ALL-AROUND GAINS— QUIET, HIGHER GRAINS.

QUIET SET OF MARKETS, BUT A FIRMER TONE.

Developments Were Favorable for a Settlement in the Markets, and All Responded.

Office Republic,
Monday, Nov. 5, 1900.

The conditions prevailing in the local speculative situation throughout to-day's session were unexpectedly encouraging from a bull standpoint, particularly in view of the fact that Tuesday, the day for holding the national election, is a legal holiday, and will be observed as such by the exchanges all over the country. This being the case, it was supposed by many that the speculative situation would fail to reflect in any noteworthy degree changes of importance; therefore, the strength displayed by all grains was in the nature of a surprise to the trade. All markets were much stronger in tone, but pit operations were inclined to be quiet, traders showing cautiousness about making new ventures on account of the holiday intervening. Such trading as was indulged in was largely of a professional character, and nearly all of a profit-taking nature, a few bulls getting in and shorts getting out. Most of the news was favorable to the long side, and especially that from abroad, and, if anything, the different markets were more responsive than they have been of late. Gains were fairly large all the way through, and the close in most instances was right at or very near the top for the day.

Wheat, which during the closing days of last week exhibited a very encouraging undertone of strength, gave another exhibition of strength to-day, which was not so surprising, when the character of the news and the temper of the trade is taken into consideration. The first incentive to buying came from cables, these from Liverpool creating considerable surprise, as they reported a bullish tone, and showed advance since Saturday. The world's shipments were large, though this country showed a falling off, compared with the week before, of over 1,200,000 bu., but Russian and Danubian ports reported 4,160,000 bu. between them, but, notwithstanding these large shipments, the amount afloat showed a decrease of 1,168,000 bu. There was nothing of skunkiness said of the Argentine corp, but the impression here was that the strength shown at Liverpool was chiefly due to bad advices from that country. The crop movement of America was favorable to the buying side, the arrivals at primary markets showing a falling off, compared with last week and a year ago. For instance, the arrivals here were posted at 8,100 bu., against 13,300 bu. last Monday and 41,200 bu. last year. Shipments were 23,000 bu. and stocks were decreased 8,000 bu. for the week. At Northwestern markets receipts were 854 cars, compared with 945 a week ago and 1,289 cars a year ago.

The opening here was quiet, with buying at 7/8c advance in Dec. at 72c, May bringing 75¾c. The buying letting up somewhat, there was a weakening off in prices to 72½c sellers of Dec. and sales of May at 75½c. This let-down was soon followed by another rally on which Dec. sold up to 72¾c and 72¾c was bid, while May brought 75¾c. These proved to be the best figures of the day and were brought about by the belief in a good decrease in the visible and the fact that Liverpool held up encouragingly, closing ¾@¾d better for the day. Berlin was quoted ⅞c higher, but Paris was unchanged, as was Antwerp also, while Buda-Pesth was ½c lower. The market fluctuated between 71⅝c and 72⅞c for Dec. and 75⅝c and 75⅞c for May. The exports were small, at 493,000 bu. flour and wheat, and the visible showed a small increase of 239,000 bu., as against 1,449,000 bu. a year ago. This caused a relapse, and Dec. sold at 71¾c and May at 75⅛c, but the strength underlying the situation soon asserted itself, and Dec. reacted to 72⅛c and May to 75⅞c. This was followed by another let-down, and the first-named option sold at 71⅝c, and May offered at 75⅝c, but the close was better, at 72c sellers for Dec., which was ⅜c up for the day, May closing ½c higher at 75¾c sales, and Nov. nominally ½c better at 71½c. There was little in the way of news late in the day, and the trading indulged in was in the way of evening up to go over the election.

The local corn market was encouragingly strong this morning and exhibited a good undertone of strength all through the day. There was not much trading at any time, however, and a quiet and unexciting market was experienced throughout the day. The inclination of traders was toward the long or buying side from the outset, as news and conditions chiefly favor that course. Besides higher wheat and stock market, cable advices were bullish and the receipts at primary Western markets were not only moderate, but there were no signs of any increase in the near future. To-day's primary receipts were posted at 329,000 bu., against 385,000 bu. one year ago, including 70,000 bu. locally, against 128,000 bu. last year. Shipments were large at 1,081,000 bu. and the export clearances 480,000 bu. The world's shipments were reported at 4,272,000 bu., nearly all of which were from America, and the amount afloat was increased 141,000 bu., against 68,000 bu. decrease one year ago. There was a falling off in the visible supply of this country of 361,000 bu., as compared with a decrease of 881,000 bu. one year ago.

