REIGN OF THE RULER OF AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

The illness of Emperor Joseph, which undobtedly will have a fatal termination arouses a new interest in the strange history of the country over which he has reigned for so long a time. The emperor, if he should live, will in a short time celebrate the seventy-eighth anniversary of his birth and the sixtieth of his coronation. He was a mere youth of eighteen when he began his career as emperor and ascended a throne which had been so rudely shaken that his uncle, Emperor Ferdinand, was eager to abandon it. The young emperor was a child of the Holy Alliance, that union of sovereigns who after the downfall of Napoleon, had constituted themselves the champions of the principles of absolute monarchy. When he ascended the throne of Austria, Europe was lit by the flames of the great popular uprisings of 1848 against the tyranny which the enforcement of this principle had involved. Hungary in Austria was fighting for a representative government. Francis Joseph showed in a short time his determination to enforce the policy in which Austria had been foremost, and he began the execution of plans which finally resulted in erasing for twelve years the name of Hungary from the map of Europe.

Even at this very early age Francis Joseph showed that he had inherited the true Hapsburgh spirit, the spirit of a family that never produced men of the higher intellectual powers or of the higher qualities of the heart. Yet from the time that Rodolph, count of Hapsburgh, was elected emperor in the Thirteenth Century, it was a family which possessed remarkable vitality. Through a victory over the king of Bohemia Rodolph acquired the duchy of Austria, and from that time the House of Hapsburgh was the House of Austria. In the course of the centuries one coronet after another was plucked by the House of Austria, and yet in all this long period Austria never became a nation.

During the first years of his reign the young emperor would have crushed Hungary and completely destroyed its national spirit. For a time he succeeded in apparently accomplishing this result, and in 1851 Austria became a pure despotism. But by bitter lessons, by misfortunes of war and by financial disasters, the Austrian government perceived that it was futile to attempt to reconstruct the empire without taking into due consideration the national aspirations of Hungary, which had never had ceased to cry out and struggle for freedom. Kossuth and other Hungarians aroused in other countries a sympathy for the Magyars, one of the proudest races that ever inhabited the earth, and the emperor lost the moral support of other nations. In place of a centralized Austrian empire, a dual Austro-Hungarian monarchy was substituted, which was a federation of two equal states under the common rule of a single sovereign.

The emperor who is now so near death's door, has been a man of great misfortunes and griefs. The House of Austria has contained more tragedies and scandals of the worst sort than any other European reigning house. He has time and again been compelled to bear the brunt of the acts of the dissolute and degenerates and it is no wonder that his once proud spirit was crushed till he was willing to listen to the pleas of Hungary.

It is idle speculation to write what effect his death will have upon Europe. It is known that Hungary does not like Prince Ferdinand who will succeed to the throne, but whether it will give outward manifestations of its hatred remains to be seen.

A hobo brought before an Oklahoma judge thought he would be funny and gave the name of John D. Rockefeller. The judge was no less funny and fined the culprit $29,400,000. As the tramp did not have that amount of change in his pockets he was directed to dig in a city trench for two days.

A boy in Butler, Mo., 6 years old, smokes from four to six strong cigars a day, the father permitting it in the hope he will be made sick. Something in the line of a big heavy strap would probably make him sicker.

A Goldfield (Nev.) dispatch says: "A $400,000 hotel is shortly to be opened opposite a row of buildings that would be regarded in the East as hardly fit for dogs." They have never seen Eastern dogs out that way.

Robinson, Kan., is very proud of one of its girls, who shaves her father and two brothers every Sunday. The sympathy in the case should be extended to the men in the chair.

Secretary Taft evidently has read the papers. He has issued orders that liquor be eliminated from all social functions given for him in Manila. No cocktail incident for him.

The New York police is much mystified over the disappearance of a burglar who went through a skylight and vanished. Perhaps he used modern methods and had an airship awaiting him.

