SKINKER ROAD POEM CONTEST CLOSES—ANNOUNCEMENT OF JUDGES IS MADE.

WALTER B. STEVENS, Secretary of the World's Fair Company. J. J. DALY, S. J., Professor of literature at the St. Louis University. WILLIAM R. VICKROY, Teacher of English literature in St. Louis Manual Training School.

Yesterday at noon The Republic's Skinker road poem competition closed. There are 823 manuscripts to be examined by the judges. Some of them are gay, some stately and some romantic. The meters are as varied as the sentiments. The West has contributed the larger number, but most of the States furnish competitors. Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts and Maryland are represented. The Texans are a numerous body, as are the Arkansans. There are successful doctors, lawyers and business men, as well as men whose profession are more directly literary. The ladies, as might have been expected, are generous in their offerings to the contest.

The Republic will make now no comment on the merits of the poems. That is for the judges, who will select the standards under which the poems will be tested. The judges are Walter B. Stevens, William R. Vickroy and Professor James J. Daly.

It is certain, however, that the prize will be won by an art work of genuine spirit and worth, for there are many which express the qualities of substance and workmanship. The losers need not be discouraged, for only one poem can be first and among the others will be compositions so nearly its equal that the difference is, perhaps, only a question of taste and point of view.

The judges are gentlemen of the highest position and of special literary training. The Republic is gratified that it has been able to secure their co-operation. Contestants are at once assured of perfect impartiality and conscientious care. The judges will meet at the earliest practicable time and formulate the principles which will direct their selection. The examination of so many manuscripts will necessarily take time, but The Republic hopes to announce the finding of the judges in a few days.

Four of the poems are without identification. If the four authors will send new copies with names or noms de plume on separate slips of paper these poems will be considered with the rest. Otherwise the judges may decide that, under the announced rules, strictly interpreted, anonymous contributions are not to have a place.

Walter B. Stevens, secretary of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Company, is a man of acknowledged literary taste and ability, having been connected with some of the largest papers in America before he accepted his present position.

William R. Vickroy is a teacher at the Manual Training School, Washington University. He is a son of Professor Thomas R. Vickroy, who was president of Lebanon Valley College, and another of Vickroy's English Grammar students. He graduated from Washington University in 1883.

For several years Mr. Vickroy was principal of Baden School, and then of Bates School. He has taken special courses in English literature at Harvard University, and also at the Chicago University.

James J. Daly is professor of English literature at St. Louis University, contributes to many periodicals, and is editor of The Dial, the college paper.

He graduated from St. Ignatius College, and also from the normal school of the Jesuits at Florissant, where he took a special course of three years in the classics. Before accepting his present post he held the chair of English literature at St. Mary's College, Kansas.

MANY SHIPS GO DOWN IN FEARFUL STORM AT PORT ELIZABETH

Four Sink With All Hands and Five Are Dashed to Pieces on the Shore.

FIFTY BODIES ARE RECOVERED.

One Steamer Blown Ashore, but Others Put Out to Sea in the Teeth of the Gale.

SCORE OF LIGHTERS ON BEACH.

Grave Anxiety Felt for the Fate of the British Steamship Scot, Bound for Cape Town, but Not Yet Sighted.

Cape Town, Sept. 1.—Eighteen vessels, mostly sailing craft, have been driven ashore in a gale at Port Elizabeth. Five of them were dashed to pieces and all the members of their crews were lost.

Two tugs are also reported to have foundered and a score of lighters are ashore.

Sir John Gordon Sprigg, the Premier, said in the House of Assembly this afternoon that he feared the loss of life from the gale would be enormous.

The storm broke shortly before midnight last night and was accompanied by a deluge of rain and brilliant lightning. The night was very dark.

Several tugs went out to the assistance of the endangered vessels, but nothing was visible from the shore at Port Elizabeth, except the continual flashes of rockets as signals of distress.

Daylight revealed the beach at the north end of Algoa Bay strewn with vessels lying high and dry, while others were in the surf and being swept by the huge breakers.

With the exception of four vessels, which foundered with all hands, every sailing vessel in the roadstead was ashore by midday. Many steamers, after weathering the storm all night steamed out to sea at daybreak.

Fifty bodies have already been washed ashore.

The British steamer Scot, belonging to the Union Steamship Company of Southampton, left Port Elizabeth Saturday for Cape Town. She was due here early this morning, but has not yet been sighted. Great anxiety is felt regarding her fate.