There were not many offers on dock this morning when the market opened up and those anxious to buy were compelled to pay an advance. Dec. opened 3¾@3⅞c higher and then sold at 34⅝c. May brought 35¾@35⅞c. Prices then eased off a little to 34½c for Dec. and 35⅛c for May, but there was no great pressure to sell. There were bids of 34⅞c for Nov. and 35⅛c for year. The market exhibited firmness late, as exporters reported a very good demand from the other side, and especially from the Continent, where stocks were said to be small. Late sold at 34⅝c, which was ¼@⅜c up for the day and at which it closed asked. May was offered ⅛c higher at 35⅞c and closed at that bid. Year was ⅛c better for the day at 34½c bid and Nov. 3c higher asked at 34½c.

As usual, the speculative market for oats was quiet, but at the same time showed an undertone of firmness that continued all the way through the session, the close being 1c higher for Nov. at 27c nominal. Dec. was ⅛c better at 22⅝c bid, and May ⅛c higher at 24½c bid. The receipts at Western markets were 254,000 bu., against 447,000 bu. last year. St. Louis received 22,000 bu., against 36,000 bu. a year ago. Shipments were 32,000 bu. and export clearances 25,000 bu. The visible supply of this country was reported at 30,000 bu. increase, against 30,000 bu. increase one year ago.

Black Sea shipments this week were the largest so far on the crop. Russian ports alone bearing 2,024,000 bu. and Danubian ports 1,144,000 bu. This total of 3,168,000 bu. exceeded the week before by 1,240,000 bu. and was 1,000,000 bu. larger than for corresponding week last year. The Russian markets are undoubtedly moving out the wheat they have sold for export to the ports, are closed in the interior, and this probably explains their large shipments.

Wheat receipts at primary points 1,060,000 bu., against 1,449,000 bu. last Monday. Cleared from the east 2,312,000 bu., two years ago. Shipments were 287,000 bu.

Besides the 8,936,000 bu. wheat shipped by exporting countries to Europe last week, Bradstreet reports 912,000 bu. shipped elsewhere. That is certainly an underestimate, as the United States alone shipped more than that to outside countries.

The amount of wheat in country elevators in the Northwest on November 1 was 6,225,000 bu., against 4,785,000 bu. on October 1, and 1,600,000 bu. on November 1 a year ago. The increase during October was 1,440,000 bu. Last year the increase during October was 3,985,000 bu.

The conditions prevailing in ocean freights have resulted in very little change. Rates have shown an easier tendency and are lower at most ports, while full cargoes have also declined, although a fair business has been put through.

The first intelligence on the Argentine wheat crop for this week was a cable from the London Times' Buenos Ayres correspondent, which read: "The prospects are that the wheat harvest has suffered from the inclement weather. The linseed crop is the largest on record."

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Local Fruit, Vegetble, Poultry, Egg and Butter Quotations.

St. Louis, Monday, Nov. 5, 1900.

There was a better demand generally for produce to-day, and while the movement was only fair, prices were well sustained. Receipts were lighter than they have been running, and the market was in good condition.

Potatoes were steady and choice stock was in fair demand, but river receipts and inferior Northern stock were dull and slow. Receipts by rail were moderate, but most of the offerings were of inferior quality. Home-grown receipts were also moderate and the market quiet and steady.

Sweet potatoes were steady and unchanged, with the demand about equal to the receipts.

Cauliflower was scarce and in fair demand.

Tomatoes were steady and choice home-grown stock was firm and in good demand.

Eggplant was weak and lower, as offerings were liberal and the demand slow.

Cucumbers were scarce and higher.

Cabbage was steady. Offerings were fairly large, and the demand quiet. Prices unchanged.

Rhubarbs were quiet and steady.

Onions were in fair demand, and fancy stock was firm and in good form. Common stock, however, was dull and slow.

Other vegetables were dull and unchanged.

Apples were steady and in fair demand. Receipts were light, both of Eastern growth and home-grown. Prices were unchanged.

Pears were quiet and steady, with both offerings and demand light.

Grapes were in fair demand and firmer, but there was considerable of a state of weak and lower stock offered, which was hard to dispose of at any price.

Quinces were dull and neglected, as the season is over.

Cranberries were firm and in good demand, with offerings light.

Lemons were also firm and in good demand.

California fruits were quiet and steady.

Cocoanuts were scarce and in good demand and higher.

Live poultry was in good demand and firm. Receipts of young chickens were light and all of offerings of this class met with ready sale. Old hens were in fair demand and the market was steady.

Turkeys were steady and in fair demand, and stocks and grades were about unchanged.

Ducks were steady at unchanged prices, with the demand about equal to the offerings.

Geese were quiet and unchanged, as a large part of the receipts was in poor condition.

Game was quiet and unchanged, as a large part of the receipts was in poor condition.

Wild geese were nominally unchanged.

Wild ducks were dull and neglected.

Pigeons were firm and in good demand. Receipts were light, and all offerings met with ready sale.

Eggs.

The market was strong and higher to-day, as there was a good local demand, and choice stock was scarce. Fresh receipts sold at 19c loss off, but cold-storage stock was dull and 2c lower.

Receipts at St. Louis to-day were 2,340 cases and shipments were 22 cases.
