The District Prevented From Extending Its System of Wires.

The present law forbids the erection of overhead electric wires, and as the Commissioners have no appropriation out of which to lay underground wires the situation is getting somewhat serious. Superintendent Miles of the District Fire alarm and Telegraph Service has called the Commissioners' at tention to the necessity of rebuilding the branch lines of the fire alarm service from headquarters at Fifth and D streets through the northwest part of the city and Georgetown. He suggests that if there is any reasonable doubt about the securing of sufficient appro-priation at the present session of Con-gress to put all the wires underground that at least $75,000 should be secured at once, so that the usefulness of the fire-alarm and police telegraph may be kept efficient in that portion of the city. He says he knows of no other way by which its efficiency can be maintained.

He Will Have the Old Seward Man, sion Renovated. Mr. Blaine, it is stated by a friend, has taken the house formerly occupied by Secretary Seward on Lafayette Square, diagonally opposite the White-House, and next door to Senator Cameron. It has been used for years as the office of the Commissary General of the Army, and as such has fallen into bad condition. Mr. Blaine will improve it so as to make it better than it ever was before. There is no house between the Seward mansion and the White House. The house is directly across the park from the one in which Mr. Blaine formerly lived.

The Alexandria White Caps Again. According to the statement of Mr. Wil-liam Webster of Alexandria, son of the Captain of Police, he was standing on the corner of Royal and Queen streets on Friday night last when two men approached him wearing white caps and masks. One, a tall muscular fellow, with a deep bass voice, proceeded to make himself known by selzing Mr. Webster by the collar and telling him that he had been idle so long that the association deemed it necessary to give him a more active circulation of the blood by administering thirty isshes upon his back. The two then started to lead him off, when Mr. Webster, who was at first inclined to submit to their demands and see the matter through, struck the foremost in the face, felling him to the ground. A scuffle ensued, when six other men, wearing white caps, furned the corner coming toward their comrades. At sight of the reinforcements Webster broke away and ran to police head-quarters where he reported the circumstance. night last when two men approached him

She had re-flected upon the purposes and hindrances of the work, and had long since concluded of the work, and had long since concluded that the best means of promoting the cause was to bring all to reflect upon the evil of intemperance and the importance of the work. The church could do this. Therefore the church should interest itself in the temperance movement, which was a phllanthropic effort to elevate and ennoble mankind.

The Coming Prize Fight. Sporting men about town are discussing he coming prize fight between Childs and Northridge. Both men are in excellent con Northridge. Both men are in excellent condition and training assiduously. Although Childs is comparatively an unknown, his friends are so sanguine of his success that they are offering odds on him. More money has been wagered on the result of this contest than on any previous one for some time, and so much interest is taken in it that already half a dozen men have declared their intention of challenging the winner. Until the Childs-Northridge fight is settled, there is little possibility of arranging a match between Young and Mc-Millan. Young has challenged the Englishman twice, accompanying his challenge with a forfeit, and offering McMillan every advantage that he could ask. So far Mc-Millan has not paid any attention to the challenges.

of the Wonderful Performance Joe Darby, the recognized champion jumper of the world, an exchange says, is now giving exhibitions at the Westminster Aquarium in London. After each perform ance his manager chellenges any man in the world to jump from two to twenty standing jumps for any amount of money.

world to jump from two to twenty standing jumps for any amount of money.

During the week John F, Hartnett, the great Eastern jumper, who halls from Doedham, Mass., has accepted this sweeping challenge. If Darby will give him one foot in two standing jumps he will make a match for $500 a side, and give or take $100 for expenses. Hartnett will jump in any city in the United States within two months, but can not go to England before March.

The fact that Hartnett will not jump an even match shows what a champion Darby is. While Buffalo Bill was abroad this year be had with him the recognized standing broad jumping champion of America, George Hamilton, who holds the world's record. Cody made a match with Darby for Hamilton and Darby won easily.

During his exhibitions in London Darby has cleared in two standing jumps twenty-six feet two inches, making a new record. In two back jumps he cleared insteen feet. He has cleared six feet in a running hip jump. His most wonderful performance was three jumps of thisty-six feet three inches, on the last jump clearing the head of a mau seated on a chair.

As a trick jumper it is doubtful if Darby ever had an equal. In a broad jump with weights he has cleared seven chairs in a row. One of his favorite tricks is to jump from an ordinary brick, jumping over a chair, nod landing on an upturned brick without knocking either down.

Darby's challenge is open to the world. In case no one in England is anxious to jump this wonder, he will visit America and give Hartnett of Boston and Hamilton a chance to make money and glory.
