OUTDOOR SERVICE FOR SUMMER TIME

Doctor Fullerton of Lucas Avenue Church, Addresses Congregation on Street and Sidewalk.

With a view of reaching young people in neighboring boarding-houses, the Reverend Doctor B. F. Fullerton of Lucas Avenue Cumberland Presbyterian Church, Lucas and Channing avenues, has adopted Salvation Army methods to attract his congregation.

Sunday night members of his Young Men's Club, who have practiced with brass instruments for several months, inaugurated the campaign by giving a sacred concert before the church.

Members of a club of young ladies gave variety to the programme by singing hymns, also in the open. A large crowd soon gathered.

About 200 chairs had ben placed in Channing avenue. These were soon filled, but the crowd became larger. Before the meeting adjourned many were seated on the curbing and steps of the church, while those who could not be accommodated in this manner were content to stand in the street and on the pavement.

The concert continued for thirty minutes and was followed by a fifteen-minute sermon, in which Doctor Fullerton outlined the obligations, social and moral, of the church to the people.

So well pleased was he with the success of the first night that Doctor Fullerton yesterday arranged to rent several hundred chairs for the summer months, which will be placed in Channing avenue for the accommodation of visitors.

Doctor Fullerton is confident that crowds he will attract to these services will not forsake the church when the winter comes.

"I know the methods employed are out of the beaten path, but I don't care about methods as long as I obtain results," said he.

"The crowd was twice as large as I have ever had at an evening service, and I know it attracted many who would not come indoors, because they feel they would be obliged to dress for the occasion."

Doctor Fullerton next Sunday will preach on "The Duty of the People to the Church." His brass instruments will be augmented by a string band.

SAYS HE WAS SHOT BY HIS BROTHER

Fred Bennish Applies for Treatment at City Hospital for Gunshot Wound Received Last Month.

Fred Bennish, 25 years old, of No. 2444 De Kalb street, is being treated at the City Hospital for a gunshot wound, which he says was inflicted by his brother, Edward Bennish, last May. The wound gave Bennish no trouble, he says, until recently, when he was forced to quit work for the first time since the bullet was fired into his body.

Bennish is a night watchman and is employed at No. 128 sidney street. On May 4 last, he declares, he was shot by his brother, who, Bennish says, is not possessed of all his faculties. The man attacked him while he was making his rounds at the rear of 2116 Rutgers street, Bennish says, and shot him in the chest. He says he went to a physician at the time and had the bullet removed, but his wound was not of a serious nature and he returned to work.

Several days ago Bennish says he was attacked with severe pains in his chest and he was compelled to quit work and go to bed. The pains grew worse each day and yesterday Bennish decided to go to the hospital. He went there alone, walking to the front gate and requesting that he be admitted as a patient.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

WILL NOT APPROVE NEGROES' PURCHASE

Presiding Elder Teeton of African M. E. Church Refuses to Indorse Sale of Central Presbyterian Edifice.

Because he does not approve taking a negro congregation from a negro district and invading a white neighborhood, the Reverend Doctor C. M. Teeton, Presiding Elder of the Negro District M. E. Church, will not approve the contract made by Memorial M. E. (negro) congregation to purchase the building of Central Presbyterian Church at Garrison and Lucas avenues.

Three other reasons are assigned by Doctor Teeton for taking this stand in the matter. He says the auditorium of the church is too small to accommodate the needs of Memorial members; that the congregation will assume a debt which it is entirely unable to carry, and that Bishop Joyce, his superior, is opposed to the purchase.

Doctor Teeton stated yesterday that he is positive in his stand, and that if his efforts count for aught Central Church will not become the house of worship for a negro congregation.

Central Church members, at a congregational meeting behind closed doors last Wednesday night, ratified by a vote of 86 to 8 the contract made by its representatives with a similar body from Memorial Church for the sale of the church building. The negroes have put up $1,000 as an evidence of good faith, and this amount will be forfeited unless they buy the property.

It is said that representatives from the negro church acted without the knowledge of the pastor and in his absence. When he returned to the city negotiations for the purchase of the property had progressed so far that he could not make his people retrace their steps.

The Presiding Elder expressed himself as not being at all alarmed at what may be the ultimate outcome if a damage suit is brought against the congregation for disregarding the contract.

He is of the opinion that the State courts will recognize the ecclesiastical discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which forbids the selling or purchasing of property without the consent of the pastor and Presiding Elder. Since this has not been obtained he holds the contract made to buy Central Church is null and void.

The next move in the matter will likely not be known until July 6, when the first installment of $10,000 must be met by the Memorial congregation.