The steamer Briton, also belonging to the Union Steamship Company, was blown ashore and narrowly escaped destruction.

TWO ST. LOUIS NAVAL RESERVE YOUTHS DROWNED; FOUR RESCUED FROM SKIFF IN THE RIVER.

Boat Crashes Into a Coal Barge and Upsets at the Foot of Rutger Street—Charles Easton and George Erhardt Perish, the Latter While Trying to Save a Companion—Sinking Craft Floats Into the Stream With Survivors Clinging to Its Sides—Herman Strauss Pulls Off His Sweater and Waves It—Charles Uhl Rows to the Rescue.

FOUR SURVIVORS CLING TO SIDES OF SINKING SKIFF.
Herman Stauss waves a red sweater to attract Charles Uhl, who rows out from the shore and saves the Naval Reserve youths, who had lost two of their companions.

THOSE WHO WERE DROWNED.

George Ehrhardt of No. 2326 Clark avenue.
Charles Eaton of No. 2340 Market street.

THOSE WHO WERE RESCUED.

Arthur Emle of No. 2327 North Market street.
George Reese of No. 1618 Papin street.
Thomas Coughlin of No. 1618 Papin street.
Herman Stauss of No. 2328 Clark avenue.

Members of the St. Louis Naval Reserve, George Ehrhardt, 19 years old, of No. 2326 Clark avenue, and Charles Eaton, 19 years old, of No. 2340 Market street, were drowned while rowing at the foot of Rutger street yesterday afternoon, and Arthur Emle of No. 2327 North Market street, George Reese and Thomas Coughlin of No. 1618 Papin street, and Herman Stauss of No. 2328 Clark avenue, were rescued.

The six young men were in a skiff which accidentally upset, and but for the timely arrival of Charles Uhl, who lives in a houseboat at Rutger street and the Levee, the entire party would have found watery graves. Uhl rowed to them, and took Emle, Reese, Coughlin and Stauss from the side of the sinking skiff.

The youths are also members of the Bob Evans Glee Club, which meets every Monday night at the home of the president, Charles Eaton. At the last meeting it was decided to celebrate Labor Day with a row on the river, and Coughlin, Reese and Emle, who have served in the navy, volunteered to teach their comrades how to navigate a skiff.

They met at Eaton's home and went directly to the river, hiring a boat from Uhl.

Both Mrs. Eaton and Mrs. Ehrhardt say they had a premonition of disaster and tried to persuade their sons to abandon the excursion, but to no avail. Accordingly, when the news of the drowning was carried to the homes last night Mrs. Ehrhardt and Mrs. Eaton exclaimed in almost the same words: "I expected it."

Uhl cautioned the youths regarding the treacherous current of the river when the three former members of the navy took the oars and the boat was pushed off.

All went well while rowing up to Eads Bridge, and then the swift current was allowed to carry the boat down stream. It seemed so easy that Eaton, Ehrhardt and Strauss manifested their desire to manipulate the oars, and the other boys changed seats with them.

The amateurs managed to avoid several passing steamers. As they were about to pull into the wharf at the foot of Rutger street the current suddenly caught the skiff and drove it toward the shore.

A coal barge was moored to the bank, and before the occupants of the boat fully realized their danger the frail skiff was hurled bow foremost against it. The bow caught in the rotten wood, quivered for an instant, and then upset.

BOTH BOYS SINK INSTANTLY.

Eaton sank instantly, and did not come up. Coglin, Reese and Emle helped the other boys on the inverted side of the skiff. Ehrhardt knelt, and tried to lift Coglin to the top of the barge, but the next instant the boat was swept away and Ehrhardt, losing his balance, also sank from view.

The boat rocked violently as it swept from the shore, and Coglin and Reese dropped into the water on opposite sides and holding to it, tried to guide it toward shore. Emle and Stauss remained on the inverted side of the boat. It began to fill with water and sink.

The boys raised a cry for help, and Stauss pulled off a red sweater that he wore and waved it frantically in the air.

Several fishermen on the east side of the river for an instant stopped their work, but, evidently thinking that the boys were having a good time and being too far away to notice their distress, continued to throw out and pull in their lines.

