The Cardinals were defeated twice yesterday. McFarland and Egan were pelted unmercifully in one inning of each game. The Phillies trained their batteries on "Chappy" for four runs in the fourth inning of the first encounter, and bombarded the flaxen-haired Egan for a total of six runs in one session in the second contest. The scores were 6 to 2 and 7 to 2.

After these rounds the Cardinals had no chance. Only in the last inning of the first calamity did the vindictive might of the locals assert itself. That launched an exciting rally which lasted long enough to save them from a shut-out and drive one Mr. Sparks from the center of the ring with the bases full and two runs over the plate.

Early in the first game Jimmy Burke was laid out by a collision with Fred Titus. The latter had doubled to right and was trying to make third on the throw home. Burke was felled to the ground. He was apparently tootweak to display much activity at third base, and Jack Taylor was sent in. Jack did all right in the second game on two difficult catches, until Bransfield caught him pondering on the intricate situations pertaining to the base-full and a hard-rapped pellet flying through his territory.

While in his meditations "Kitty" whipped a drive at Taylor, which he seized perfectly. But Jack forgot about Magee being on first and instead of working Burke's favorite double, Jack just heaved fast and low to Beckley. Jake is not used to having them come too fast from the other end of the square, and promptly dropped the heave.

In the second inning Harry Arndt, whose playing was the feature of the first game, if there was any feature about the locals' work, smashed a home run. The ball was away from the Coatesville lad's bat like a shot, bound straight for the clubhouse. Before Thomas captured the runaway pellet Harry had completed three-fourths of the distance, and went the remaining fourth on the return.

But the exertions of the first game and the scrapping spirit of the second were too much for the lad, and he succumbed to the heat. Another pitcher went into the game, Thielman taking Dunleavy's place in right field and the "shooter" coming into second. That made three pitchers working in the second game.

The Cardinal resistance seemed to wither away after the fourth inning. It was this way in both games yesterday. McFarland and Egan were invincible for four innings.

Then, like a flash, McFarland jumped aboard his aerial craft and navigated the atmosphere long enough to give the invaders the game.

Egan was unfortunate. After his companions had committed miserable errors "Wish" worked hard and denied the enemy the tally. It was "Kitty" that was too much for the youthful lad, and he was pounded for a total of five hits and a base on balls, which netted six runs.

It was Egan's only bad spell, but it was fatal, as Dougldey was romping on the green like a kitten and tantalizing the home lads with a bewildering collection of ancient out curves and straight shots, which the alleged "kitty" failed to offset.

It will do little good to recount the advance of the Phillies toward the top of the league. It would take a war correspondent to do the subject justice.

Briefly, the first game went to Philadelphia, not because McFarland was pounded hard, but because the juvenile Duffy's greetings lunched hits in two innings. An error by McBride and slow fielding made the defeat possible. St. Louis could not play the uphill game.

They tried to come from behind at the last moment. The mad dash frightened Sparks and he nearly fainted in the diamond. Duffy pulled him out quickly. Corridon terminated the rally with three pitched balls after five successive singles had come from the slender Sparks.

Notes of the Game.

Vice President Stanley Robison has advertised today's double header as "Nichols's Day," a deserving compliment to the veteran flinger of the Phillies, who will pitch one of the games this afternoon. "Nichols is one great ball player, and why not extend to the veteran the courtesy of a day in his honor?" said Mr. Robison. If the weather is propitious a record-breaking crowd may be in attendance. Yesterday's crowd was a record breaker. All of which goes to show that a double-header is about the only attraction at the local parks which will draw.

Taylor and Thielman both worked in yesterday's games. Both are carded to-day. With one or two of the regular players crippled, the Cardinals would be in a much worse condition than they are at present. The club has no utility outfielder nor infielder. A pitcher is the only alternative of Captain Burke. Negotiations are on now for an infielder from the South Bend club.

A tinge of sadness fell on the great crowd yesterday when they beheld the snappy Cardinal leader, who has just resigned his place, laid out cold and stiff at his post. Jimmy made a great effort to get Titus, but Fred bowled Burke over and was safe. The severe nervous strain of the past few days has left Burke on the verge of illness, and it would not be surprising if Jimmy were out of the game to-day. Late last night he said the injury was painful, but he hoped to be back at his post to-day. The Cardinals can spare any member of the club sooner than Burke. He is an absolute necessity to that bunch in their present shape.

Harry Arndt's work since the club returned from the East has been little less than phenomenal. He has batted well, but his fielding is superior to that of any of the members of the visiting clubs. Arndt grabbed two speeding grounders back of second base yesterday, touched the bag, and got the ball to Beckley in time to retire the runner, completing two of the prettiest doubles seen at the park in weeks. His home run in the second game was a beauty.

Bransfield is playing a surprisingly fast game at first for Duffy. It is extremely doubtful if Frank Chance has anything on "Kitty" at his present pace. He leaped into the air and pulled down with his gloved mitt, a sure double from Jack Taylor's willow yesterday. He is also working his bat successfully. His hitting was one of the features of the second game.

The Phillies are going to be a very hard club to beat from now on. Duffy has what is probably the best outfield in the country, all points considered. Magee, Thomas and Titus cover a world of ground, and their returns to the diamond are swift and accurate. If Duffy's pitching staff was a trifle stronger, both New York and Pittsburg would have to hustle before the end of the season. Hughey himself may be seen in the game to-day in Thomas's place, as Roy does not play Sunday games.

