NOTES IN SOCIETY.

While the autumn is scarcely advanced enough to warrant aught else than generalities in respect to the gayety or nongayety of the coming season, yet those straws which invariably indicate the direction of the social wind have with the homecoming of St. Louisans, already begun to blow.

Two features of the coming season may be expected to overshadow all others, the extraordinarily large number of weddings in prospect and the small list of debutantes to be brought out.

There is but one conclusion to be drawn from these significant facts namely, that this will be pre-eminently and emphatically a married people's season, and the young, unmarried set, instead of absorbing about all the social air there is, as was the case last winter, will have to content themselves with fond memories, or else such crumbs as are left over from the married feast.

As a matter of fact, nearly all of the schoolgirl crowd has departed for various institutions of learning this season. The fun of last winter was merely a stolen sport, with no prospect of a continuance, and perhaps 'tis just as well. The majority of those young girls who entertained so lavishly and who were entertained in similar manner by their elders have this fall betaken themselves to boarding schools without number, and announced that they do not intend to make a grand and formal entry until another year shall wax and wane.

Debutantes there will be, however, though in limited numbers. Several young girls who finished their studies at Mary Institute a year ago spent the coming twelve months in some favorite occupation, and beyond an occasional appearance in the family opera or theater box were not visible during the season. The bloom is consequently not yet even sullied so far as their enjoyment of social functions is concerned. They will make their appearance this winter in the gay world and may be counted on to add considerable zest to the ordinary rounds of teas, balls and routs.

Miss Estelle Bateman and Miss Hazel Peck belong to this number. They were graduated a year ago, but did not come out last winter. Miss Bateman is a favorite niece of Mr. C. F. Peper of West Belle place, with whom she makes her home. Mr. Peper's informal entertainments for her and her schoolgirl friends were numerous last winter, and will doubtless be continued on a larger scale this season.

Miss Hazel Peck, sweet daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Peck, was the hostess last winter at scores of little trips made in her father's private car, with a few young friends as guests. Mr. and Mrs. Peck expect to entertain considerably for their daughter this year.

One of the buds who will be entirely new is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius S. Walsh, Miss Josephine Walsh. She will be presented to society early in the autumn. Miss Walsh has been at Georgetown Convent for several years and her vacations have been spent almost entirely in the Virginia mountains. She is therefore comparatively little known to St. Louis and will be all the more a novelty. With Mrs. Walsh as a chaperon and Miss Ellen Humphreys Walsh, her elder sister, as companion and mentor, the young women's social success seems assured.

Miss Florence Harrison, by rights a debutante of last autumn, was prevented by reason of the fact that her family were truly mourning, from taking any part in the season's festivities. Her reappearance this year, therefore, will be quite in the nature of a debut.

Miss Edna Moss, who has spent many months abroad, will take a place in the gayety of the coming season, though formally out since 1898.

A debutante about whom considerable interest clusters is Miss Rachel Drummond, who will not return to boarding school this winter, but expects to remain in St. Louis, and, under the able chaperonage of her relatives, Mmes. Charles Parker and James Drummond, may be confidently expected to prove a success. In addition to being an heiress of great wealth, Miss Drummond has a pretty face and charming manner.

Miss Juliet Sharpe and Miss Mabel Forrester, both returned from a European tour this month, and will take their respective places. Miss Sharpe's debut will have considerable eclat from the fact that she is already well and favorably known to many persons by reason of her three appearances in the Biograf Hall outdoor Shakespearean productions. In both of these Miss Sharpe scored a decided hit by her acting and her personality.

Miss Emily Catlin and her cousin, Miss Emily Wickham, have both been popular summer girls at Jamestown for the past three months, and, with the Catlin and Wickham social prestige behind them, may be calculated to shine as social stars this winter. Both are pretty girls, with lively ways and attractive manners.

The Misses Katherine and Marie Overstolz, twin daughters of Mrs. Otto E. Forster, will make their joint debut during the fall, and will undoubtedly prove as popular as their elder sister, Miss Overstolz.

