REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Cincinnati, O., April 25.—Jack Harper fell into a spot to-day that was seeded with Amo's wool. The last St. Louis game was fully cut soft. The dink ball served up by Campbell, a left-handed graduate from Louisville, was shunted to all corners of the lot by the Reds.

The Cardinal pitching staff was not in shape to afford to Campbell any relief, and he had to face the music, which was a harmony of twelve runs and sixteen hits to the Cardinals' two runs and five hits.

Campbell has a delivery that one of these days will develop for him an angle case of erlik in the neck. His delivery looked puzzling enough to Jumpin' over the plate at championships, but it was gooseberry pie in season for the Reds.

Harper's control was not good enough for him to use any frills. When he encountered difficulty in locating the pan and found Umpire Klem a bit backward about calling strikes when he ought to have called them, Harper began to put them over straight.

Following the method he effected readily. He put all of his speed behind every ball, and the dail was of the sort that makes speed effective.

They were not to be blamed much, because they had no chance, for the Cardinals grew very cold and wanted to go home after the seventh inning. Out on the coaching line Kid Nichols tried to bellow a little ginger into his workmen, but resuscitation was not for them.

The Cardinals really had a kick coming, for Klem halted two misery headed for the plate, and sent them back on a smash by Jimmy Burke that was two feet fair inside of first base, and was good for a double.

Klem called the hit foul, and he was right on the line, where he ought to have seen what everybody else in the same range saw.

After that Burke grounded out, and two runs that the Cardinals ought to have and are indeed. The unfairness that began at that time was kept up until the eighth inning, when Farrell was put out of the game. After swinging at a third strike and being called out, Farrell made a speech that chased him to the bench.

The retirement of Farrell proved to bring into action Nimick, a second baseman who may have come from some place where they raise the largest infielders in the world. The score:

ODEON STOCK COMPANY REVIVES "PRINCE KARL."

The Odeon Stock Company presented the German comedy "Prince Karl" before a large audience last night at the Odeon. This is the last week of the company, and Gunther's sparkling comedy is well fitted to be the climax of the season.

William Carlton as Prince Karl von Armbrun gave an excellent portrayal of a very difficult character, as the dialect is necessarily tedious to master. In the last act Mr. Carlton sang the German student song very effectively. He formerly sang in "Fatinitza," and is now arranging to do light comedy opera again next season. Miss Gertrude Vaughn, Marion Pollock Johnson and Maud Marion Love were well cast.

The Odeon management will give a benefit to the members of the company Monday evening. As a special feature Mr. Carlton will sing his old-time song, "Under the Shade of the Shattering Palms."

When the company closes its season at the Odeon next week plans have been made for a benefit performance under the direction of Jay W. Stuart, business manager of the Odeon Theater.

Philadel. 10, Boston 6.	Chicago 2, St. Louis 1.

Four major league teams are in the city to-day for the first time this season. If the weather is propitious two battles will be fought on St. Louis diamonds. The games will be the first conflict in dates of the Browns and Cardinals.

All morning yesterday Robert Lee Hedges and his able lieutenant, McAleer, hoped against hope that the drizzling rain would pass over and permit the Browns to take another fall out of Fielder Jones's White Sox.

An unkind fate decreed otherwise early in the day and then in the afternoon, when Chief Jones took his white-legged tribe out to the grounds the clouds opened again and clinched the postponement of the game.

The Windy City veterans, who are just now making a desperate effort to keep away from the bottom rung of the ladder, spent a dreary day about the corridors of the Southern. When they returned from the grounds it was too late to make the acquaintance of the bookies, and they consoled themselves in talking "shop."

Manager Jones announced last night that John Smith would probably go on the rubber today for the Sox. Smith lost the opening game to the Browns at Chicago, with Harry Howell opposed to him, and is anxious to reverse the tables. Fred Glade or Morgan may be chosen by McAleer to guide the destinies of the Browns.

The Browns dropped into fourth place yesterday by the Highlanders' close victory over the Stalwarts. McAleer's men hold the place in their own right at present, Washington falling to sink below. The Sox are three places below the Browns.

