WOODVILLE:

SATURDAY, JANUARY 6, 1844.

To the Patrons of the Woodville Republican.

The undersigned having disposed of the printing establishment of the Woodville Republican, to Messrs. Seale & Leatherman, in bidding adieu to the public acknowledge the gratitude due them, for the liberal patronage extended to us.—Were we inclined to compliments, we could with the most unalloyed sincerity say more than we have, to our former patrons—but compliments have become so common, and practiced so often by the deceptive, that we almost fear to use them. Therefore, kind patrons, we bid you adieu without further ceremony—recommending our successors to your favorable consideration and patronage.

The Editor, on his part, in taking leave of his brethren declares, that he has no unkind feeling to any of them although it is true, now and then they have had tolerably rough controversies.—Adieu brethren of the quill and the Press.

WM. A. NORRIS & CO.

January 2, 1844.

In the assumption of our editorial duties and responsibilities, the Public, to whom we look for encouragement and support, has a right to know what are the principles upon which the Woodville Republican is to be conducted. Our leading purposes, we will give in as few words as may be.

Believing that our country has suffered more from extreme partizanship, than she is ever likely to do from political indifference, party politics will not be the prominent feature of our Journal. The farmer that produces a bushel of potatoes, the mechanic who perfects one labor-saving machine, or useful article, the merchant that by exchange of commodities adds to the convenience, and saves the time of the community, confers upon it a greater blessing than any mere politician can do, though he dash his party rowells into the streaming flanks of his hobby-horse, Ambition, and ride rough shod into power. Agriculture is the interest of this section; and its advancement shall be our first object.

Nor will the claims of the mechanic be forgotten. The world has been slow to acknowledge its indebtedness for comfort, for convenience, for wealth, for happiness, to the patient toil, the indomitable perseverence, the successful invention of this class of society. God was the first mechanic, and we shall take pleasure in advancing the interests of his journeymen.

We mean to make our paper a fitting family visitor, a miscellaneous compendium of chaste, selected and original matter, upon Science, Literature, the Arts, Epistles, News, and Politics. We wish it to be a benefit to the Planter, the Clergy, the Faculty, the Bar; and not unwelcome to the teacher, the mechanic and the merchant. In politics, as intimated before, we intend to be moderate but firm. While we believe in the fundamental principles of the whig party, deeming their success and the permanent prosperity of the country identical, we freely yield to others differing from us the same right we claim of thinking and judging each for himself, of principles, acts and men. We trust to show no bigotry in politics, and shall endeavor to avoid subjects about which the wisest heads differ.

In pursuing our course, we shall endeavor to avoid all disagreeable personalities. Private life and the social circle shall be sacred. In fine, we want our paper to be a concentrating lens, thro' whose medium the different members and localities of our country may converge rays of intellectual and useful light.

We are in our young noviciate. Our editorial robe may hang rather loosely about us for a while, but we hope by experience, industry and sufficient mental food, to grow up to the full size of typical manhood, and fill up roundly, the ample folds of the garment just thrown about us. Bear with us a little, good friends, and we promise to do our very best to serve you.

FRANKLIN SOULE.

January 6, 1844.

☞We intend procuring immediately, new heading and type for our paper, and shall try to progress in improvement as fast as our means will allow. Will our friends do what they can for us by obtaining subscribers, &c., to encourage and support us in our undertaking?

LYCEUM.

Where are the choice spirits of our Lyceum? Do the Muses slumber? Where are our orators, our essayists, our poets, our lecturers? Is the institution dead? If so, let some one be appointed to pronounce its eulogium—some one to indite its elegy. If it be alive, come up to its rescue. Give it breath, and blood, pulse, and life. Let us have a meeting. Let us have a lecture. Let us brush the dust from its robe, and put upon its head a new chapeau. The transient shower that December gave us has passed away; the mud is being dried, teamsters, travellers, and pedestrians, generally, are emerging from their temporary burial; horsemen travel now on the earth, and not, as for the last five weeks, in it, the moon looks pleasantly down every evening; young gentlemen in love, long to see her reflected from beautiful eyes on their way to and from Lyceum; those that are not tender about the heart feel no particular opposition to becoming so—the ladies, bless them, love eloquence: why are we idle? Mr. Secretary, be stirring. Anno Domini 1844, is to be a year of wonders.—Let the Lyceum begin the ball, and eclipse Miller's prophecies, by giving pleasure and doing good. Writers cannot lack subjects for their pens—there is enough to praise, enough to blame, to supply all the book makers with themes for an age to come.

