The Changing Price Trend

With possible slight reactions at intervals, it is likely that the broad trend of prices for investment securities during the present year will be upward.

Prices for standard income-bearing securities are now as low as they are likely to be for years, and believing that an exceptional investment opportunity is now present we have prepared a Special Bulletin, making specific buying suggestions that should be of value to anyone having funds immediately available for investment.

12 Selected Dividend Payers

We have prepared a special booklet which analyzes a well diversified list of 12 representative stocks of National leading industries, listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

These securities besides offering an exceptionally high yield, show unusual prospects for market appreciation.

The yield on this combination averages more than 10%

This booklet also contains our views on the present market situation and gives reasons why we believe the above-mentioned stocks are the outstanding features of the market today.

COTTON PRICES OFF AFTER STEADINESS

Government's Estimated Record Carry Over Has Bearish Effect.

The cotton market moved sharply lower yesterday after early steadiness, selling off 48 to 62 points at the low and closing within a few points of the extreme bottom. A leading factor in bringing about the drop was a statement issued by the Bureau of Markets of the Department of Agriculture and placing the total carryover at the end of the 1920-1921 season at 9,866,208 bales, or virtually a record figure. The bureau estimated the total available for consumption and export during the season of 1920-1921 at 25,624,000 bales. The effect of that bearish statement was not felt until late in the session, when a good deal of discussion centred around it. One prominent operator was credited with selling about 25,000 bales of May.

In the small prevailing market professionals found it easy to force values lower, demand being extremely poor and limited to a little scattered profit taking by shorts. Reports of an easier spot basis in the South accelerated the afternoon drop. The list was little changed up to the start of the last hour. Values sagged a bit due to absence of buying power, but on the whole the market was without feature, many operators awaiting a turn in the cotton goods or the acreage situations. At the opening prices were unchanged to 6 points net higher on better Liverpool cables. Immediately following the call selling was heavier, the list easing about 10 to 25 points and then recovering 10.

Commission houses sold and Liverpool was on both sides. The market backed and filled in the forenoon and during the third hour. A little Wall Street selling appeared at times, promoted by the heavier securities market, the drop of foreign exchange and the advance of money. Real pressure was lacking, however, and not until late was there any marked change. Sentiment was bearish in the final hour, the result of the large carryover predicted by the Bureau of Markets. The list dropped rapidly, some near months making new low ground for the movement. Profit taking by room shorts rallied some months a few points at the low. Spot cotton was quoted as 45 points net lower at 14.30 and as 25 off in New Orleans at 14 cents.

CANADIAN FREIGHT EXCHANGE.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 31.—The Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners announced to-day that the rate of exchange in connection with freight shipments between points in Canada and the United States would be 11¼ per cent. until February 14, which means that an American dollar will be worth $1.11⅛ in Canadian money in such freight payments.

The Canadian surcharge on freight will be seven per cent. during the same period, the board announced.

CANADIAN CUSTOMS GAIN.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 31.—Canadian customs receipts for the last ten months amounted to $155,845,793, or $7,381,047 more than they did during the corresponding 1919 period, customs officials announced to-day. In the current month receipts were $8,047,754 less than they were during January, 1920.
