BOERS' PROBABLE PLANS.

London, Jan. 30.—Mr. Spencer Wilkinson, in the Morning Post, says:

"Defeat is bitter. But it is right to face it and to take reasonable means to turn it into victory. It is wrong to try to conceal it from ourselves.

"The initiative is now again with the Boer commander, and the question is, what will he do next? He will either act against Ladysmith or against General Buller. In the latter case, pursuit would be useless, for when the British force is once across the river again, it would be impracticable, as a small rear guard could prevent pursuit. Much more probable would be an attack on Chieveley before the return of the main body. Either that or a fresh assault on Ladysmith may be recorded in a day or two."

Mr. Wilkinson then proceeds to point out the groundlessness of fears that strategic suggestions made in England might be useful to the enemy. He says the censorship stands in the way of any such benefit to the Boers and that moreover, if the Boer Generals want suggestions, they can easily get them from the German press.

As such matters are likely to come under the attention of Parliament, he discusses at length questions of artillery and the like, concluding as follows:

"The measures now urgently needed are the development of the military resources of the country by the initiative of the Government. With 200,000 men in the field and 50,000 to follow, the moment has come to push on the training of all troops left at home and to raise further troops to supply the further needs of the campaign."

The Westminster Gazette invites the country to cast aside all delusions and recognize the fact that progress, for the present, is stopped in Natal and that safety lies in concentration. General White's force, as an effective aid, must be written off, and probably most of General Buller's army has left the Tugela.

"The Boers have been given time to prepare against an advance through the Free State, and we have not sufficient strength, at present, to undertake this advance with [illegible]

TWO MOVEMENTS PLANNED.

[illegible]

GOURKO AT PRETORIA.

London, Jan. 30.—The correspondent of the Morning Post at Lourenzo Marquez telegraphs yesterday:

[illegible] the Transvaal capital, the Russian Army of Observation, under the command of General Gourko, has arrived at Pretoria. The Russian officers are treated with the greatest consideration by the Boers. They are [illegible] the Transvaal, up to the present, has been [illegible] Russian officers are [illegible] Pretoria. Mr. Reitz, the State Secretary, has [illegible] Gourko at the port Alice Dorset was awarded to the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

"The object of my visit, however, and Miss Gonne, is to attempt something here in favor of the Boers. I have spent in France, Germany and in Holland, and everywhere have found expressions of sympathy that America was not foremost in championing the Boers. They are struggling for liberty, they are fighting as you did for independence. I believe that the sentiment of the world is in favor of the Boers in a way which will do all in its power to help them.

"Another reason that I am here is to remind the duty of sentiment between the Irish in America and the Irish in Ireland. The sentiment is so strong now in Ireland that they do not dare to publicly express it in the main street for fear of being more flayed and peppered. The present time is the best that Ireland has ever had to strike a blow for freedom.

"In Ireland to-day there are only 4,000 soldiers, where formerly there were 30,000. One reason that Ireland is not in a good position to strike a blow is because the Irish party could be swamped by Parliamentary motions. It was said that we should have freedom by asking and begging and kicking. God knows that our ranks have been bad long enough. Now we see that we must go back to the first idea. Freedom must come by force. The spirit in Ireland to-day is the same as in 1798."

In speaking of striking a blow at England, Miss Gonne admitted that the constabulary must be reckoned with. She said, however, that England is in a position where she must grant demands.

"The nation as to the individual," she continued, "there comes an hour of destiny, and Ireland's hour has come and she must not let it slip.

"One work of the Irish party is re-stimulation. Ten years ago there were 30,000 Irish in the army and now there are not 2,000. At present recruiting there is at a standstill."

To illustrate the straits to which the English Government has been reduced for men, Miss Gonne told the following story:

"I was visiting the North Dublin Hospital when two recruiting sergeants came in to get recruits. After much talk they secured two. Both men were ill and the nurse said they could hardly stand one drill. The papers in England may be agitating that England put 50,000 men in the field, but she will have very hard work getting them."

