All Honor to Gen. Gillam's Command!

Another Battle in Greeneville!

Death of Morgan!

Capture of his Staff Officers!

Rebel Force Dispersed!

86 Prisoners brought in and 150 killed!

A Perfect Rout of Rebel Thieves!

The following dispatch is from Gen. Gillam, who is in command of our forces east of here, and who is doing the service of a Grant or Sherman in East Tennessee:

BULL'S GAP, Sept. 4th, 1864.

To Gen. Ammon, Gen. Tillson, and Dr. Brownlow:

I surprised, defeated, and killed John Morgan at Greeneville this morning. The killed are scattered for miles, and have not yet been counted. The prisoners captured will probably number from 50 to 100. Among them are Morgan's Staff. Captured one piece of artillery and caisson. The enemy's forces outnumbered mine, but the surprise was complete. ALVIN C. GILLAM.

John Morgan is no more! And when he died a THIEF and a COWARD expired! He was killed in Mrs. William's back yard, or cabbage-patch, skulking from danger. He was shot through the heart by Andrew Campbell, of Company G, 13th Tennessee Cavalry, while trying to escape. There should be a salute fired in front of every horse-stable in the land in honor of his death! And all fine horses and mules should be notified that they may now repose in quiet at night, and graze in peace in the day time.

Morgan leaves a large amount of gold and greenbacks, cotton and real estate, the proceeds of his thieving exploits, resulting from untold murders and robberies, through a space of three years. Who his legal heir is will be difficult to settle. His first wife was the sister of Col. Bruce, of Ky. She died in Lexington from the neglect and bad treatment of her debased, gambling, and thieving husband. His second wife was the negro wench he had with him during his residence in this city. She is in Kentucky. His third wife is the daughter of Chas.Ready, of Murfreesboro', and she is at Abingdon, in Va.—Our own opinion is, that the negro wench has the oldest claim upon his estate, but we leave this grave question of law to be settled in the Confederate Courts, or by special act of their Congress.

Gen. Gillam is in our town, and brought with him 86 of Morgan's men, on Monday evening, who we saw turned over to the jail we were once an inmate of. Some of them were barefooted, and bare-headed and bare-backed. All looked dirty and mean, as though they were fit subjects to be commanded by a common horse-thief.

Capt. Withers, of Covington, A. A. G., Captain Clay, of Lexington, son of Thos. H. Clay, and three others of Morgan's Staff, are among the prisoners. Young Clay is pretending to be sick so as to cheat our authorities in the parolling of him to the privilege of the town.

We are informed that the members of Morgan's Staff were captured in a potato-hole, in a back yard in Greeneville—a sort of place where potatoes and cabbage have been buried. Gallant knights, these!

HOOD'S ARMY IN FULL RETREAT!

Prisoners and Cannon Captured!

General Sherman after the Chivalry!

Will Capture half of his Command!

The following dispatch is our latest reliable news from Atlanta, and promises a rich yield before the chase is over:

NEAR ATLANTA, Sept. 3.

On the 30th ult., the fighting near Jonesborough was very severe. The enemy was driven at all points. He burst in masses on the 15th Corps, but was resolutely met, and his repeated assaults repulsed, losing severely in general officers. Our loss light, as we fought behind our works.

On the 2d inst., a strong reconnoitering party approached the city of Atlanta, and found it vacated. It was met my the Mayor and a deputation of the citizens, who formally surrendered the city.

It is rumored here that Hood's army is divided, and that Sherman is behind, fiercely harrassing his rear, with the prospect of capturing the greater portion of his command.

We have taken upwards of two thousand prisoners and several pieces of artillery.

Late and Important News.

The following dispatch from Governor Johnson shows that the rebel raiders are at work in Middle Tennessee:

NASHVILLE, Sept. 1st., 1864.

A portion of the road between Nashville and Murfreesborough has been torn up, and we fear the road has been injured beyond Murfreesborough.—Our forces are in pursuit—will give them a lively time. ANDREW JOHNSON.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 1st., 1864.

The rebels are still in the Shenandoah Valley. There has been brisk fighting at Smithfield, Va., and the rebels were driven back.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29, 1864.

The Richmond papers contain Mobile dispatches of the 24th of August, admitting that the Federals have taken and hold Fort Morgan; whether surrendered or blown up, is not known.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 1st., 1864.

The Chicago Convention finished yesterday, by nominating George B. McClellan for President, and George H. Pendleton, of Cincinnati, for Vice President. Vallandigham and other peace men accept the nomination with ill grace, and are apparently much dissatisfied.

This is a wonderful ticket! George the First, and George the Second. The latter has a good East Tennessee record. From the time Lincoln first urged the construction of a railroad to East Tennessee, until now, Pendleton, as the records show, voted against the measure. He saw that such a road would damage the South!

Glorious War News.

We take from last evening's Bulletin the following "glad tidings of great joy," and the first response to the convention of traitors at Chicago.—All hail Atlanta! One hundred guns for the surrender of Forts Morgan, Gaines and Powell! Never forget the 1,500 prisoners, the 100 cannon and the six months' provisions. Let all the world of rebels know that their ram, Tennessee, and other piratical vessels have been cornered. Tell them to send out Wheeler and his thieves upon another raid, and Sherman will attend to their interests in Georgia!