The State Fair of Louisiana is to be held at Baton Rouge on the 8th and 9th instant. How many good citizens of Wilkinson county are intending to be there. It will undoubtedly be a magnificent exhibit. The editor of this paper intends, if possible to be there, and then be excluded from actual observation to prepare a part of the proceedings. It would be a fine opportunity for the members of our own Society, to be present and enjoy the opportunities of the occasion.

Communication.

The Editor of the Woodville Republican is requested to give notice to his numerous patrons, that on Monday next, at 11 o'clock, there will be a meeting of the citizens of Woodville to take into consideration the propriety of petitioning the Legislature to modify or abolish the corporation of the town.

January 5, 1844.

Fire.—The dwelling house occupied by Dr. Martin in the eastern part of this village, was totally consumed by fire on Tuesday night last. The fire must have originated in the pantry or room adjoining, and such progress had the flames made at 12 o'clock, when first discovered, that it was all the family could do, to save themselves. Nothing was saved from the ruins, except about $115 in gold pieces, picked out of the ashes on the following morning. So hot had been their situation, that a part of them were melted together. Dr. Martin lost all his furniture, clothing, &c.,—we know not their value, probably $2500. The house worth $3000, had no insurance.

Would it not be a good idea for the citizens of Woodville, while the recent fire is fresh in their memories, to form a good and efficient Fire Company? We are not aware that there exists one here at present, and if not, the matter seems to demand consideration. At present, the village is pretty much at the mercy of the elements.—Should a fire break out on the public square, and a fresh breeze assist it, what could save the village? Had we an organized company, the engine would be kept in order, and ready for use, or a new one, perhaps, be procured. Hooks, and ladders, and hose are needed, and though the whole mater is more particularly a corporation necessity, yet no doubt the county would liberally assist, since it has no small interest in the safety of the Court-house, and other public property.—We wish not to be obtrusive, but would suggest to the honorable powers that be, the propriety of considering the matter.

Marshal Bertrand—This old soldier has sailed for France. He carries with him the respect, admiration and good wishes, not only of those who honor the hero, the brave commander, the successful warrior, but also the cordial good feelings of every man that can appreciate friendship and fidelity of the first water. Whatever difference of opinion may exist regarding Napoleon, there can be none about the truthfulness of Bertrand's attachment to him. From the camp of Bolongne in 1804, he was with his Emperor and friend, in fortune and in exile, in battle and in palace, by the Danube and the Rhine, sharing his retirement at Elba, his return to Paris, his bloody defeat at Waterloo, and closing his eyes on rocky St. Helena. There is truly in this devotedness, something of the sublime, and great is its contrast with the conduct of the heartless crowd that deserted so readily in his extremity, him whose breath had made them.

ern Clarion" of November 25, 1843, and the "Weekly Aurora" of November 15, 1843!!—These papers are published at Paulding, Miss, and have been only six or eight weeks in making their passage. Now our geographical knowledge does not tell us precisely how far from us, these same respectable sheets are issued; but we have a shrewd guess in our heads, that it cannot be over five hundred miles, since the town of Paulding, we believe, is at the head of the Boughomo, some considerable distance this side of Alabama.

If the sound of the "Clarion," and the light of "Aurora" cannot travel faster than this, something must be wrong in the atmosphere here in Mississippi, or, did we not have the authority of John Jones, that Mr. Tyler and his cabinet are perfect pinks, we might suppose something foggy in the air at Washington. Can any one suggest a better reason.

HOW TO MAKE GREAT BEATS.

Turn up the ground with spade, hoe, or plough. Pulverize and throw into beds in the usual way, then with a wooden pin shaped like a beet or bodkin, from three to six inches in diameter, and from ten to fifteen long, make holes in the bed at suitable distances. Fill them with soft earth and rich manure mixt together, into which transplant the young beet or plant the seed. Those that carefully try this method will be surprised at the rapidity of growth and size of beets thus cultivated. In our rambles in Maine, we were shown a beet raised in this manner weighing sixteen pounds and ten ounces. It was produced in the garden of Mr. Elisha Bennet, of Freeport, Me., and truly exceeded in its Goliah proportions, any vegetables of its species, we have ever seen. Mr B. said that he could raise beets of any reasonable dimensions, by this process, and from the specimens he exhibited, we can readily believe him.

Mr Clay at the St. Charles Theatre—Mr Clay visited the St Charles Theatre last night by invitation. The House was crowded, and he was received with a burst of enthusiastic welcome, which plainly shows how the man is estimated by the people, even by those who differ from the statesman. He retired as soon as the play was ended, and was again greeted by the most lively and cheering demonstrations of respect.—Tropic.

OBITUARY

"Death and are the dead?"

In this town on Monday the 26th ult, Mary B. Consort of Mr. Hayes Chapman, aged 20 years, after a brief and sudden illness. In this calamitous providence the vanity of earthly hopes and mortal joys is painfully revealed. But a few short weeks, and she who sleeps "that sleep which knows no waking," rest a lovely sleeper at the home of childhood, and guided by the star of love turned her steps to the far distant South. Yet scarcely has the bridal wreath faded from her brow, ere the form which it adorned, is straight-ened for the grave. The nuptial shroud has displaced the festal vesture, and the congratulation and the smiles of friends are changed to the wail of grief, and the tear of sorrow. Yet to those who mourn, the dismal darkness of death is illumined by the smile of Hope, as hovering over the grave of our loved one, she points to that glorious realm where the flowers that have faded here, bloom again in brighter hues and unfading glory. Long shall memory hallow the spot of her repose, and its fresh mound shall be moistened by many a tear. May he who "tempers the wind to the shorn lamb" support her bereaved companion in this hour of desolation and gloom.—[Communicated.

Stray Horse.

STRAYED from the subscriber about three weeks since, a bright bay horse, about six years old, has lost the sight of the right eye, but would not be noticed without close examination, left hind foot white, long tail, 14 1-2 or 15 hands high. The point of one hip has been broken, which may be discovered to be lower than the other, by close observation. I will give five dollars to any person who will deliver the horse to me in this place.

There strayed from this place at the same time and probably in company with my horse, an old bay horse low in flesh and marked with harness

WOODVILLE MALE ACADEMY.

THIS institution will commence its next regular session on the first day of January 1844, under the superintendence of Messrs. Chapman & Thayer. In appealing for patronage to the public, the undersigned rely alone upon the success which has attended their former efforts in teaching. Each year will be divided into four terms of eleven weeks each, with a vacation of one week after each, except the third, which will be succeeded by a respite of four weeks. The course of instruction will embrace not only the fundamental principles of an English education, but also the higher branches of mathematics including Algebra, Geometry, Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, Navigation and Surveying. In the department of languages, Latin and Greek, French and Spanish. Particular attention will be bestowed upon the training of those in preparation for Clioeys.

Tuition in ordinary English studies per term, $10 00
" " College, mathematics, extra, 2 00
" " Ancient and modern languages, extra, 5 00

Those pursuing the study of the languages will not be charged extra for mathematics. At the close of each term, bills will be forwarded to patrons for payment, and it is hoped they may receive an immediate and particular share of attention. No deduction will be made for those not entering within two weeks of the opening of each term; nor will allowance be made for any absence except when occasioned by sickness.

Testimonials of character and abilities will be submitted to patrons, if desired.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Wilkinson County. | Circuit Court, October Term, 1843.

John McKee, vs. John F. Logan.

IT appearing to the satisfaction of the Court, here, that the defendant in this case has removed out of this State, it is therefore ordered that all proceedings herein, be stayed for the space of six months from the first day of the present October Term of this Court—and that notice of the Attachment herein be given, by inserting a copy of this order in the Woodville Republican, a newspaper printed and published in the town of Woodville, in this County, once a week for the space of four weeks successively. And unless the said defendant shall appear, give special bail, and plead herein, on or before the first day of our next April term of this Court, Judgment will be entered against him, and the effects in the Garnishees hands disposed of towards satisfying plaintiff's debt, interest and costs."

A true copy from the minutes of said Court, issued this 18th day of December, A. D., 1843.
