

SAINTS TEAR UP MORALE OF PALS AND TIE CONTEST

Thumping on the Bean Makes Senor Larzo et al. Nervous

Constant dripping of water will wear away a stone, and likewise, constant thumping on the bean will disconcert the best athlete, according to Senor Larzo, the versatile backstopper for the Pals, who stood the brunt of the attack in the battle royal at Lewis Park yesterday afternoon. Senor Larzo's consternation spread to his pals and from a safe lead of five runs the best the Pals could bring home was a tie, 5 to 5.

Five runs, scored in that wo innings which followed the first attack of the Saints' shock troops, are attributed to fear of another surprise attack, which came at the end of the eighth, but this time was centered on Mr. Poole. The Saints were getting wall-eyed under the pressure up to the beginning of the seventh. Valdez, working in great form, had not permitted a hit, and had only presented one base on balls, to Small in the fifth, while his toiling team mates had crossed the Rubicon five times on clean hitting. Being unable to pound the sphere the Saints sought relief from the pressure by thumping Mr. Larzo's dome, alleging that he caught the ball before it had a chance to bump the willow. Be that as it may, it did not help Mr. Larzo and when vengeful roar from the stands had subsided sufficiently to permit play Senor Baldez had lost his Indian sign.

Until the time of the surprise attack was staged there could be no doubt of the potency of the Castilian battery. Only twelve men faced the diminutive Valdez in the first four innings, a base on balls in the fifth breaking the sets of three up and three down, which was resumed in the sixth and brought the Saints' pressure to the pop-off stage.

Meantime the toiling Pals had amassed five behind their hurler. It looked like trouble for the enemy in the first when with one down Robinson walked and Wynne stung a double to center, Robinson taking third. Peters was due, everybody thought, but dumped one in front of the plate and Robinson was caught between the bags. Wynne overran third and was caught, Colee making both put outs unassisted.

With two gone in the third Robinson walked a gain and scored on

BROWNS SHAKE UP TO FRONT PLACE BY HARD HITTING

(By Associated Press)

New York, June 19.—Led by their slugging aces, George Sisler and Ken Williams, the St. Louis Browns, have for the moment at least, shaken themselves free of the field in the American league. They beat Ed Rommel, pitching star of the Athletics, and, as the Yankees dropped their seventh straight in losing to Cleveland, now lead by a game and a half. Williams clouted out his seventeenth home run, besides a triple, and Sisler registered a double and homer.

Waite Hoyt lasted less than an inning against the slugging Indians and, as the bats of Babe Ruth and his mates were silenced by Coveleskie, Speaker's men took the first game from the New Yorkers, 9 to 2. The veteran Tris led the onslaught with a brace of doubles and a single.

Quinn pried open the fourth with a down with a sacrifice. Hernandez threw to second to catch Quinn off the bag, the ball going to center from where McDaniels overthrew third and Quinn scored.

In the fifth, with one down, Callahan and Robinson singled and Wynne's slow one to first was tossed wide by Kuhn, Hernandez covering the bag; Callahan scoring on the play, and all hands advancing. Peters' doubled to center scored Robinson and Wynne. Quinn and Larzo grounded out to pitcher. The score, unscrambled:

Games are being arranged for with Gainesville, Perry, Madison, Live Oak, Quitman and several other good teams throughout July and August.

Rain cut short the only two games scheduled in the National league, but five innings were enough for St. Louis to halt the winning streak of the Giants, 4 to 2, while Wilber Cooper and the Pirates blanked Brooklyn, 2-0, in six innings. The result cut the lead of the Giants to five and a half games over the Cardinals.

Harry Heilmann's hitting, including four bingles in as many trips to the plate, featured Detroit's easy victory over Boston, 8-1, while Walter Johnson had the better of Urban Faber in a duel of veterans and Washington defeated Chicago, 1-0.

game in St. Augustine," Poole said, "as this is the third time I have been mobbed there, once when I was trying to take up for Red Davis, who was chased off the lot."

Bill Schwartz, old American association and Southern league player, now residing in Jacksonville, and Jimmy Maines, former South Atlantic and State league star, also residing in Jacksonville, were among the large number of Jacksonville people present who witnessed the treatment of the Palatka players, and said that in all of their experience they had never seen a more uncalled for outbreak.

The belief was freely voiced in the press box that the incident would break up Sunday baseball in St. Augustine. Only one policeman was on duty and he had as little control over the players and spectators as a pop vendor.

ing. The swimmers rounded the buoy and were seen on the return journey. Hear Screams.

They had gone only a short way when George Rowe and Willie Mexis, owner of the refreshment stand on the end of the pier, heard the girls scream.

Mexis and Rowe accompanied by friends of the two girls, ran to the yacht basin and gave the information to Louis Lancaster, who rushed to the rescue in his motor boat. He was accompanied by Glenn Whittaker and Romar LeBaron, friends of the two girls.

When they reached the swimmers Miss Buhner seemed to be carrying Miss McClatchie on her shoulder, and was practically exhausted.

The girls were about an eighth of a mile from the buoy and almost a mile from shore. The waves were running about three feet high and each wave engulfed the swimmers as the boat neared them.