Charles Uhl heard the cries, but he, too, thought the youths were in no danger, until he saw Stauss pull off his sweater and wave it. Then he seized a pair of oars and, leaping into his skiff, pulled rapidly into the stream. Looking over his shoulder from time to time, he admonished them to remain perfectly still.

They were taken to shore in a few minutes. Uhl rowed out again to look for traces of the drowned boys.

MOTHERS ARE PROSTRATED.

Charles Eaton was the only son of Mrs. William Eaton of No. 2340 Market street. He was an amateur photographer. Ehrhardt was the second son of Mrs. George Ehrhardt of No. 2326 Clark avenue.

Both Mrs. Ehrhardt and Mrs. Eaton were nearly crushed by the news, and physicians were summoned. Ehrhardt's parents have offered a liberal reward for the recovery of his body. Mrs. Eaton said:

"I begged Charlie not to go rowing, for I imagined all kinds of dreadful things that might happen to him, and last night I woke up imagining that he was dead. When he started to leave me this morning to go on the river my dream came to me, and I said to myself, 'I will never see him again.'"

Stauss, one of the four boys rescued by Uhl, in describing the accident said:

"We had been rowing for some time and had been up river as far as the Eads bridge when the accident occurred. In coming down river we became a little careless and the current catching the boat, drove it toward shore.

SURVIVOR DESCRIBES ACCIDENT.

"We pulled as hard as we could in the opposite direction and then became frightened and dropped our oars. The boat was hurled against the coal barge fastened to the bank.

Charlie Easton sank immediately and a few minutes later when Ehrhardt was trying to help Coglin onto the barge, he lost his balance and fell into the river.

"We did everything we could think of to attract attention, two of us climbing on top of the bottom of the boat and the other two holding to the dies. I took off my sweater and waved it, and after what seemed an hour Uhl saw our signal and came to the rescue."

CHARLES UHL'S STATEMENT.

Charles Uhl stated last night that he was loath to let the boys have a skiff, on account of the unusually swift current caused by the river's rise. But they insisted, saying that they thoroughly understood handling small craft. The presence of coal barges makes the foot of Rutger street particularly dangerous.

"Ehrhardt," said Uhl, "was sucked under the barge and almost immediately disappeared from sight. The current is very strong and the barge so long that there was no possible chance of saving him. I got the three young men who were clinging to the boat just as the current was taking it into a strong eddy near the top of the barge."

CITY COMMITTEE IS OUSTED; KERENS FACTION TO CONTEST

Fusion Deal With Meriwether Party Repudiated by the Republican State Executive Committee, Which Reorganizes the Body by Naming Sixteen New Members—Tricks of the Majority Are Shown Up in Fight Before State Body.

TWO ORGANIZATIONS HAVE ESTABLISHED HEADQUARTERS.

COPY OF KERENS-MERIWETHER AGREEMENT.

Messrs. Charles E. Carroll, John B. Owen and Charles F. Wenneker, having been appointed as a special Conference Committee representing the Republican City Central Committee, and Lee Meriwether, William A. Brandenburger and Frank S. Kowalski, having been appointed a special Conference Committee to represent the Executive and City Central committees of the Public Ownership party, these two committees conferring together, have agreed as follows:

The manner in which the Election Commissioner's office and the police force of St. Louis are used to stifle the will of the people, and the fact that an unfair, partisan election law is used to control elections regardless of the popular vote thereon, it is deemed both honorable and wise that all who believe in honest elections and freedom from police control of the same, should lay aside minor political differences and join in the task of securing a means for a fair counting of the peoples' votes. To this end we recommend that the Public Ownership party and the Republican party in St. Louis join forces during the present campaign, for the purpose of defeating those who depend upon ballot-box stuffing and police power for political success.

To secure the ends mentioned in the above paragraph we recommend that the Republican party in the city of St. Louis make nominations for the following offices and no other: Three Circuit Judges; one Judge, Court of Criminal Correction; one Clerk, Court of Criminal Correction; one Circuit Clerk (criminal division); one Assistant Prosecuting Attorney; one Coroner; four Justices of the Peace; five Constables; eight Representatives and three Senators, and we recommend that the Public Ownership party shall make nominations for the following offices and no other: Sheriff, Recorder, License Commissioner, Probate Judge, Prosecuting Attorney, Circuit Clerk (civil division), seven Justices of the Peace, six Constables, eight Representatives and one Senator.

