M. M. MURDOCK, Editor.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 29, 1884

BUT ONE MAN.

Among all the prominent names being canvassed by the republican party for the first place on the national ticket, there is but one that would be universally hailed with a welcome, and that name is William Tecumseh Sherman, the hero and patriot, the loyal old hater of shams and the loyal old lover of his country. Blaine's nomination would be followed by heartburnings within the ranks, Arthur's by jealousies and unpleasant criticisms, Edmunds' by sectional dislikes, Lincoln's by distrust, but Sherman's by one universal acclamation of joy and confidence. There is no other such a figure in all the range of political possibilities as that of the grizzly, gray old warrior who led the boys from Atlanta to the sea.

DEMOCRATIC RULING.

Judge Martin, the democratic judge of the Topeka district, made a ruling on Saturday, which is a weakener if the papers report correctly. He ruled that any man who carries a key, and with it gains admission to rooms where whiskey is kept, and violates the law by drinking and putting his money, as payment for drinks in a tin box, or any man who makes keys, knowing they are to be used for this purpose, or puts locks for such keys on doors leading into rooms where liquor is kept, or any man who in any way connects himself with a key that unlocks doors into rooms where he can get liquor to drink is just as much a violation of the prohibitory law and just as liable for prosecution as the man who furnishes the liquor to be drank.

It is given out that Mr. Tilden will accept the nomination of his party for the Presidency provided Joseph E. McDonald is given the second place in preference to Thomas A. Hendricks. Mr. Tilden evidently thinks that a palsied hand and a sore toe would not make a good combination. He wishes, if authentically made known, will no doubt be respected. There is nothing so potent with the Democracy as a voice from the tombs.

Judge Miller, of the Supreme Court of the United States, refused to grant an injunction in the Foster case, and Mr. Moore remains county attorney of Saline county. This will somewhat dishearten the saloon men who are backing Foster.

General Grant is seriously affected physically by the trouble of Grant & Ward. A relative said yesterday that the mental strain on the general had been so great that he must hereafter be counted an old man. He has been confined to the house for several days.

The Emporia city council has passed an ordinance forbidding any cow to be driven or allowed within ten feet of any sidewalk. The ordinance destroys the herding business, as no herder can keep cows from approaching the trees and sidewalks.

Says a scientific writer: "Five thousand molecules can sit comfortably on the point of a pin." This ought to be encouraging to the "horizontal bill" and the other microscopic little ones in congress.

The Weshington correspondent of the Burlington Hawkeye says it is generally conceded at the capital that President Arthur will be nominated on the second ballot.

A GOOD WORD FOR KANSAS.

In his late speech before the house Judge Peters in knocking the pins from under Sam Wood took occasion to put in a good word for Kansas, and more particularly for his immediate constituents. When it comes to advertising, put a Kansas man to combine business with pleasure. Here is what our congressman said:

"I desire to say that the people of Kansas find something to do besides studying the laws and the constitutions of the states and of the United States. It would be strange if the voter of Kansas was obliged to acquaint himself with these laws and the constructions of the courts to decide which was right and which was wrong and, if he should decide wrongfully, lose his vote for representative in congress. The voters of the state of Kansas found time during the last year to raise 200,000,000 bushels of corn and 27,000,000 bushels of wheat. Ay, sir, they found time during the last year to raise wheat, corn, oats, rye, and flaxseed of the value of $93,440,000—$12,000,000 more than the entire value of the gold and silver product of the United States for the same year. Let my distinguished friend from Colorado, who prides himself justly upon representing the gold and silver Rocky mountain mining camp, put that under the brim of his sombrero. McPherson county, in my district, is now, and has been for two years, the banner wheat and broom corn county of the world, and yet this county in age is not half way through its "teens." Sir, in the district in which I now reside there is a county named after the lamented General Sedgwick that raised 7,000,000 bushels of corn last year, and only a short time ago loaded up a train of thirty cars with corn and sent them to Cincinnati as a gift-offering to relieve the sufferers by the Ohio flood. Another county in my state in the district of my colleague—and I will charge him nothing for the advertisement—a county named Butler, found time to send twenty-seven car loads to Cincinnati as a gratuitous offering to the sufferers by the Ohio flood. The nation has donated generously out of its plethoric treasury, but these two counties alone have given ten thousand dollars' worth of corn. The people of Kansas have something else to do, and they do something else, than study up constitutional questions. I know it is said, and it may be truthfully said, that Kansas is only the third state in the union in the raising of agricultural products; but you must bear in mind that Kansas is young yet. When the procession of states passes under the wire in the year 1900 Kansas will be in the lead and will be looking back over her shoulder to see what older state is blinking in the dust of her progress."

