GIANTS INCREASE LEAD BY TROUNCING PIRATES EASILY BY 7-1 SCORE

(By Associated Press.)
Pittsburg, Sept. 17—The New York Giants increased their lead in the national league pennant race by winning from Pittsburg here today 7 to 1.
An overflow crowd witnessed the game and for the first time this season it was necessary to establish ground rules in order that hundreds of the fans might stand behind the ropes in left field. Pittsburg's lone run came in the fourth inning when Whitted sent the ball over the left field wall.
The Giants scored one run in the seventh when Young who had tripped came in on Meusel's sacrifice. New York added two more in the eighth on a single by Snyder. Nehf's sacrifice, a base on balls to Burns and a hit to right by Fricke that was good for three bases. Three more New York runs were registered in the ninth. Kelly, who had doubled, came in to Meusel's place. Meusel gave way to Morrison. Ray hit the next batter, singled. Morrison then fanned Snyder and Nehf went out on a fly to Carey. Meusel and Hawkins scored on a hit by Burns the ball struck Maranville on the leg and before he could recover it the Giant runners had crossed the plate.
Score by innings:
New York 000 000 120—6 16 0
Pittsburg 000 100 000—1 10 1
Batteries: Nehf and Smith, Snyder, Carlson, Morrison and Schmidt.

"Panthea" Is a Story Of Unusual Nature At Grand Monday

Panthea, the photoplay which appears at the Grand Monday, is a most unusual picture, in that it embodies a story of a girl at sacrifice.
Panthea is a famous pianist, who is giving a recital to a few connoisseurs. Baron de Duister, a great composer, regards her longingly. Panthea's brother, Ivan, is a Nihilist, who conspires against the government. Seeing him with a group of Nihilists in her home, Panthea is filled with fears.
Meanwhile the Baron decides to ask the Prefect of Police to trump up a charge against Panthea, who has repulsed him. He wishes to intervene and earn Panthea's gratitude by saving her from the law. When the police descend upon the apartment, they surprise and arrest the Nihilists in session. A fight follows and a man is killed. Panthea's brother escapes, but the death of a soldier is attributed to Panthea herself, as she is found with a gun in her hand. The Baron is denied the privilege of seeing her, and she is sentenced to prison. A sympathetic soldier aids Panthea to escape, and she flees to England.
In crossing to Plymouth the boat is wrecked and Panthea is rescued by Gerard Mordaunt. The pair fall in love, and she confesses her identity and the reasons for her flight from Russia. A Russian agent has also been on the wrecked boat, and he goes to live near the home of Panthea's rescuer. Gerard's parents object to Panthea's growing influence over their son. The Russian agent discovers Panthea, but before he can arrange her arrest she and Gerard elope.
Two years later they are found married and living in Paris. Gerard is in failing health. Seeking an impressario to produce her husband's opera, Panthea again meets Baron de Duister, who assumes a friendly interest in her.
News of his likelihood of success cheers Gerard, who goes out to celebrate. Meanwhile the Baron comes to Gerard's home to consult with Panthea. Here he makes a dishonorable proposal. He says that life has lost all interest for him; that for one month of companionship with her he will produce her husband's opera and consider. Gerard becomes ill and then end his life. She takes time to Panthea sacrifices herself on the altar of devotion.
The opera is produced and is a wonderful success. The Baron gives a dinner on the last night of his thirty-day compact with Panthea. Panthea demands that he keep his pledge and drink poison. Gerard hears them quarreling and discovers his wife's infidelity. He denounces the pair and rushes from the house.
But the family doctor explains the nobility of the sacrifice and re-unites

POSTMASTERS TOLD THEY MUST PUT IN EIGHT HOURS WORK

(By Associated Press.)
Washington, Sept. 17—Postmasters of the first, second and third class from now on are put in an eight hour day under an order announced today by Postmaster General Hayes. Postmasters "shall devote a minimum of eight hours daily during the business part of the day to their duties as postmasters," the order reads, and "shall give their personal attention to the business of their offices and shall not absent themselves therefrom for a longer period than two days without written authority from the post office department." No explanation accompanied the order.

Matt Moore Leads In Don't Ever Marry

Matt Moore, who easily holds the title as champion ex-brother-in-law of noted motion picture actresses plays the leading role in Marshall Neilan's latest production, "Don't Ever Marry." If Mr. Moore's three brothers had followed this injunction Matt, himself, would not now be the ex-brother-in-law of Mary Pickford, Alice Joyce and Grace Cunard.
The picture is a comedy, produced with the same consummate master-craftsmanship which Mr. Neilan always shows in the pictures he directs. It will be the attraction at the Howell theater Monday.

Citrus Seminar to Be Held at U. of F.

The twelfth annual Citrus Seminar to be held at the University of Florida October 4-5, should interest every progressive grower of the state. The Agricultural Extension Division, State Plant Board, College of Agriculture, and U. S. Department of Agriculture have agreed to contribute toward making this a great success. A few topics of special interest are:
Marketing Southern Fruits, by Chas. J. Brand, vice-president and general manager of the American Fruit Growers, Inc. Mr. Brand was formerly chief of the Bureau of Markets.
The Pre-Cooling of Citrus Fruits will be discussed by M. J. Daetwyler, Orlando. Mr. Daetwyler has operated a pre-cooling plant in Orange county and has some valuable ideas that growers should know about.
The Just Valuation of Citrus Properties will be discussed by Hon. Marion L. Dawson, state equalizer of taxes.
The Plans for the Lake Alfred Citrus Branch Experiment Station will be handled by Director W. Wilmon Newell.