Charlie Nichols and his cripples arrive in town this morning after their disastrous cruise to Pittsburg and Kelleytown. From a place in the first division their have fallen into the hole made towns by Washington last year in the silver league.

Nichols is not discouraged, however. He has fought with a determination which may win for the Cardinals yet. By the Reds' victory over the Cardinals they jump into the first division, leaving Philadelphia and Boston.

Ewing of the Reds, who is one of the few National League pitchers who seems to have gained any control over the troublesome "spit" ball, may be sent in against McFarland or Kellum. It is doubtful to doughnuts that Kelley will take his chances in losing hold of his place in the league, and with the Cardinals back on their stamping grounds the fans may expect a mighty struggle to get out of the booby spot in the league.

Tom Jones's daring steal of home plate occupied some of the attention of the White Sox at the Southern yesterday. Again, as last year, Dick Padden is accused of a trick in neutralizing a run. Sullivan called Kelley's attention to Dick's position on Owen's throw to catch the flying Jones, but Kelly said he didn't see it. Sullivan says Tricky Dick deliberately motioned Jones to hurry in, taking his place directly on top of the plate, and then holding up his bat to interfere with the throw and prevent Sullivan from getting Jones. Padden was the pivot of the noteworthy steal negotiated by the Browns in a game with the Athletics last fall.

Manager Jones of the Sox has considerable reverence for the "spit" ball, especially the particular brand dished up by Harry Howell.

"Howell probably has the most complete control of the spit ball of any pitcher in the country, not excepting Jack Chesbro," said Manager Jones yesterday. "He is far ahead of Chesbro. What the strange ball will raise with the batting averages of the game's sluggers. Look at Cleveland, with her three runs in five games. The Tomahawkers' bats were called. Don't look much like it, does it? All the pitchers are using it in different proportions, and when the pesky thing hits a man on the hand, when he thinks he has landed safely, it is not calculated to make a sunny disposition."

Fielder Jones announced last night that the following order of his team would be slightly changed to-day: Hooker, Holmes will bat second, with the genial catcher-manager-player topping the list. Jones is one of the closest students in the game and there is not a play pulled off in a game which he does not see and appreciate the effect of.

He has reached his fielding so admirable that at present they hand the wagon in fielding. The "spit" ball has lowered every batting averages, and the veterans to that none of them is exerting above the .300 mark.

Jones treats his players more as a father. With Napoleon, he believes in leaving much of the overall judgment of critical moments in the hands of the player. He rarely calls a player and shows the confidence of the team. Fielder is a hard worker, brilliant fielder and knows as much about baseball as any other expert of the game.

He admits that the Browns are a hard team to beat on their grounds, but contends that Jack Smith with his perfected "spit" ball, has the solution for a game to-day.

Kelley has some new faces with the Reds this season. The team is batting the ball hard and playing a fast game. The two Wells, "Wild" and "Mike," at third and in left field, are two of Joe's sluggers. Sixteen hits were made off Campbell yesterday, four of which are credited to Seymour.

WILL NOT BRING MARATHON RUNNERS

M. A. C. Refuses to Pay Transportation for Eastern Candidates in Race.

"The Missouri Athletic Club will not pay the transportation for outside Marathon runners," said Athletic Director Bassett yesterday, "and if these Eastern men want to come they will have to pay their railroad fare. The club will only keep them here three days, which is doing more than the Boston A. A. does in its race."

This statement was made after the director had received a letter from Robert Fowler of Cambridge, who finished fifth in the Olympic and third in the Boston Marathon last week.

The Cambridge runner wanted to know what expenses would be borne by the club, as he was thinking of coming for the local event on May 6. He is in good condition as a result of his race last week, and will probably start.

Director Bassett announced that the club was not particularly anxious to secure an outside entry, but would prefer to have the event as nearly a local one as possible. The outside runners are invited.

Fowler, in his letter, attributes the loss of the race to the fact that he lagged out to Hicks, as he was supposed to be the favorite in the race because of the number of races he had run.

Next year's winner of the Boston Marathon, according to tradition, will be Fowler, as four previous winners, who finished third to the races, won the event the following year.