Miss Gonne also told the story of her recent arrest in Dublin while driving to a meeting of Boer sympathizers.

NO POLITICAL SIGNIFICANCE.

Statement Concerning Doctor Leyds's Visit to Berlin.

Berlin, Jan. 29.—An official agency has communicated the following to the press:

"In spite of official statements that Doctor Leyds, the diplomatic representative of the Transvaal, is here by official invitation, his visit is entirely by his own initiative and though he has received ordinary courtesy his presence is entirely without political significance."

To the correspondent of the Associated Press, who interviewed him to-day, Doctor Leyds made the following statement:

"I know nothing about the reported missions of either Mr. Mairum or Mr. Webster Davis. Nor to the best of my knowledge, is either the bearer of a message of peace. There are movements under way on our part to induce President McKinley to intervene between Great Britain and the Transvaal. As I do not at present have direct communication with Pretoria, I do not know what Mr. Montagu White's mission is, except to establish diplomatic relations with the United States.

"All this talk about peace is sadly prema-

STEYN VISITS KRUGER.

A Love Feast Is the Order of the Day at Pretoria.

Pretoria, Jan. 30.—President Steyn of the Orange Free State and A. Fischer of the Executive Council of that Republic arrived here this morning. They were met at the railroad station by President Kruger and other officials and were afterwards driven to the residence of the President of the Transvaal.

The Volksstem, the official organ of the Government, in welcoming the guests of the State, says:

"But for the courageous attitude of the Free State the conditions of the present struggle would be changed. It would have been impossible for the Transvaal to have taken the course followed with such success."

SHELLING KIMBERLEY.

Five Casualties in That City on January 25.

London, Jan. 30.—The Times has the following telegraph message via Modder River from Kimberley, dated January 28:

"The bombardment continues. It is now directed toward the inhabited portions of the town rather than the fortifications. Between midnight and 4 p. m. yesterday, 146 shells were fired. They seem to have been of Transvaal manufacture, not bursting widely. One child was killed and four persons were injured."

FOR TOMMY ATKINS'S WIDOW.

Fund to Be Raised for Families of Slain British Soldiers.

Englishmen, Irishmen, Scotchmen and Welshmen, many of whom have seen service in the British Army, and all of whom still have a warm spot in their hearts for Tommy Atkins, held a meeting last night to consider plans for raising a fund for the families of the British soldiers killed in the South African war. The meeting was held at Bohemian Hall, Eleventh and Locust streets, in the hall of R. R. Scott of the Society Sons of Scotland. About seventy men were present. Mr. Scott was elected chairman and H. A. E. Cheshire secretary.

After the chairman had stated the object of the meeting, speeches were made by Joseph Hayne, Hans Lindsay and J. Taylor, the last named being a nephew of the late John Bright. Mr. Lindsay stated that as soon as the fund for the wife and orphans of the British soldiers killed in South Africa was started he would be able to supply sufficient money to the cause to commence the work. Those present agreed that a public meeting should be held soon, and it was decided to meet again next Monday night to perfect plans in that direction. A collection of $17.65 was taken to defray the preliminary expenses of the public meeting, and subcommittees were appointed to arrange for speakers.

NOT POPULAR ON THIS SIDE.

Langtry's Recital of Kipling's Poem Coldly Received.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

New York, Jan. 30.—It is a far cry from the Garrick Theatre, New York, to Spion Kop, and so also there is much distance between "The Recessional" and "The Absent-Minded Beggar."

Mrs. Langtry was earnest and grasped much of the Kipling atmosphere, which is so mysteriously charming and inestimable in her recitation of the most famous begging verse ever written, but the audience which heard her to-night failed to become sympathetic.

When in London one could almost have heard the clink of gold showering on the stage after the passionate What have you got to spare?" But at the Garden all that the Lily got was calm and dispassionate approval for the genius of the poet and the art of the actress. There was none of the "Hands across the sea" spirit which might have been evoked by Sidney Grundy if he had left the lines of the auditors when Mrs. Langtry produced her Khaki costume and the plea for Tommy Atkins. It seemed markedly out of place. The British soldiers were not displeased and it is probablematical what would have happened had the laws shown.