CHATTANOOGA, Sept. 2—1 P. M.

From a telegram just received from Capt. J. C. Vanduzen, Assistant Superintendent Military Telegraph, we learn that our forces entered Atlanta this morning, and that fighting is now going on below the city. We expect to have further particulars this evening or to-morrow morning.

CHATTANOOGA, Sept. 2—2:45 P. M.

Heavy fighting going on twenty-five miles south of Atlanta.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Sept. 2.

New York Herald's Army of the Potomac correspondent says a mysterious looking formidable craft is lying in one of the James river creeks.—She appears to be waiting for some of the monitors up the James, when she will run out run out and cut off a retreat. The rebels are erecting batteries to command our position at Dutch Gap.

Grant has issued an order that the rebel deserters who voluntarily come within our lines should have transportation anywhere north they choose.

The result of our Mobile victory is as follows. We compelled the evacuation of Fort Powell. The surrender of Fort Gaines compelled the surrender of Fort Morgan. We have taken 1,500 prisoners, 100 pieces of cannon, a vast quantity of arms and munitions of war, and six months' provisions for the garrison. We captured the ram Tennessee, and several other war vessels, and penned up three English blockade runners. Our army lost one man killed and six wounded. The navy lost the Tecumseh and part of her crew. Very few casualties on other ships.

The Herald Washington special announces that the 8th Illinois Cavalry had just returned from a scout to Upperville, Ashby's and Snicker's Gap.—They destroyed much rebel property, but could not get a fight out of Mosby.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.

Early was at Winchester last night, and the hasty retreat of Rhode's corps this morning indicates that the rebels have important reasons for moving up the valley.

This morning Averill attacked the enemy, driving them out of Martinsburg, occupied the place, and drove the rebels four miles toward Winchester.

The rebel ram Nashville was blown up, on the 25th, by the Metacomb.

Cotton active, at five cents advance. Gold 246.

Tribute to General Ammon.

The late convention of East Tennesseans, at the close of their meeting, paid the following just tribute of respect to Gen. Ammon:

Resolved, That the thanks of this meeting are hereby tendered to Brigadier General Ammon for his liberality towards the delegates elected to the State Convention; and for his vigilance and fidelity towards the country since he has been in command at this port.

ATHENS, TENN., Aug. 24, 1864.

Editor Chattanooga Daily Gazette:

Wheeler's raiding party of thieves has had possession of our county for the last five days: in fact, we began to think it was a stationary raid.

Foiled and whipped in their attempt to cut the Western and Atlantic road, they spent their fury on the East Tennessee and Georgia. They pretty effectually destroyed it across our entire county; burned the depot at Athens; robbed all our store-houses; searched and robbed almost every private house of money, provisions and clothing; destroyed all the Records and papers belonging to the Circuit and County Court Clerks' offices; made war upon the citizens, insulted our wives and daughters, and played the devil generally.

Gen. Wheeler himself led the charge on the stores, and after they were gutted, told his men that they would find the most valuable goods in the private houses, and to "go for them." He then repaired to a private house and donned a new suit, saying he would "pay for it at the close of the war—if he ever did." Every citizen's house, without regard to sympathizers, was searched for goods, and robbed of every article that suited their fancy. The robbery was kept up until late at night, when, with lighted pine torches, they charged through the streets, yelling like infuriated devils, swearing they would lay the town in ashes. Just then the elements combined against them—and the most furious storm that has visited our town for years—burst upon them, extinguishing their lights, and literally driving them out of town.—Well might Rev. G. A. Caldwell say "there was a terrible retribution hanging over the Union people of Athens, as sure as the Lord reigneth." But they are now gone, and their friends will have equal justice meted out to them.

CITIZEN.

Still More of It.

The editor of the British American had a conversation with an officer of the pirate Tallahassee, at Kingston, Canada, and reports him as saying:

That the opinion was universal among his people that the present campaign was the final one of the war—the South only requiring to hold their own during the Presidential canvas at the North, which would ensure the success of the Copperhead candidate, and immediate negotiations for peace on the basis of Southern independence.

To the same effect is the following, from the Richmond Examiner of the 14th:

If Early should turn upon Sheridan in the Shenandoah Valley, and repeat upon him the performances which he has done upon others, we should probably see a thorough peace President nominated at Chicago. And this is the only way we can aid these peace Democrats.

OBITUARY.

Drowned in French Broad river, a short distance above Ramsey's Ferry, four miles East of Knoxville, on the 4th of July, 1864, DANIEL PERMAN, of Greene county, Tenn., aged about 48 years.

Mr. Perman had left his home and all that he held sacred, through his devotion and love of the government of the United States, and in doing so he sacrificed everything—wife, children, home, friends, property, life and all. He professed religion in early life, and joined the Lutheran church, in which he lived an exemplary member. He left to mourn his loss a loving wife and quite a number of loving children. He was a true husband, a kind father, a good citizen and an exemplary christian.

For the satisfaction of the friends of the deceased, I would state that Mr. Perman was buried in a decent and christian manner in the graveyard at Lebanon Church, Knox county, Tenn. May his ashes rest in peace.

J. H. EASTERLY.
