REUNION OF FORMER MEMBERS OF FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

More than 200 former members of the First Christian Church, who are now affiliated with other churches of the denomination in this city, joined with the congregation last night in a service celebrating the reopening of the building after extensive repairs.

It was announced that the church now has a membership of more than a thousand, in addition to the twelve hundred members who have gone to other churches or who have left the city during the last twelve years. The church was founded sixty-six years ago with an enrollment of seven persons.

The seating capacity has been increased from 700 to 1,200 persons and the room was crowded last night. The enlarged platform and choir stall were decorated with palms and cut flowers, and on the rostrum sat the Christian ministers and the older members of the First Church.

The Reverend Doctor J. H. Garrison presided, and delivered an address on "The Achievements of the Past." There were addresses by the Reverend Frank G. Tyrrell on "The Bright Skies of the Future," and W. Dawkes Pittman on "The Improvement of the Present." The Reverend Howard T. Cree read the Scripture lesson, and the invocation was said by the Reverend Samuel B. Moore.

W. H. McClain, one of the elders of the church, read letters from seven of the former pastors of the church. In its history the church has had eleven pastors, and nine are now living.

The music was provided by the church choir, and after the programme had been finished a reception lasting more than an hour was held.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH.

Mr. McClain stated that the church was organized in 1837, and after struggling for several years, was abandoned because of the death or removal of its members. While in existence, the members met in the Shepard Schoolhouse, on Fourth street, opposite the Courthouse, and the leader was Robert Fife.

In 1845 the church was reorganized at the home of Mr. Fife, and two years later secured the Wainwright School on Morgan street, west of Sixth street, as a place of worship. From there the location was changed to Sixth street and Franklin avenue. The first building to belong to the congregation was at Franklin avenue and Broadway, and the first pastor to devote his whole time to the church was the Reverend Joseph S. Patton.

"In 1862 it was decided to move far west, and Seventeenth and Olive streets were chosen as the location. Some members living in the vicinity of the old church thought that too far to walk, and organized a separate congregation, which is now the Second Christian Church, at Eleventh and Tyler streets.

"During the winter of 1866 the question of removal from Seventeenth street was broached, and the building was sold for $18,500. The present site, on Locust street near Compton avenue, was selected, and the chapel was finished and occupied on Christmas Day, 1869. The entire building was completed in 1880. In the spring of 1888 the auditorium's seating capacity was increased, and the membership grew so rapidly that the recent alteration was the result."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC.

"Great Men of the Bible: What Joseph Teaches Us." (Gen. xli, 14–16, 42–46.)

BY AMOS R. WELLS

Considered merely as an interesting story, nothing in the Bible surpasses the story of Joseph. The children think so, and there are no better judges of stories than the children!

This story is full of lessons for our living, and one of the first of them is this, that for the very things for which good men love us, bad men will hate us. The more Jacob loved Joseph, the more his wicked brothers hated him. This is why Christ said: "Woe unto you when all men speak well of you." Never be disturbed when you are hated—by the right people.

Our plans for Joseph would have been so different and so wrong! We should have had him escape from the Midianites and return home, to the comfort of his father and his brothers' confusion. Ah, but what of the Egyptian famine, and the hope of the world that lay in the perpetuation of the seed of Abraham?

Established in Potiphar's house, Joseph brought blessing upon it. (Gen. xxxix, 5.) God often does good to one man for the sake of another man; therefore, look well to your friends!

The worst misfortune of Joseph's life, the shamelessness of Potiphar's wife (Gen. xxxix), and Joseph's two years' imprisonment that so unjustly followed, turned out, through the butler's dream, to be the best fortune of all. A man whom God loves—let him keep his cheerful thanksgiving day when he is sent to jail!

Even men's carelessness is part of God's care. Did Joseph think it hard that the chief butler should forget him through those two years while he languished in prison? (Gen. xl, 23; xli, 1.) On looking back, would he have jogged the butler's memory an hour sooner?

Brought before Pharaoh, when he might have boasted of his skill, seeking to heap up credit for himself, Joseph made the modest and true answer, "It is not in me: God, the Hebrews' God, will solve your perplexity." It is a sensible deed, when a man has a chance to magnify himself, to fail in magnifying God.

The work that Joseph did, in providing for the seven years of famine, is work that we should all imitate. The most serious famines are those that come in our spiritual lives, seasons of gloom, of doubt, of temptation, of grief. Let us lay by a plentiful store of sunny memories, Bible wisdom, holy babies, that will tide us over such evil times and bring us again to years of plenty.

I do not think that many readers grieve over the trouble that came to Joseph's brothers, sack's mouth, cup, bonds and all. They certainly got no more than their deserts, and their trouble gained for them the greatest of gains, namely, their repentance. Let us think, the next time trouble comes to us, if that may not be why it is sent.

At no time in his history was Joseph so regal as when, instead of adding to his brothers' self-condemnation, he magnificently said, "God did send me before you to preserve life." That was Christlike. It was a worthy foregleam of that great prayer, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."
