PULLIAM'S FAIRNESS EVIDENT IN TREATMENT OF PLAYERS

League Executive Denies Legislating Against "Dummy" Taylor—His Initiative in Refunding Fines a Move in Right Direction—Rowdy Ball Players Having an Innings—Records Made in Baseball This Year May Not Be Duplicated.

"BUSTER" BROWN.
Western League recruit who joined the Cardinals last week. Brown has a great record with Omaha, where he won a pennant for that club.

"Luther Taylor or any other player in the National League has not been ordered to keep away from the coaching line by a special edict of mine" said President Pulliam on his recent visit to this city. Mr. Pulliam was speaking of the published accounts of "Dummy" Taylor being ordered from the grounds and being refused the privilege accorded other players in Cincinnati.

"Such stories are made out of the whole cloth and designed to help the attendance at the Polo grounds when the Giants get back East," continued Mr. Pulliam. "The fate of the player is entirely in the hands of the umpire. I have nothing to do with him until the official takes action. The umpire's report of the case first comes to me and then it is my duty to adopt such action as is best intended to prevent disorders and rowdyism on the field."

Mr. Pulliam stated that the cause of "Dummy's" expulsion from the line was the deaf-mute's peculiar gestures about his head, which were intended to convey to the fans "Dummy's" impression that the umpire had "wheels in his head" or something such thing as that. Taylor's gestures at the umpire's expense were the cause of much embarrassment to the umpire and much merriment to the players and spectators. Consequently, for the good of the game, "Dummy" was ordered from the lines.

The young executive's explanation of the incident seems to be eminently fair. If Taylor's capers impeded the progress of the game and incited the fans against the umpire, he was justly punished. Pulliam's action in moving to refund the fines imposed on the players under a statute which the courts have construed to be out of existence again shows the desire to be just with the individuals over whom he presides. President Brush, and not Pulliam, secured the passage of the resolution to fine players who were suspended longer than one day.

THE McGRAW INCIDENT.

Pulliam speaks with entire frankness of the McGraw affair. He practically admits that the Giants' chieftain cannot be penalized under the court's interpretation of the league rules. The lesson has been a good one, however, and at the next meeting each rule of the league will be made so as to hold before the courts and insure the discipline which must be executed if rowdyism and the kindred evils of the game are to be eliminated.

The long-suffering public has borne with the brutalizing tactics of players long enough. The league rules should be made to stand before the civil courts, so that the guilty player may be punished and minimize the likelihood of repetitions of such scenes.

At present the rowdy ball player seems to be having his inning. McGraw has for the once triumphed over Pulliam. President Creamer of the Tri-State League, who disciplined Manager Hamilton and Captain Calhoun of Harrisburg for inciting a riot which put an umpire's life in peril, has resigned. The refusal of the league's officials to tender to the executive a prompt vote of confidence caused him to surrender his office.

Creamer will be missed in the young organization, as it required no little skill to keep the outlaw organization from being a peer of its weak sister clubs, but he could hardly have passed out on an issue more creditable to himself than a fight for clean baseball.

Some day, as has been aptly remarked, baseball magnates will awaken to the fact that their greatest debt is to the patrons of the game, who spend the money that makes professional sport a possibility. They will learn the lesson that the fan pays his money to see a clean game, and not a prize fight, with the talk of the game as an accompaniment.

REMARKABLE PLAYS.

With the season still in its infancy two records have been hung up which may last for the bright spots in the game of ball. Each league claims one of the feats. Christy Mathewson holding the Chicago Cubs to a no hit, no run, contest in the National, and "Topsy" Hartsel of the Athletics stealing home.

Mathewson virtually equaled the record of Young, which stands as the high accomplishment of modern baseball. For nine innings not a hit nor a run was made off Mathewson, nor did he award a base on balls or hit a batsman.

The outcome of the game faced "Matty" and only two of the Cubs reached first base on errors by Dahlen and Gilbert.

Young's feat was accompanied by perfect fielding by the Champions, and not a one of Mack's crew reached the initial station. That is the only difference in the two performances. The prospects are not strong that either record will be duplicated this season.

While the modern day catcher equipped with a powerful "wump" and his necessary assistant guessing his pitcher, the daring steal home of Hartsel in the game with Washington, June 2, will hardly be equaled this season.