The Cincinnati motorman who turned the electricity on in full force while going down a steep hill must have been a chaffeur once upon a time.

Lost—Somewhere in this big world a large earthquake full of 'quakes. Information as to its whereabouts will be thankfully received by scientists generally.

This is the open season for shooting stars. They make poor excuses for remaining out late at night, however, as they can be seen as easily from home as from the street.

A head line reads "Mark Twain Figures in Suit." Wonder if it is the famous white ones or perhaps he has something new?

The new Chicago city clerk wants every employee in his office to be at his desk for eight hours. His proper place is in a museum.

Now it is up to man who dug up all the awful things about George Washington to ascertain if Adam did anything worse than eat an apple.

A Harvard professor declares that aversion to work is an illness. There is a big lot of mighty ill people floating through life.

The old songs, "Up in a Balloon, Boys," and "Wait Till the Clouds Roll By," should be favorites in St. Louis this week.

Talk about revenge. This Brooklyn woman got it. She said: "If my husband ran away with that scrawny old thing, he must be crazy."

Says the Charleston News and Courier: "The idea of Virginia wines being good enough for South Carolina palate." Hope you will always have as good.

Pretty girls should leave their pictures around loose. A Milwaukee maiden did; a rich Mexican saw it, died, and in his will left her $40,000, though he had never seen the original.

WITH THE PARAGRAPHERS

Mr. Bryan makes 16 speeches in Kentucky in three days and undoes the results of a year's hostile sapping and mining by Colonel Waterson. No wonder the Colonel is calling lustily for the formation of new parties and the initiation of a new ideal in politics.—New York Tribune.

When Secretary Taft insisted upon a banquet without cocktails he probably suspected that the kind of things they mix in the Philippines would not help any one's Presidential boom.—Philadelphia Press.

It is not expected that the attempt of the people of Hattiesburg, Miss., to confine alien pupils to separate schools will necessitate a naval demonstration in the Gulf of Mexico.—New York World.

At least, the President may depend upon the stanch support of Senator Foraker in his effort to prevent a Roosevelt stampede in the next Republican convention.—Washington Herald.

Can Secretary Taft, by abstaining from cocktails and consuming large quantities of ice water, make up for his refusal to stop Sunday baseball in the army.—New York Sun.

It is to be hoped that an anti-Japanese brickbatfest may not be among the features of San Francisco's welcome to the fleet.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Some great financiers look most imposing before they are found out.—Chicago News.

Why not bring Mr. Muldoon to Washington and save on expense accounts.—Washington Times.

There are still people rash enough to assert that Mark Twain is the real literary discoverer of the Mississippi river.—Washington Star.

With an injunction in one hand and a four-ounce glove in the other, Mr. Fish is sure to give Mr. Harriman a run for his money.—Indianapolis Star.

ECZEMA NEARLY ALL HIS LIFE

Face and Neck Affected—Itching At Night Was Unbearable—Attended By Six Doctors—Used Arsenic Treatment Three Months, But

FOUND CUTICURA THE ONLY CURE

"I had suffered nearly all my life with eczema of the face and neck. It troubled me mostly at night when the itching would become unbearable and kept me awake a good part of each night. I had at least six doctors at different times attending me, but none of them could effect a permanent cure. One of them gave me arsenic and I tried that for three months, but it did little good, if any. I read a Cuticura advertisement in the paper about one year ago and decided to try the treatment. I used only two cakes of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura Ointment, and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. It gave me great relief, but after I had stopped using it for a month the eczema came back. As the Cuticura treatment was the only thing that gave me any relief I started it again and persisted with it until I was entirely cured, which took from five to six months, and I have not been troubled since. I still use the soap as it has such good healing qualities and does not irritate the skin as the general run of soap does. I highly recommend the Cuticura Remedies to any one troubled with skin or scalp diseases of any kind. E. W. McPhail, 1511 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 29 and Feb. 13, 1907."

DRY THIN HAIR

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood.