Cafferty, in 1901, was the B. A. A. with Sam Mellor of Yonkers, third. In 1902 Mellor won the race and John C. Lorden of the Cambridgeport Gymnasium finished third. The following year Lorden won the twenty-five-mile race from an exceptionally large field of starters.

Mike Spring was third to Lorden in this race, also, living up to the feats of his predecessors, won the race in 1903. Cook of St. Alphonsus Club was third in this event and seemed in line to win on the following year.

He was not able to run because of an injury to his foot. Schlobohm of New York, the fourth man, did not compete and Lorz, who was fifth in the race, was in order and won.

Attorney in Merger Case Says Brown Brothers Received Enormous Fee for Forming Syndicate—Closing Arguments Made.

In closing his arguments in the Transit merger case before Judge Pollock in the Federal Court yesterday, Judge Henry W. Bond, for Colls, Adler & Tilles, declared that the contract with Brown Brothers of New York was not made in accordance with fair dealing to the Transit stockholders.

He said that while he did not wish to cry fraud, the provisions of the contract were morally unjust, inasmuch as Brown Brothers received an enormous fee of more than $1,000,000 for securing $[illegible] of capital on gold-edge security. Bond.

Boston J. Wade, through the Mercantile Trust Company, contracted to handle the Railway improvement bonds of the railway company on a 1½ and 2½ commission basis, which Brown Brothers commissioned, under the contract, will amount to more than a million for securing seven millions of capital.

Attorney Bond declared that Transit stock was a good investment, and the St. Louis street railroads paid good dividends, the only drawback being an enormous overcapitalization.

"My clients, Colls, Adler & Tilles," he said, "bought the stock a good investment. They had thought it worth up to a million dollars worth and thought it such a safe investment that they were willing to hold it and keep it off the market for a year, if necessary.

"When the officers of the Transit Company and they were present for money, selves and friends, suggested that they could make a profit. The money could Colls, Adler & Tilles, among them have been raised in St. Louis.

"Under the contract with Brown Brothers, Brown Brothers were given [illegible] shares of the common stock of the Transit Company and a commission of 30 per cent of the profit. The bond shares are worth, alone, while their percentage of the 2,000,000 bonds will amount to [illegible] more, making a total of $[illegible]."

After the closing arguments Judge Pollock allowed both sides ten days to file briefs.

SUES TO REPLEVIN ONE SMALL POODLE

Two Prominent East Side Families Go to Law Over Possession of Dog "Bedelia," Highly Prized.

A writ of replevin for the possession of a small poodle dog, "Bedelia," was served on Deputy County Treasurer Walter Wolf at Belleville yesterday by Constable Lautz. The writ was secured in Justice McCullough's Court by J. M. Dill, Mr. Wolf's father-in-law. The dog, according to Mr. Dill and Mr. Wolf, was taken by Wolf from his brother-in-law Monday evening. Mr. Wolf says, however, that the dog is now in St. Louis, and is, therefore, beyond the jurisdiction of the Constable. He also claims that the dog is his, anyhow, and that no one else has a right to claim it.

Mr. Wolf, who is a son of Philip Wolf, a capitalist of East St. Louis, and also County Treasurer, about a year ago married Miss Claire Dill, a daughter of A. M. Dill of Belleville. A house and a lot was one of the presents the couple received from Mr. Wolf. The couple lived in it for several months, and then removed to Belleville. Mrs. Wolf is now visiting with her sister in Chicago. Mr. Wolf is living with his parents.

One of the possessions of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wolf, which both prized highly, was the poodle, "Bedelia," which Mr. Wolf purchased for his wife and which is said to be worth $50. When Mrs. Wolf went to Chicago she left the dog at the home of her parents in Belleville.

Monday afternoon Monroe, a young brother of Mrs. Wolf's, was out walking and had the dog as company. They passed by the courthouse just as Mr. Wolf was walking down the steps. He whistled and "Bedelia" responded. Mr. Wolf took the animal on his arms and hurried to a street car bound for East St. Louis.

Monroe Dill hurried home and told his story of the kidnaping of the dog. The matter was discussed at length in the Dill home Monday night and yesterday morning Mr. Dill, who is a
