Former Republican Tells Why He Abandoned McKinley—Illinois Miners Skeptical on "Full Dinner Pail" Argument.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Roodhouse, Ill., Sept. 17.—I don't know where all the people came from to Roodhouse to-day to the Stevenson Democratic rally. I have reported some big affairs of this kind in Roodhouse before this one, but never saw anything that would compare to the multitude that cheered and danced and waved flags and hats and umbrellas around Mr. Stevenson. The venerable Bloomington statesman was affected at the enthusiasm of the Democracy of Greene County, but modestly declined to accept it as personal to himself. This was only partly true, for Democrats are so plentiful hereabouts that they look above and beyond Democracy to the individual exponent of party principles and upon him they place their Ebenezer and loyalty, and with patriotic fervor adjge themselves under his banner.

Greeted by Thousands.

The thousands of strangers in town were not from the cities, for they were bronzed by the sun, their hands were hard and calloused and the joints in their legs were stiff. The city ladies were absent, but the best citizens on earth made up the immense procession—citizens, who produce bread and meat for the world and shoulder more than their share of the burdens of government.

The Chicago and Alton train, bearing Mr. Stevenson, was nearly an hour late and as the delegations from the country became weary and began to melt away, the railroad was charged with being in league with the enemy. When he did arrive, however, there were more people visible around the depot than his range of vision could reach, and they all began to shout as Mr. Stevenson, bared his gray head, and the polls followed his gayly decorated carriage through the closely thronged streets, to the park and back to the hotel where he met crowds to a midpoint with a score of the leading Democrats of the Seventh District.

The procession of the becomes was one of the principal features of the day and was the largest ever seen in Greene County. Seventy attempted to count the people in line, but it was a mighty host. The Roodhouse band followed Mr. Stevenson's carriage, and then came the Democratic Flambeaux club in white trousers and red coats, escorted by a hundred on drum corps.

Empty Dinner Pails.

One hundred miners, wearing the badge of their local union and carrying banners bedecking McKinley prosperity, bearing the legends "Empty empty empty pails in reminiscence" and "is not a pauch enough to support a miner's family?"

Delegations from Greenfield and from Monroeville, headed by drum corps in blue coats and white trousers, the Carrollton Democratic contingent by the veteran Colonel Nelson, led by the Carrollton band and a big drum corps, the mulcoons are carrying white umbrellas with portraits of national candidates and national colors.

As usual, enterprising Township presented new and novel effects. It had nearly 400 voters in line, many of whom were former Republicans. Riding at the head was a caricature of Roosevelt in the person of Ward Jamison, dressed in rough rider uniform. Then came the band and a number of floats, a troop of cavalry, then 100 ladies and gentlemen decked in flags and bunting, a legion of farmers with crossbows "to sweep Mark Hanna and his trusts from the face of the earth." As the dreams swung around the corner astride blue horses appeared, leading to their mates, Democratic Joan, Joseph Blackburn and a beautiful Rob Roy, Joe Bailey, whose hair was long and flowed a summer sunset in court. A fleet of veteran Democrats was followed by legions of young voters on foot.

The farmer delegation had a unique feature of two, it was led by a [illegible] band and in numerous float connecting twenty-six boys, bearing a corner labeled "Vote the Republic Until We Own Vote." When reached the grounds in quick section where reached the grounds in quick section where reached the grounds in quick section where
