congested that the ground rentals have advanced far beyond the most rosy expectations five years ago. Real estate values all over the city have taken on new activity and there are almost daily reported deals showing quick profits in property which for many years was inactive and seemingly of doubtful future.

On the women of Chicago the responsibility for a thorough clean-up has been placed by Chief of Police Steward, who, in addressing the Chicago Women's club, declared: "Until the women get out their brooms and do the sweeping we never will get this town clean morally and physically. Men haven't the time or the moral conception and not one man in 10 knows enough outside of his business to be allowed to vote. Already there are too many city ordinances as well as too many laws but if a woman owns an automobile she does not observe the traffic rules. A woman in an electric runabout will go straight down the middle of the street and make all the faster machines run around her, or she will turn straight into the curb without a warning to anyone. Four women will walk abreast down the sidewalk, and nine will wait for cars side by side, endangering the lives of those who must walk around them to cross the street." Chief Steward has some very definite ideas about what is needed for city girls who are arrested, and he added: "Every year there are thousands of girls brought in by policemen, who are not bad, but they are herded with criminals. They should have the benefit of kind words and treatment, and have special accommodations and care." In regard to the over-supply of law, which everyone recognizes and no one corrects, he said: "The best thing the legislature could do this winter would be to repeal half of the existing laws, and then adjourn for three years. You cry out 'Why don't the policemen enforce the laws?' Why don't you, for that is your business? His business is to preserve the peace."

MUSICIANS RECOGNIZED.

Growing recognition of American musicians in America was shown when Francis Macmillen, violinist, played with the Thomas orchestra in Chicago and was ranked by critics with Fritz Kreisler, the greatest violinist of the day. The inexplicable prejudice with which the American musician long has struggled is now breaking down observers say, and Americans are giving greater credit to their countrymen, whose musical gifts and attainments are readily admitted abroad. Not many years ago it was impossible for an American artist to get a hearing with any great symphony orchestra and this was not because the foreign conductors were averse to helping American artists. They have always been far-sighted enough to know that the permanence of artistic institutions in this country only can be attained by developing native talent. Macmillen's technique and tone approach the supreme excellence of Kreisler and one critic, commending the audience given to him by the Thomas orchestra, said: "His interpretive ideals are not less fine than Kreisler's. His reading reflects the same sensitive response to all emotional impulses and the same refinement and restraint in their expression. The difference is of degree, not of kind. Time may bring the added touch." Macmillen played the A-minor Concerto by Goldmark.

* * *

The vortex of the country's criss-cross currents of immigration, the exhibits and the crowds at the land show in Chicago, go far to show the new era that the southern states have entered upon. Also some reasons why eastern farms continue neglected by the land hungry are seen in the absence of any exhibits. There were red cheeked apples from everywhere but Maine. While the bands played, men and women, evidently in deadly earnest, wandered from one exhibit to another. The men from the farms rub elbows with men who have the back-to-the-farm fever in virulent form. The elaborate exhibits including that of the United States department of agriculture, have outdone anything previously attempted in the way of bringing the outdoors indoors and presenting it graphically. One of the exhibit designers owes his discovery as a genius in that line to his producing the biggest merry-widow hat on record out of hardware in a window town in Amarillo, Tex. His mammoth millinery creation, decorated with rosettes of six-shooters and pompons of camp-kettles, with square yards of baking dish brim, became the sensation of the town, and the designer, A. L. Daly, was found to have other ideas, practical and unique. Consequently he was picked out by Amarillo to make from broom corn, kaffir corn, milo maize and sorghum a creation artistic and to brush up his knowledge of panhandle crops, including that of the man whose 1,400 acres netted $140 an acre in broom corn. Daly's leap from a hardware store to exposition was nimbly and successfully made and another ambition fulfilled.

RIVAL OF CHICAGO.

A rival in Canada of Chicago as a market center was pointed out by Hon. Frank Oliver, dominion minister of the interior, who was one of the speakers at the banquet of the St. Andrew's society in Chicago. "But the day is far off," he added, "although Winnipeg has the natural resources behind her. In Canada our problem is one of opening up and making use of the tremendous advantages which we have and which largely are untouched. We in Canada are doing everything possible to cultivate friendship with the United States. We have found that good American citizens make good Canadian citizens, so Canada welcomes Americans to the land we have to open up." Railway construction in Canada is not under check as in the United States, and new lines northwest from Winnipeg are among the important factors counted upon in the opening up process. President Charles Hays has announced that the Grand Trunk Pacific will be completed from coast to coast inside of three years, and this particularly will open up the vast territory northwest of Edmonton which is yet virgin and unpeopled except by the pioneers, who already have kept pace with the railroad construction. The remarkable feat of crossing the Rocky mountains on a low prairie grade is expected to turn an immense amount of traffic to and from the Pacific coast to the Grand Trunk Pacific as soon as completed, and already the available land and the townsites which a few years ago were in the midst of the unpeopled prairie between Winnipeg and Edmonton are attracting investors and settlers from all over the world. The future of Winnipeg also was importantly affected by the decision of the Grand Trunk to build a line to Hudson bay. These railway extensions have prompted the financing of vast lumber, coal and iron enterprises to utilize the native resources of the new country opening up.

RAILROAD WRECK WASTE.

The growing wreck waste of American railways, which is the biggest item of their billion-dollar-a-year expense, has cheerfully been ignored by executives of western railways in answering Louis Brandeis, attorney for the shippers, who offered to furnish free of cost advice that he says will enable the roads "to save a million dollars a day." Whatever the merit of Mr. Brandeis' argument, the losses in repairs, replacement, freight claims and personal injury claims resulting from wrecks on the steam railways is admittedly waste and the totals are shown by the report of the interstate commerce commission for the year ending June 30, 1908, to be the greatest single item of expense, the total for that year being approximately $251,000,000, or a quarter of the whole. At the same time the deaths and injuries as well as money loses were shown to be on the increase at an appalling rate. Railway executives no longer are reluctant to spend money for block signals and other modern safety equipment. But notwithstanding the reduction in the wreck waste that equipment effects the losses continue.

"HEART THROB" COURT.

The "court for heart throb cases" created in Chicago is officially one to dispose of cases of these classes: Breach of promise, abandonment, child delinquency, neglect of children, "wife beating" and related complaints. There is where love and pathos intermingle in the recital of marital differences and parental apathy. Club women and settlement workers were active in the formation of the new court. For several months these women have petitioned Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court for a special court to deal chiefly with love, pathos and marital troubles. It was decided at a meeting of the judges of the municipal court to create the domestic relations branch. Now a search is being conducted for the right judge to sit and hear the cases. Chief Justice Olson said last night that as soon as he found a judge who could settle such ticklish questions a little better than his associates he would assign that judge to the new court.

TAKE CARE!

Remember that when your kidneys are affected, your life is in danger. M. Mayer, Rochester, N. Y., says: "My trouble started with a sharp shooting pain over my back which grew worse daily. I felt sluggish and tired, by kidney action was irregular and infrequent. I started using Foley Kidney Pills. Each dose seemed to put new life and strength into me, and now I am completely cured and feel better and stronger than for years."—Schramm-Johnson Drug Co.