Whittaker and Rowe dived overboard and rasped the unconscious girl while the others pulled Miss Buhner aboard the boat. Miss McClatchie was lifted in with difficulty. She had lost a great amount of blood from the two deep wounds, one in her upper thigh and one in the calf of her leg. The wound in the upper left thigh measured more than 14 inches long on the lower side of the leg, while gashes were made by 13 separate teeth on the upper thigh. Another deep wound extended three-fourths of the way around the calf of the leg just below the knee.

Twenty Imprints. More than 20 imprints of the fish's teeth were visible on the upper part of the leg between the two deep wounds.

Rowe said he believed the girl was dead when she was pulled in the boat, as she made no motion whatever. He said the wounds had quit bleeding when she was pulled into the boat, proving that the girl had lost enough blood to cause her death.

After Miss McClatchie had been placed in the boat, Miss Buhner worked on her in an effort to revive her. She had lost so much blood that she showed little life and was unable to talk.

Rowe worked over the girl in an effort to get out some of the water she had swallowed.

"That little girl," Rowe said, referring to Miss Buhner, "sur is a brick. She was holding Miss McClatchie out of the water when we arrived and was pulling her toward shore. She deserves a lot of credit for her nerve, as she did not know what minute the fish would return

FRIENDS HAD GIVEN UP HOPE

Mrs. Lethie Coleman, of Frankville, Ala., Amazes Everyone—Doctors Had Pronounced Her Incurable. Had Been in Bed for Five Months. Stomach Would Swell After Eating—Tried FERRALINE—Soon Relieved—Now Practically Well. Friends Astounded When She Walks Four Miles to Church—Says FERRALINE Saved Her Life. Read Her Remarkable Letter.

"I consider FERRALINE to be the most wonderful medicine on earth," says Mrs. Coleman. "Why, I have been down in bed for five months and tried all doctors that I was in reach of, but none of them did me any good. My stomach would swell up as tight as a drum, after eating, until I began taking FERRALINE, and before finishing out bottle I was greatly relieved. The doctors had pronounced me incurable, and I had given up hope of getting well again. Since taking several bottles, I am strong and well and walk four miles to church. Everyone was surprised to see me, and said they never expected to see me again. I can truthfully say that I believe FERRALINE saved my life, and wish that everyone with stomach trouble would get in touch with the Ferraline Medicine Company, because I believe they will cure them." FERRALINE is for sale at all drug stores.

and get her." The only sign of life showed by Miss McClatchie after she was taken to the Municipal pier was when she moved her leg slightly when it was accidentally touched in lifting her into the automobile which carried her to the City hospital. The machine dashed to the hospital in record-breaking time, but the girl was dead before she could be put on the operating table.

Given First Aid. Fifteen minutes after she was taken to the hospital Dr. L. Lambdin arrived. During this time nurses at the hospital had administered first aid.

After pronouncing the girl dead, Dr. Lambdin examined the wound. He said he found that the femoral artery had been severed and that the wound extended to the bone and partly through the bone of the leg.

Dr. Lambdin said he thought the girl was dead when she was placed in the boat, as the nature of the wound would cause a person to bleed to death in from 3 to 5 minutes.

Veteran anglers of the waterfront were positive in their belief that Miss McClatchie met her death Saturday afternoon as a result of being bitten by a barracuda and not by a shark as had been first reported. They ridiculed the theory of a shark attacking a swimmer. In the history of St. Petersburg, there have been no records, they said, of man-eating or leopard sharks coming this far into the bay. Another fact put forth by the guides was that if it had been a shark attacking the swimmer it would not have struck and swam away, but would have remained and continued the attack.

Stays Out in Deep Water. Marine statistics show that the barracuda is a deep water fish and will not come into shallow water.

The point in the bay where attacked the swimmer is in ship channel, running from Tampa to the entrance of the water being more than 100 feet deep, the barracuda and similar fish follow the channel up from striking at everything in the bay. The barracuda attains a length of six feet and weight of several hundred pounds. It is known as "tiger of the sea" because of its ravenous nature. The one Miss McClatchie is thought to have been of the "great barracudas," found only in Florida and Indies waters. This fish is as more dangerous than a shark as Cuba its flesh is reputed to be sharp knife.

Three Americans Competing for a British Title

(By Associated Press) Sandwich, June 19.—Qualifying play in the British open golf championship tournament was started today under ideal weather conditions. A gentle west wind swept the two courses—the Prince's and Royal St. George's—and the turf was in excellent condition, having benefited from recent rains. More than 200 competitors hoped to qualify in this, the eighty turning in the lowest card greatest golfing event of the year for today's and tomorrow's medal play will be eligible for the match play on Thursday and Friday. Jack Hutchison, the American who won the open last year, is defending his title and the United States is represented by two other strong players in Jim Barnes and Walter Hagen. The Prince's course measures 6,542 yards and the Royal St. George's 6,616. Hagen had a most successful round, turning in a card of 75. He went out in 37, taking the first six holes in fours, and playing superb golf. He was able to do the homeward trip in 38, despite his lack of luck with several long putts.