Insurance Swindler Returns Money After Twenty-Five Years.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Hutchinson, Kas., Jan. 29.—Local insurance agents have received a deed for a valuable farm in Nebraska, to be placed to the credit of the company they represent. Accompanying the deed was a note, stating that a certain loss of $2,000, which was paid by the company twenty-five years ago on a certain store which burned, should not have been paid.

The value of the farm deeded to the company covers the $2,000, with interest from the time it was paid.

The repentant swindler received a promise from the agents here to withhold his name.

This supposed to have caused the death. The professor is supposed to have fainted in the water, unknown to good friends. It is supposed that death was due to suffocation. It was not known that the professor was in the habit of taking baths. He was a native of Belgium, and leaves a widow and children.

EAST ST. LOUIS PLANS.

Water Company Will Put In a Filtration Plant.

Plans are being made for the erection of a filtration plant at East St. Louis. At a secret meeting of the City Water Company last Saturday it was decided to put in a plant within six months to cost at the minimum $100,000.

President F. M. Shonar has notified the East St. Louis authorities that the company has already placed orders for the machinery. He says that the company does not expect to charge higher rates, but will ask that the waste of water which is now so prevalent be stopped. Among the citizens there is much enthusiasm at the prospect of a filtration. It is thought that more factories will probably be induced to locate on the East Side.

INVENTOR OF THE PULLMAN.

William Myers Passes Away at Carthage, Mo.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Carthage, Mo., Jan. 29.—William Myers died this afternoon at the home of his son, former Mayor William B. Myers. He built the first woolen mill in Southwest Missouri, thirty-three years ago.

Many years ago he was a railroad man and invented the first sweeping car, now improved and known as the Pullman car.

He never patented a dollar for his invention. It is said that he was always privileged to use the cars free whenever he traveled.

Victim of the Cold.

An old man, among his name as George Hubert, was taken to the City Hospital yesterday morning from a vacant house at Third and Spring streets. He was terribly frozen and it was believed at first that his legs would have to be amputated to avoid blood poisoning. The old man was too feeble to give any account of himself, and no one came during the day to identify him. He was placed in Ward N. It was discovered last night that Hubert lives with a family at Third and Spring streets. He went out for a walk in the afternoon and it is believed that he became benumbed with the cold and went into the vacant house for shelter against the wind. The physician in charge of the ward says that the aged man may never regain the use of his lower limbs.

Wilbur Boyle Price's Condition.

Wilbur Boyle Price of N. 2848 Washington boulevard, who met with an accident while getting a lady friend out of a street car at Vandeventer avenue, Sunday morning, was doing well last night. The physician attending him said that he would be about within the next few days. There were no internal injuries, as was at first feared. Mr. Price is a nephew of Judge Wilbur F. Boyle.

GAGE TO BE LEFT OUT.

Hanna's Plan if McKinley Is Re-elected—Successor Picked.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 29.—It is announced here that in consequence of the outcry against Secretary of the Treasury Gage on account of the dealings between his department and the National City Bank of New York, he will be left out of the Cabinet in the event of President McKinley's reelection.

Colonel Myron T. Herrick of this city has been mentioned for the Treasury portfolio when Mr. Gage is succeeded. Senator Hanna is given as authority for this statement.

It is said that Mr. Gage will be allowed to serve out his term, but at the beginning of McKinley's second administration Colonel Herrick is to be appointed.

Colonel Herrick is the president of the Cleveland Society for Savings, one of the largest savings banks in the country. He was one of the bankers who offered to take the entire war bond issue at the beginning of the Spanish War. He is 44 years old and a close personal friend of President McKinley, making his home at the White House when in Washington.

He is a director in many companies and a man of great wealth. He was a farmer boy ran away from home to work his way through Oberlin College, and made his way up through all the positions in his bank.
