DULL MARKET IN COTTON CONTINUES

Local Give and Take and Evening Up by Wall Street Feature Trading.

The cotton market continued yesterday to be dormant and uninteresting. It was a session of local give and take and evening up by Wall Street professionals. Little headway was made. The volume of new business was, perhaps, smaller than it had been at any time in the present season, the market opening with a bulge of 3 to 9 points, and then slipping slightly on prospects of more favorable weather to-day. The closing range was narrow with two months unchanged and others 6 points lower to a point higher.

The market's opening touch of firmness was due to two factors, the one an official weather map showing scattered showers over much of the eastern and central belts and the other betterment of Liverpool cables, which were higher than looked for. Liverpool futures prices were due to be a penny point to 4½ penny points net higher, but opened 7 to 8 points up, and at the time of the Wall Street call had advanced 9 to 13 points. Manchester demand for the actual was fair, about 10,000 bales changing hands, with a decline of 19d. for middling.

One of the features was the heavy export movement, total day's clearances amounting to more than 50,000 bales. Doubtless those large exports would be more of a market factor were it not for the fact that a large proportion has been shipped out on consignment. At the moment the bigger operators are simply standing by and doing little or nothing in the market. The proximity of the extended Easter holidays is also keeping down the volume.

The National Ginners' Association's report, issued yesterday, placed total consumption of cotton by domestic mills in March at 524,000 bales, in contrast to 488,000, the Census Bureau's estimate of consumption in February. The trade thought the report a little too high.

The local spot market was net unchanged at 17.90 cents. The New Orleans spot market was 13 points lower at 16.50 cents for middling.