The steal was perfect in every respect. There were no runners at the sacks, and "Topsy" alone held away at third, which he had reached by a double and a sacrifice. With Lajoie up and two out, "Topsy" knew that a hit or an error would bring in the run, being Townsend working to move down the outfield and paying little attention to the man at base. "Topsy" darted for the home plate just as the Stalwarts's pitcher began to wind himself up for the throw.

Townsend saw the little streak dashing madly for the plate, but it was too late. Harvey was within a few feet of the home plate, and, although the throw was perfect to the catcher, Hartsel slid under and was safe.

COMING AND GOING.

The Browns make their appearance here to-day for the first time in almost a month. The Cardinals depart for another Eastern trip next Sunday. Hedges's men have not been as successful as was believed when the crew pulled away from St. Louis. The pitching staff has gone back badly, and about the only ones whom Manager McAleer is willing to trust in a game seem to be Howell and Pelty.

A considerable part of baseball misfortune has entered into the big number of defeats sustained by the local lads since they left home. Boston was lucky and won games in the ninth inning, and New York and Philadelphia were benefited by luck.

Nevertheless the gunners of the Browns have been principally at fault. The club has been batting well, but the pitchers have been pounded hard, and when the game was close McAleer's men seem to have had just a shade the worst of it and lost.

The Cardinals, in charge of "Togo" Burke, who has made the lads a really fast playing aggregation, depart for Chicago next Sunday, where they start again to the East. With Burke's pitching staff in good form and each of the corps with a regular turn in the box, the infield and outfield places definitely settled, the players should settle down and give a good account of themselves.

Since coming home the lads have won a majority of the games, but do not seem to be playing the game of which they are capable. The Cardinals are known as fighters on the road, and there isn't a club in the circuit who settled for a four-day snap when the locals appear on the grounds. Local fandom is watching the club with considerable interest now that things have been finally adjusted.

THE NATIONAL RACE.

Hughey Duffy's club of castoffs and "dead ones," as Fred Clarke and others were inclined to call such players as Bransfield and Kreuger and others, returned to the Quaker City last night after the most successful Western trip which an Eastern club has made in years.

The Phillies have not won as many victories on a jaunt about the circuit since the days when Delehanty, Lajoie, Flick, Thomas Slagle and a formidable staff of pitchers made the club one of the best in the country.

The consistent playing of the Phillies certainly proves one thing, and that is that the early succession of victories was not an empty spurt as the instance of Jake Stahl's unfortunate Washington aggregation has proven to be. The Phillies are near the top to stay.

With the exception of an undeniable weakness in the box which Manager Duffy is trying to remedy by the acquisition of McFarland of the Cardinals, the club is showing as strongly as any club in the country, including the Giants. With a long stretch on the home grounds the Quakers should better their condition. They certainly have an advantage over Chicago, Cincinnati and Pittsburg in this respect as these clubs will be on the road.

In this connection a word of commendation for the generalship and grinder of Hughey Duffy does not seem amiss. The Phillies took four straight games from the Cardinals, who had just taken three out of five from Cincinnati, and followed the feat by winning three out of four from Brooklyn.

It was a battle of Duffy's pepper against Burke's ginger, and the pepper won. Hughey is in the game every minute of the day urging and coaching and pulling his players. His success has been phenomenal. Out of a team not considered in the running Hughey has made a team of Champions.

To cap the climax the "old boy," well in the fifties, jumped into the fracas at Cincinnati a short time ago when Thomas refused to play a Sunday game and electrified old "Abe" Anson and other deans of the sport by cracking out three safe hits out of five times at bat.

HANS WAGNER STILL HEADS NATIONAL LEAGUE BATSMEN

Cy Seymour of Cincinnati Team Is Second and Sixteen Are Above the .300 Mark—New York First in Team Batting and Extra Bases—Grady of the Cardinals Best Catcher — Six Pitchers With Faultless Records.

Hans Wagner is occupying his usual position as leader of the National League batsmen, according to the latest figures. Seymour is second, and there are sixteen above the .300 mark.

New York leads in team batting and in extra bases. Maloney is the best baserunner, and Seymour the greatest long-distance slugger.

Grady leads the catchers, and six pitchers have faultless fielding records. Chance and McGann are tied for the lead on first base, and Hofman leads the second baggers. Bridwell leads at third and Dahlen at short. McCarthy and Thomas have dropped no outfield flies. Chicago leads in team fielding.

Figures for men who have played ten games or more:
