A TURN FOR THE BETTER IN GRAIN— PRICES SOME BETTER.

THERE WAS A GOOD UNDERTONE OF STRENGTH TO THE SPECULATIVE WHEAT MARKET.

AND THE CLOSE WAS HIGHER.

CORN WAS QUIET, BUT HELD UP STRONGLY ALL DAY, A GOOD ADVANCE BEING SCORED.

OATS BUT LITTLE CHANGED.

Office Republic,
Thursday, January 11, 1900.

The speculative situation in this country, outside of New York stocks, was greatly changed this morning, and there was much to encourage believers and advocates of higher prices. Stocks were extremely weak and sharply off in price from the outset and closed lower for the day, but grain and cotton were in quite a bullish mood and scored lower for the day, not extra during the day, though they were unable to maintain the top figures to the close. There was, however, an almost complete change of front, especially in the cereal situation, which was substantially strong, the developments throughout the day being of a character to inspire the bulls and correspondingly depress the bears. Corn was almost uninterruptedly strong this market undergoing fewer changes than other grains. Wheat was also much less unsettled, and the changes in price were confined to narrow and unimportant ranges a good portion of the time. Speculation, as usual, was mainly professional, few outside orders being received and the day was marked by periods of both dullness and activity, though, to tell the truth, there was more of the former than the latter, the general improved condition of the market not increasing speculation to any material extent.

Taking the local wheat market as a whole there was much to encourage traders, and particularly those who were still of the belief that it was only a question of a short time when much better prices would rule. The bulls not only recovered their loss of yesterday, but came through the ordeal with colors flying. The short and long account was greatly altered, the former being cut down, and the latter considerably augmented. It wasn't a walkover for the bulls by any means, they meeting at times with stubborn resistance and receiving a number of setbacks, with the result that considerable irregularity was witnessed in values. They appeared to hold the winning hand, however, though there was nothing strikingly encouraging in the way of news at any time this morning. There were no take-war telegrams sprung on traders today, which was a good thing, and the market was influenced only by legitimate factors, some of which were distinctly favorable and others were not. There were numerous ups and downs during the day, but the bulls seemed to have more confidence, and although unable to hold top prices they succeeded in closing the market with a net gain of ¼c all around. The opening was not encouraging, to say the least, and during the first half hour the market was tame and uninteresting, but there was more strength than weakness as the pressure, such as it was, leaned more to the buying rather than the selling side, though it was remarked that traders got all they bid for, a fact that caused them to go a little slow. This early buying was in response to a statement in the morning press that there were rumors that Ladysmith had surrendered, and too the cables, which reported London and Liverpool ½d higher in the face of our let-down of yesterday. English consols were unchanged, which was a practical denial of the Ladysmith story and the cash situation here and abroad was still dull. Again the Cincinnati Price Current crop report was not unfavorable, neither was the weather, though there were prospects that it would turn considerably colder. Receipts at primary points were small, but there was nothing especially encouraging about the arrivals in the Northwest or at other Western markets. Later advices were no more encouraging for the bulls than for the bears, but there were no fresh bear influences. Liverpool closed at 1¼c early advance of ¾d, but Paris was 1c lower, Berlin and Buda Pesth were ½c lower and Antwerp unchanged. The exports from the ports for abroad were 386,000 bu., making the total for the week so far, 2,154,000 bu. in flour and wheat.

The opening dealings here were at ⅛c advance for May at 59c, from which there was a let-down to 68⅞c followed by a rally to 69⅛@69⅜c. After an interval that option fell back to 68⅞c again, only to react to 69⅛c and back to 69c. In the meantime July received bids of 67⅝@67¾c, and afterwards was offered for sale at 67¾c. Another period of quietness followed and then May made a spurt that set the pit wild for a short time, that option going to 70⅛c, but as the backing was not sufficient to hold it the bears got in the figure, it weakened and went down almost as quickly as it went up and touched the low point of the day, 69⅝c, this rise and fall having been brought about by a sharp spurt and collapse at Chicago. Nothing that could be considered in any way encouraging in the cash situation was heard, but it was plainly to be seen that the sentiment was leaning to the bull side, and that the market was largely oversold was strongly believed. The buying was very good on the last decline and May in a short time sold back to 70¼c, and the close for this option was ⅛@¼c higher for the day, at 70⅛@¼c buyers, July at the same time closing ⅛c better, at 67⅝c bid, and Jan. also ⅛c up, at 65c bid.