As to those members of society to whom St. Louis looks for entertaining each winter, there will be changes, some new but probable ones thrown upon them, the closing of as many by reason of mourning.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Van Blarcom, when they went abroad in June, announced their intention of making only a summer trip. But it is pretty well understood by their friends that they do not expect to return for a year. The big Westmoreland place mansion will, therefore, be given over to the caretaker, and is already in the hands of carpenters and builders, a large addition to the top story being under way, which will materially increase the size of their ballroom. Mrs. Van Blarcom's Saturday night hops, which have been a feature of two successive seasons, will, therefore, be relegated to the past, at least during the coming winter.

The inseparable Thornbarch twins, in Portland place, will this year be called on to mourn the loss of relatives being laid away after the sad death of the head of the household, Mr. William H. Thornbrough. No young matron in the social world will be more missed than Mrs. Thornbrough. She will spend a long visit in Europe with her mother in Buffalo, not returning to St. Louis until late, and, of course, living in retirement all winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayman McIlvaey and Miss Mary McIlvaey will naturally be missing during the season, since Miss Christine McIlvaey's death has been recent. They also will be much missed, particularly in music matters.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mann will emerge from their mourning this coming season.

Mrs. G. Herbert Walker, who, with her sister, Mrs. Keating, entertained at Lindenwood Park the past summer, may also be counted upon for a share of entertaining.

The Junius Wauchop, with a desirable daughter, to bring out, will be added to the number of those who have been a decided bone since her entry into society, and doubtless be gay indeed, as is their usual custom.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickson Walsh managed several small functions at Magnolia this summer, and, having their hand in, will continue to entertain this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turner and Mrs. Duncan Joy also will emerge from mourning, which means considerable gayety, for that hospitable family. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Brown will have a share in this, of course.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Raleigh have taken a house in Maryland avenue, and probably will do considerable in the way of entertaining their friends this year. Mrs. Raleigh, a pretty sister, Miss Julia Seed, will add flavor to these prospective affairs.

The L. M. Ramsey family will not be seen socially, owing to Mr. Ramsey's death. Large entertainments including the James Given and Stockton families, will, in all probability, be contributed by their absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Nugent, just back from two years globe-trotting, will reopen their Westminster place house, and are likely to reassert themselves as entertainers very shortly. Mrs. Byron Nugent will also give her customary round of teas, and a ball or two for young people at Christmas.

Whether Mrs. J. L. D. Morrison will emerge from her retirement of a year and throw open her house to society remains to be seen. Last winter Mrs. Morrison gave no functions of any description, and, except for an occasional appearance at some purely semi-charitable entertainment, was rarely seen.

Mermod & Jaccard's, Broadway and Locust.

Two paintings by Miss Estelle Dickson on view at one of the downtown art stores attracted much attention the last week. They are both portraits—one of Miss Ellen Humphreys Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Walsh, and the other a likeness of Mrs. Margaret Van Studditord, aunt of Mrs. Walsh. The artist, the coloring is remarkably fine and the likenesses pronounced excellent. Miss Dickson was the only American woman artist honored with the gold medal at the Paris Exposition, a fact which is greatly delighting her friends for a second time. Her study of a girl's head was the work thus marked for distinction.

The bridesmaid and groomsman were Miss Tillie Miller and Mr. Adolph Kusch. Mr. and Mrs. Kusch left at 5 p. m. for Hot Springs, Ark., and other Southern resorts. They will be at home to friends after October 8, at No. 2215 St. Vincent avenue.

The announcement of Miss Hilda Summerfield, daughter of Moses Summerfield of No. 1708 Washington boulevard, and Mr. Leo Rosenberg of San Juan, Porto Rico, has been announced.

The date of the wedding, which will be a quiet event, has not yet been definitely determined upon, but it will probably be late in October or early in November.

The marriage of Miss Summerfield and Mr. Rosenberg will be the culmination of an attachment that originated in youth.

Prior to the Spanish-American War Mr. Rosenberg was a traveling salesman for a St. Louis firm. When the war broke out he enlisted in the Nineteenth United States Infantry and served his country with distinction throughout the war in Cuba and Porto Rico. After the treaty of peace was signed and the war was over he was detailed in the Health Department in Porto Rico, of which he is now chief clerk with headquarters at San Juan.

He will return to St. Louis about the middle of October and remain here until after the wedding, when he will return to San Juan with his bride.
