SPECIALTIES HOLD SWAY IN THE STOCK MARKET.

FIRST-RANK ISSUES FLUCTUATE BUT LITTLE.

Day's Developments Almost Without Effect, and Tone Is Hesitating and Irregular.

New York, Feb. 14.—To-day's stock market was distinctly one of specialties, and but few stocks of the first rank will be found in the list of those fluctuating as much as a point. The market was decidedly duller than has been the case recently, especially among the standard stocks.

The minor railroads and industrials, which were active, have a much smaller volume of capitalization than the great rail and stocks, and the congested interest in this class had its effect in bringing down the total of the day's transactions. There was a marked falling off in operations by some of the recently active people, and the absence from the street of some of the notably speculative operators was supposed to account for this.

Such of the day's developments as had any importance were without much effect on stocks, and the tone was hesitating and irregular. Some of the special advances were due to rumors affecting the individual properties concerned, those in a number of cases pointing to intended dividend declarations on stocks which now receive no disbursement. In some of the low-priced industrials there were feverish runs on shorts from this cause. There were traces of last week's movement in the iron and steel group, but the movement showed signs of culmination and the United States Steel stocks especially were sluggish and indifferent.

The weekly collection of views of traffic officials was timed by the existence of obstacles to traffic from the stormy weather, although the general tone of the volume of merchandise movement continued general. Weekly gross earnings for the first week of February showed the effect of the storm obstruction and of the grain-rate war, especially on Southern and Southwestern systems, for which there were a number of decided decreases compared with last year's earnings.

The continuance of these factors promised a similar result for the forthcoming statements for the second week. There was an appreciably firmer tone in the time money market, as a result of the large decline in surplus reserve shown by Saturday's bank statement. But this was largely nominal, owing to the scanty activity. The drooping tendency of foreign exchange and the relaxation at all points of the pressure for our gold was considered of greater importance. The reduction in the official discount rate of the Imperial Bank of Germany was accepted as an index of the relaxing money conditions in all the foreign markets.

The rumors of peace were also an effective influence in foreign markets, which was reflected here by the buying of stocks for foreign account. This was a notable sustaining influence in the early market. When it had ceased the tone for stocks became rather easy, and Reading, especially was under pressure of realizing. The idea of sustaining factor, which was held by the specialties and the foreign buying early in the day, was assumed by Union Pacific in the late dealings. That stock's rise to the high level of the year was not explained by any new development.

There was some inclination to assume that the friction between the President and the Senate would prove an obstacle to railroad-rate legislation, but it was of no practical effect on prices, unless in the case of Union Pacific. The strength of that stock sustained the later market and made the closing steady.

There was a broad demand for bonds of other than the first grades, and a firm tone to the market. Total sales, par value, $4,[illegible]. United States new is advanced ½ per cent on call.

SUMMARY OF ST. LOUIS MARKETS

There was a good bullish undertone in yesterday's market for grain futures. The extremely cold weather throughout the winter belt was a decidedly favorable indication for the buying side, not only because it meant possible damage to the growing crop, but because it had already acted as a serious check on the movement to market. The receipts here and at other Western points were greatly below the estimates, and as there was no falling off in the cash inquiry, the supply was not quite up to the demand. Local agitation in favor of admitting Russian wheat on the same basis as the American soft winter product tended to unsettle the market, but the opposition to the movement seemed so strong that the bulls had little difficulty in convincing outsiders that they had the better of the controversy. Foreign news was mildly favorable to the buying side and there were scattered damage reports from European wheat-producing countries. The outside buying inquiry, while not large, was better than it had been for some time, and there was a general tendency on the part of shorts to switch to the other side of the market. Liverpool was sharply higher on reports of crop damage in India. There was fairly good professional buying here and in Chicago.

Corn was stronger than it had been for some time. Small world's shipments and light local and primary receipts, together with higher cables, were the main bullish factors.

May wheat opened ¼@⅜c up and closed 1@1¼c up.

May corn opened ¼@⅜c up and closed 1c up.

May oats closed ⅛c up.

Receipts of produce were moderate and prices of fruits and vegetables were generally firm.

Local securities had good support. United Railways preferred again was the strong spot.

Yesterday's bank clearings were $7,737,153, balances $1,768,776. Discount rates were steady between 4½ and 6 per cent.

Spot cotton was 1-16c up in the local market.

GRAIN VALUES ADVANCE ON BUYING BY SHORTS.

WEATHER AND CABLES ARE BULLISH.

Corn Is Strong and Trading Sentiment Here and in Other Markets Favors the Buying Side.

Cold weather and bullish news were favorable to the buying side in yesterday's local grain market. There was good support for the active options throughout the session, and closing p[illegible] were sharply higher than on Sat[illegible]day. The sudden drop in temperature through the winter belt caused a rush to buy following the extra holiday, and the strength of the market was increased by a good advance in Liverpool on reports of crop damage in India.

The visible supply of wheat the past week decreased 881,000 bu., against a decrease of 982,000 bu. in 1904. St. Louis stocks decreased 23,000 bu. and Chicago decreased 12,000. Total visible supply, 26,000,000 bu., against 28,925,000 bu. a week ago, and 28,219,000 bu. in 1904.