Doctor Gilbum, pastor of the church, stated yesterday that this money is on hand. The congregation expects to realize about $10,000 from the property it now owns at Elliot and Wash streets. This will leave a debt of $20,000 on the purchase, which the negroes must pay at $300 a month.

MAY SECEDE FROM ORDER.

Wisconsin Members of Royal Arcanum Said to Be Dissatisfied.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 26.—Wisconsin members of the Royal Arcanum may secede from the order and organize an insurance society of their own. The matter will be put to each individual local council in the State for decision, and a general meeting of the Wisconsin lodges will be held later to receive the vote from the locals. At that time some drastic action is promised.

The State conference held here to-day was stormy, and declarations of disruption of the order, hints of dishonest management, and claims that old members were being forced out by a prohibitive rate were freely made by the delegates.

The question of putting the organization into the hands of a receiver is being considered by the Milwaukee councils.

PILGRIM CHURCH TO BE REMOVED

New Structure, Costing $175,000, Will Be Erected at Kensington and Union — Old Building to Go.

Within the next two months, work on the erection of a Pilgrim Congregational Church, to cost $175,000, and to be located at Kensington avenue and Union boulevard, will begin. When completed, the structure, which has been standing at Ewing and Washington avenues, since the Civil War, will be vacated and probably wrecked, and a more modern building will be erected.

Mauran-Russell and Gradner, architects, are to superintend the construction of the church and are now at work drawing plans.

Several months ago, when it was first hinted a new building was to be erected, consternation reigned among the congregation of the Fountain Avenue Church, which is of the same denomination, and located at Fountain and Aubeny avenues, only a few blocks from where the new Pilgrim Congregational Church is to be built.

It was believed that the new church would cause the Fountain avenue church to pass out of existence. It was rumored that a battle would be fought in the courts to prevent the new edifice being erected, but the excitement finally subsided and the matter dropped.

The lot owned by the Pilgrim Congregational Church is 175 feet square and was purchased for $15,000. It is almost in the heart of the locality where members of the congregation live.

The reason for razing the old structure, which was made famous through its musical chimes, was due to its location. Only a few of its members live in the vicinity, and for this reason, it was feared members would desert it for a church more convenient to their homes.

George H. Morgan, one of the leaders in the church, and John L. Mauran, one of the architects, engineering the construction, stated yesterday that the chimes and clock on the Washington avenue church would be placed on the new structure.

On the new church, the chimes and clock will be larger than the old ones, and will cost several thousand dollars.

The edifice will be built of rock, and will cover nearly all of the 175 feet of land. The new building and the price of the ground will make a total cost of $150,000. Work will commence before September 1. The congregation has already subscribed $50,000.

WILL SOUND TAPS FOR ABLE SEAMAN

Charles Offer, Who Died at Cavite, P. I., Will Be Buried From Church Where He Was Married.

Taps will be sounded to-morrow afternoon over the grave of Christian Offer, seaman on the United States torpedoboat Decatur, who died last February 22, at Cavite, Philippine Islands, and whose body was received by the M. H. Alexander Undertaking Company Sunday night. The funeral of the sailor will take place from St. Nicholas's Church, where a year and five months ago he and Miss Bertha Vogel were married.

The couple had been childhood sweethearts. After many and long separations, during which Offer had traveled the world over and had been in bloody naval engagements, the sailor came home on a short furlough and was married.

Their honeymoon lasted but a week, when the sailor returned to duty on board the Nashville. Mrs. Offer never saw her husband again.

Offer's death was caused by a sudden attack of pneumonia, which he suffered on board the Decatur on that vessel's return from Chinese waters, having followed the Japanese and Russian fleets on instructions to watch the naval maneuvers. He was put ashore at Cavite and died after an illness of seven hours.

His death terminated a period of twelve years' service in the United States Navy. Had he lived he would have been stationed at Norfolk in three months more. At the time of the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, he was a gunner aboard the Nashville in Cuban waters and stood beside the gun which fired the first shot in the war.

WOUNDED AT SANTIAGO.

He took part in the naval battle of Santiago, and was wounded in the knee in that engagement. He was one of the crew of the boat that took Hobson and his companions away from their Spanish prison after the sinking of the Merrimac.

His body had been on the way from the Orient since May 15. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, from his wife's residence, No. 2955 Thomas street, to St. Nicholas's Church, where Father Schaeffer, who performed the marriage, will officiate at the services.

Six sailors from the naval reserves, led by Charles Oheim, an old friend of the departed sailor, will act as pallbearers. At the grave in Calvary Cemetery, a bugler from Jefferson Barracks will sound taps.

Mr. Offer is survived by his wife and a sister, Mrs. Mary Powell of O'Fallon, Ill. He was 48 years old.
