LIVE-STOCK MARKET.

Native Supply Light—Beef Cattle Steady—Hogs Close Weak.

NATIVE CATTLE—Beef Steers—Receipts of native cattle were moderate, and the bulk of the arrivals were steers, and quality and flesh, in the majority of cases, decent to good, common to medium grades being relatively scarce. The strength of the demand for the better class of beeves was emphasized emphatically, not only in the manner that buyers took hold of them, but as well in the prices obtained.

The supply contained a better representation of well-finished beeves than has been offered for some time, sales including an extra bunch of Angus steers and heifers, 1,126 lbs. at $5.75, with other choice lots of exports at $5.60@5.65, weighing 1,240@1,460 lbs. A pretty good class, ranging from 988@1,246 lbs., at $4.90@5.20, while fair to good steers, plain and coarse, sold at a range of $4.30@5.25.

The proportion of sales below $4.50 was small, and did not include anything very inviting, still some lots sold around $4.50 that were plain, but a pretty good class. The market developed good tone on practically everything on offer, ranging from strong to 10c higher, though the higher spots showed up on the better grades, but this practically took in the bulk of the supply, as the main portion of receipts were desirable kinds. Trade around $4.60 and below did not show activity and was rather slow, but through the competition of some Eastern outlets some strong spots were realized.

Butcher Cattle—The butcher cattle market was quiet and inactive. Receipts were light and the quality generally inferior, and slow sale, was the result, though values were not quotably different than last week's close.

A load or so of pretty good heifers and some good heavy cows were about the extent of good grades offered. They were a little firmer sellers than last week.

SOUTHERN CATTLE—Monday's receipts of quarantines were fairly liberal, totaling around 145 cars, which arrived rather slowly. Buyers were very slow to take hold and acted in an indifferent manner, and the market presented a dull tone. It was not long, however, before a fairly active movement was had on steers, quite a sprinkling of Eastern orders prevailing, which forced local buyers to operate a little more lively, and offerings moved quite freely. Some of the few early sales were inclined to show a little weakness, but when the Eastern influence was felt prices were soon established on a steady basis.

There was quite a sprinkling of cows and heifers, which was more than the demand called for, and 100@15c was taken off the yarns of last week's value. The calf market was fully steady, though the bulk of the receipts did not arrive till late, which caused them to move rather slowly; values held up well.
