WHEAT MARKET BREAKS ON LATE LIQUIDATION

CORN UNDER MODERATE PRESSURE

Early Tone of Market Is Good, but Professionals Sell in the Last Hour.

Wheat closed very weak in Saturday's market. There was some good early buying on foreign news and reports of damage in Texas, but this influence was not well maintained in the face of rather brisk liquidation by professionals in Chicago. This brought about the usual Saturday liquidation, and the last hour the active options were on the downturn. The volume of trading was not large, and there was an undercurrent of strength which might have kept the market strong but for manipulative selling.

Corn also closed easy. There was little speculative interest in the coarse grain and the market was inclined to follow wheat on the downturn. The May option closed slightly lower.