A very steady market with a good undertone of strength was witnessed in the local corn market this morning, and it held up remarkably well all through the entire session. The expected increase in the receipts at Western markets did not materialize, the weather being very much against farmers' deliveries. According to the readings this morning the total was 674,000 bu., against 915,000 bu. one year ago, and shipments 282,000 bu. Clearances from the Atlantic and Gulf were light at 40,000 bu., making 2,250,000 bu. for the week so far. Besides the receipts, very light accompanies were reported from farmers to bids sent out from here. These influences had a strengthening effect right at the outset and so worked up the shorts that they at once commenced to buy, paying 32c for May and bidding 32⅛@32⅜c later, which was an advance of ⅛c above yesterday's closing price. There was nothing that could be considered as encouraging in the cables, which reported quiet markets, with Liverpool up ½d, however, for futures. There was also little export business. Still the situation here remained firm and May sold up to 32⅞c and closed ⅛@¼c better for the day at that. No. 2 white May having 32⅞c bid. Jan. was nominal at 29½c.

Although the speculative market for oats was largely neglected the greater part of the day, it was firm, in sympathy with other grains. May was the only thing to attract attention and it sold at 23⅞c, at which it closed buyers. Jan. was nominally ⅛c higher, at 24⅞c. The receipts at Western markets to-day amounted to 399,000 bu., against 295,000 bu. a year ago. The shipments were 289,000 bu., and the clearances 37,000 bu.

On the Curb: St. Louis, 2:30 p. m.—May wheat, 70⅛c bid; puts, 70c bid; calls, 70⅛@70¼c.

Chicago—May wheat: Puts, 67⅝c; calls, 68⅛@68⅜c. May Corn—Puts and calls, 32⅞@33⅛c.

A late cable from Rosario, Argentine, says the wheat crop secured in good condition.

Trade Notes.

—The Chicago Trade Bulletin, in its report on the world's available supply of breadstuffs at the beginning of 1900, makes the stock in this country and in Canada 122,196,000 bu., a decrease of 30,000 bu. during December, and 68,000 bu. after allowance for an European stock, a decrease of 2,340,000 bu. last month. This total is now 36,196,000 bu., which is 43,120,000 bu. larger than on January 1, 1899. There was an increase a year ago during December of 11,265,000 bu., whereas last month there was 2,208,000 bu. decrease.

—If the Chicago Trade Bulletin's estimate is correct that 284,000,000 bu. wheat and flour were held in this country on January 1, then no one need be alarmed over prospects for a scarcity of supplies before another crop is harvested. Allowing fullest outside requirements from foreign and domestic sources, this country could still enter another crop year with a very considerable amount on hand—in sight and on the field.

—The Cincinnati Price Current says: "Week mild and wet. Wheat crop situation mainly favorable. Reports from Ohio, Indiana and a few elsewhere unfavorable. Roads generally muddy. Corn in interior points firm and generally above a shipping basis. Wheat markets dull.

—A special Broomhall cable stated that arrivals of wheat likely to continue light, but market influenced by fear of Argentine shipments. Broomhall thinks they will not be heavy before March.

—All the intelligence coming in from the country, whether by pulse or private report, shows the farmers are not willing to meet the prices markets are bidding and are selling very little. This supply question is primarily in the country west of the Mississippi, where the stock feeding demand continues unabated. East of the river, especially in Illinois, farmers are selling, though for the most part only half, supply funds are derived from their deliveries.

—Northwestern markets estimate corn stocks at 8,000,000 bu. Receipts here for this week, but, with the exception of the Chicago elevator stock, tend to be decreasing. Prospect, unless a change will be seen in the visible, from four days' supply to two days' supply.

—This week's exports of flour and wheat should exceed the 2,000,000 bu. reported by Broomhall as last week's aggregate, very considerable, during corresponding week last year these shipments were 3,000,000 bu.

—To-day's receipts of wheat at the primary markets were 600,000 bu., against 1,000,000 last Thursday, 400,000 bu. one year ago and 300,000 bu. two years ago.