THE TOWN OF MURDOCK.

The railroad has reached the new town of Murdock, which is said to be one of the most beautifully located places in this section. The Cheney Journal of Saturday says: of this new aspirant':

Murdock has three stores—two selling dry goods and groceries and one hardware. There is a hotel nearly completed. A baker's dozen and the number of buildings in the town are the same. Its situation is picturesque—a level piece of ground, obscured from western view by a range of hills, over which only the rising smoke of the approaching locomotive can be seen, and to the east visable to several miles of the Ninnescah. Traffic wagons have not trodden down even its principal street, where the green sward stands as high and as fresh as on the most favored spot of the open prairie. The Wichita & Western reaches the southern point of its route at this place, the engineers finding it the only practicable crossing of the high country.—Cheney Journal.

FREE TRADE ENGLAND.

A writer in the London Quarterly Review calls attention to some economic facts concerning mechanics and other workingmen in England. "They have a great deal of talk," he says, "of the progress made by England under free trade, but a thousand newspapers, books and other sources of information make them aware that the United States has made much greater improvement under protection. If there is a good argument on one side there is just as good an argument on the other. Therefore they are still in doubt; but when they come to look at the conditions under which they are required to fight the rest of the world they are no longer in doubt. Everything of foreign make may come into England duty free; nothing of English make can go into foreign markets without heavy duties. The foreigner is free; the English workman is not. This injustice strikes home deeper than it did, for the workmen sees foreign goods increasing in the shop windows of his own town, wherever that may be, and he does not like the sight. He will like it less and less as the time goes on; for no one need suppose that the weavers will succumb to "economic laws," without a murmur. They will not emigrate or 'find other work,' or permit themselves to be 'erased.' The silk industries died—or all but died—and made no sign, but the number of persons engaged in them was comparatively few. When the great time of trial comes for the cotton industries—as come it will and must—there will be a noise in England which will be heard all over the world."

The same writer says that Cobden and his coadjutors expected all the nations to follow England's example and repeal most of their custom duties. But they did not do so.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY.

Over four hundred women now practice medicine in the United States.

Miss Mary C. Lee, daughter of General R. E. Lee, is visiting in Washington.

Professor R. C. Jebb, the eminent Greek, will leave England June 12th for America.

A cablegram from Paris says Sara Bernhardt played Lady Macbeth in a white jersey, close-fitting as a glove.

It is rumored that Judge W. H. West, the blind orator of Ohio, will present Blaine's name in the convention.

An American who appreciates the work of Charlotte Bronte will place a memorial window in the old Haworth Church dedicated to her.

The London Times prints a letter from Dennis Kearney, in which the sand lot agitator invites emigrants to come to San Francisco and underbid the Chinese.

A private letter from the Hon. A. A. Sargent, lately United States Minister to Germany, states that he will return to this country about the end of next month.

Mr. Orange Judd, for many years the successful editor of the American Agriculturist, after four years of rest since his retirement from that journal, has come to Chicago and assumes editorship of the Prairie Farmer.

During a thunder shower which passed over Shirley Village, Mass., Tuesday, there fell with the rain large quantities of small stones.