Nominations having been made as provided in the above paragraph, we recommend that the Republican party fill the vacancies on its ticket with the nominees of the Public Ownership party, and that the Public Ownership party fill the vacancies on its ticket with the nominees of the Republican party.

After careful review of the election and police laws and of the entire situation in St. Louis with reference thereto, the two special Conference Committees have reached the conclusion that a combination of the two parties on the above basis is just, honorable and equitable as well as expedient, and the members of the two special Conference Committees herewith agree to use their efforts with their respective committees and parties to put in force the several articles of this memorandum, as hereinbefore set forth.

It is mutually agreed between the two special Conference Committees, each of whose signatures is attached hereunder, that should it become at once expedient and honorable to make concessions to any other element or party in St. Louis that will join with the Public Ownership party and the Republican party on the issues above set forth, the Public Ownership party will agree to concede to said element or other party five Justices of the Peace and five Constables.

It is further mutually agreed and understood that in the event of the two parties carrying out the above plan of campaign, and in the further event that the tickets put forth in accordance with the above plan are elected next November, then and in that case all appointive offices shall be divided equally between the Republican and Public Ownership parties where there is more than one such appointive office to be filled. Where there is only one appointive office to be filled, then in that case said office shall be filled by a member of the party electing the official making the appointment.

*New members of the committee.

In a day teeming with sensations, the Executive Committee of the State Republican Central Committee yesterday ousted the sixteen city committeemen who had been found guilty of party irregularity in attempting to carry through a fusion agreement with Lee Meriwether and Ed Butler.

Two City Committees, both claiming to be Republican and regular, are now holding forth and will continue to do so until the Board of Election Commissioners decides between the lists of judges and clerks for the primary presented. This will probably not be done until the latter part of the week, when Election Commissioners John M. Wood and James J. McCaffrey return to the city.

At present the party is hopelessly divided. Republicans in the two camps curse each other as they pass on the street or meet in the hotel corridors. Several fights were narrowly averted yesterday at the Lindell Hotel, where the Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee met to settle the question which has been

BALLOON CROSSES PIKE'S PEAK THRICE

Then Is Wrecked in a Storm North of Florence, Colo., After a Night of Terror.

AERONAUTS ARE FROSTBITTEN.

Otherwise Not Seriously Hurt in Attempt to Make a Transcontinental Voyage—Everything Thrown Overboard.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 1.—After a lapse of more than twenty-four hours, during which no word was received from the three aeronauts who left Denver yesterday to try for a transcontinental balloon voyage, a telegram came to-night announcing that the airship had been wrecked in a storm twenty-seven miles north of Florence, Colo.

Although severely bruised and somewhat frostbitten, the occupants were not seriously hurt.

The storm first struck the balloon at 9:30 o'clock last night, and between that hour and daylight the experience of the aeronauts was terrible in the extreme.

Three times the balloon was carried over Pike's Peak, and the last time it was necessary to throw out all the water, provisions and instruments in order to clear the rocky summit of the mountain.

At daylight a landing was made, and to-night the men arrived at Florence.

The adventurous men are Thomas Baldwin and Percy Hudson, both experienced aeronauts, and C. L. Sherman, a Post artist.

MISS LOLA VOGEL MURDERED.

Acting Coroner Brown Returns a Verdict in Beaumont Mystery.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Beaumont, Tex., Sept. 1.—Justice of the Peace C. S. Brown, acting as Coroner to investigate the mysterious death of Miss Lola Vogel, which occurred at the Oaks Hotel last Monday night, has concluded his investigation and rendered a verdict this morning to the effect that Miss Vogel came to her death by strangulation at the hands of parties unknown.

In connection with the verdict, Judge Brown states that he has accumulated all the evidence which it appeared possible to obtain at this time, and from the evidence he reaches the conclusion that Miss Vogel was killed by hands other than her own.

Judge Brown states that he has a large amount of evidence which has not been made public. This morning's mail brought him a bundle of very important letters which bear on the case. These letters aided him to reach his verdict, but he does not deem it advisable to make public the various steps which have been taken in securing the evidence, as it has all been turned over to a prominent detective agency, which will devote its energy toward ferreting out the guilty parties.

The advent of the oyster season is supposed to open a season of fall cool weather and Doctor Hyatt yesterday was fully prepared to see the thermometer take a big tumble.

"The mercury is going the right way," said the weather prophet, "and by to-morrow morning I expect to see it hovering around the 65 or 66 degree mark."