A South Carolina man thinks he has discovered that a chalk-line about a barrel will keep away the ants, and is mad because the government will not give him a patent.

The New York Sabbath Committee was incorporated Friday. Its purposes are to protect and promote the observance of the Sabbath as a day of rest.

Thomas B. Connery, for many years managing editor of the New York Herald, has purchased a controlling interest in Truth, and will conduct its management hereafter.

HOME TRUTHS.

The Louisville Courier-Journal, commenting on the condition of lawlessness in that State, tells wholesome truths. We do not deal with crime as we ought, it says: We tolerate murder, and pardon vice and honor criminals if they are brave. Physical prowess is the only virtue that appeals to us. We are passionate, unreasonable, unrestrained, lawless. Society protects no man either by its recognized rules of law or by that public sentiment which gives strength and force and vitality to all written laws. Until we change all this; until murder is punished; until we educate men to look to the law for protection and vindication; until the law does what it pretends to do; what it is instituted for, we should cease our boasting, and no longer content ourselves with traits and achievements which equally distinguish the barbarous and half-civilized communities.

The Atchison Champion says: "We see no special reason for throwing mud at the recent meetings of business men in New York favoring the re-nomination of President Arthur. If a business man is no better than any other citizen, he is at least as good. It is the boast of the Republic that the man who keeps the store has the same rights as the loafer who warms a goods box in front of the establishment. Mr. Arthur is a New Yorker, he has a large acquaintance among the business men of that city, and really there is nothing to beat the breast or make moan for in a meeting of these old friends in his behalf. There are many republican editors who had better at this time be saving their ammunition. They will need the charges they are pouring into their political friends for use on the advancing enemy.

The Cleveland Leader thinks Blaine could carry Ohio if nominated. Would not the Leader be ashamed of the State if any good Republican couldn't carry it?

The democrats have been again successful in Danville, Va., by a large majority. They employed their usual campaign tactics which have been so efficacious in the past. A few days before election three white men beat a black man nearly to death just as an example of what the colored people might expect if they attempted to vote. The warning was heeded; very few of them dared come near the polls.

Brooklyn Eagle (Dem.): If Mr. Tilden has a favorite candidate he should mention him. His preference would be valuable capital for any aspirant to the nomination. Mr. Tilden, however, cannot settle such a matter with a few friends in his back parlor. Let him make known his choice and it will receive careful consideration. First of all, let him say distinctly whether he is himself a candidate. It is only by open and above board proceedings, in clear daylight, that the Democrats can hope to succeed.

Buffalo Courier (Dem.): When Mr. Lincoln was assassinated Andrew Johnson succeeded him and after a time turned Democrat and suffered the fiercest abuse from the Republican press; but so far as we know, nobody ever insinuated, even in the darkest days of his unpopularity when he was impeached before the United States Senate, that he had a share in procuring the murder of his illustrious predecessor. We think it is due to public decency that Mr. Arthur should enjoy the like immunity.

Harper County Times: "The Harper County Driving Park and Agricultural Association of Harper, Kansas," is now a fixed fact; The association owns forty acres of land, and has the greater portion of $10,000 capital stock subscribed. The ground will be laid out at once and arrangements made for holding a fair there in the fall.

We are requested by Rev. A. B. Campbell to state that the story which has been put afloat, that he had resigned the presidency of the state temperance union and accepted that of the state Sunday school association, is not true, in fact or in spirit. He has not resigned and does not intend to. Neither has he advised Judge Thacher to withdraw from his candidacy for governor, and does not know, or believe, that he has any thought of doing so.—Commonwealth.

The Driving Park of Chicago have their Spring Trotting Meeting in that city June 3d to 7th. It will be a good opportunity for visitors to the Convention to see good horses. One hundred horses are entered, and $15,000 offered in separate and special races. The office is at 216 Monroe street.