Brooklyn comes to St. Louis after the Phillies. Judging by the reception they have received at Cincinnati since the Giants walloped the Reds eight times running, Ned Hanlon's bunch has not been going at the pace they showed at home. They may recover their form as they strike St. Louis. Most every club in the league, good or bad, seems to strike a hot pace when it hits this city.

ROBISON HAS NOTHING TO SAY ABOUT BURKE'S SUCCESSOR.

Up to a late hour last night Stanley Robison had not received a message from his brother, Frank deHaas Robison at Cincinnati, who is personally conducting the negotiations for the new manager of the Cardinals. In the meantime Jimmy Burke will remain in command of the locals.

"I cannot say who the gentlemen are with whom my brother is in correspondence," said Mr. Robison yesterday. "When the appointment is made I will call all of the newspaper men into the office and make the announcement. It may be a week before Mr. Burke's successor is named."

The feeling about baseball circles yesterday leaned heavily to the report that John J. McCloskey may get the place. It is likely that McCloskey will accept.

POLICE RESCUE GIANTS FROM MOB

When Umpire Bausewine Forfeits Game to Pittsburg, McGraw's Men Attack Umpire as the Crowd Starts for Players.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 5.—One of the most fearful riots ever seen on a baseball field in Pittsburg occurred at the close of the New York-Pittsburg game to-day. The score was 5 to 5. With no one out and a Pittsburg player on third, in the last half of the ninth inning, New York started a fight and refused to play.

They objected to a decision by Bausewein calling Ritchie safe at third, and became ugly with Umpires Emslie and Bausewein. Umpire Bausewein pulled his watch on them and threatened to forfeit the game if play was not resumed in one minute.

McGraw shook his fist in the face of Bausewine, while Mathewson tried to knock the umpire's watch from his hand. This settled matters. The moment the hands of the watch showed the minute was up Bausewine held up his hand and declared the game had been forfeited to Pittsburg—9 to 0. The New York players started for Umpire Bausewein pellmell.

Just about the time the Giants started for Bausewein about 10,000 of the 18,000 spectators in the field and stands started for McGraw and his players. They were soon surrounded by a wild and angry mob, many of which wanted to get a punch at some member of the team.

Scores of police seemed to rise out of the ground and the frantic crowd was hammered back with clubs. Fred Clarke came in with his players and helped beat the crowd back from the New York players, who huddled in a bunch near the bench.

The New York players at the end of fifteen minutes were taken in couples from the field and loaded in their carriages back of the stand. But the troubles of the Eastern players seemed only to have begun. The crowd which was the biggest ever appearing at a game in Pittsburg, extended round the stand. There was no protection for the players there.

Some of the rougher element among the fans took shots with stones at the Giants and their leader as they started out in their carriages. The yellow blankets bearing the inscription "New York Champions" were torn from the horses of McGraw's carriage, and the entire club was stoned on Robinson street and clear to the bridge spanning the river.

Several of the New York players were hurt, but not seriously, by the flying stones. All the players, before departing for Chicago to-night, said they were indeed glad to have escaped with their lives. McGraw said he would protest the game. The New York team will likely be fined $1,000 for allowing the game to be forfeited.

MOUND CITY FOUR PROTESTS DECISION

Claim That Quincy Rowers Did Not Turn Buoy Sustained and Race Will Be Run To-Day—Regatta Summaries.

It took the judges and umpire of the Southwestern Rowing Association two hours yesterday to decide a dispute between the Mound City junior four and the North Side Rowing Club junior (Quincy) four at Creve Coeur Lake. After the race, which was apparently won by the Quincy four, the Mound City team raised a protest, claiming that the Quincy crew did not turn the buoy.

Umpire Wallace ordered the judges to confer with him. It was decided that the race was no contest and should be run over again at 11 o'clock this morning.

This race was the best contest of the day. The Quincy men displayed an excellent dip and return.

The stroke of Moritz, Meyer, Borden and Bowen was of excellent quality and showed long training. They did not get off very well, but once under way they hustled their competitors to the rear.

The Mound City four, C. Lepping, W. Valentine, Emil Floerke and R. Spradling, worked the best of the St. Louis crews. They were second. The Central Rowing Club four was third, with the Westerns last.

The regatta opened with a special senior barge cup race. The Mound City crew won this by fifteen lengths. The St. Louis Rowing Club finished second, with the Western Rowing Club third.

The junior singles showed that O. Zimmerman of the Quincy South Sides is a stalwart oarsman with a good stroke.

C. Guenther of the Mound Citys lived up to the hopes of his friends by finishing second. Hermsdorffer of the North Side Boat Club of Quincy was third. He showed excellent speed and control of his boat, but did not appear to have the staying powers. Gus Rapp was fourth, with Gasser, the Central star, last.

Quincy scored again in the junior doubles, when the South Side Boat Club crew pushed its prow first at the flags. Timmerman, bow, and Zimmermann, stroke, worked well together, and appeared to be easily the best double crew. The Schmidt brothers, Frank and Joe, of the St. Louis Rowing Club crew, were the contenders, and made a sharp bid for the honors from buoy turn to the flags. The Dilg brothers, crew No. 1 of the St. Louis Rowing Club, were third, with the Westerns last.

Crew No. 2 of the Century Boat Club landed the junior pair event. Fisse and Lansing were good partners, and showed strength and speed over the course. Lash and Hoerle of the Mound City Club were second, with the Westerns third.

But for a peculiar mistake Fred Rapp might have won the special quarter-mile dash. He was leading easily when near the flag, but he thought he had won and and stopped. John Joachim then came on and beat him.

The Mound City's junior barge crew scored in the junior barge event. They displayed by far the most skill in handling their boat, and their victory was a credit to St. Louis oarsmen. The South Sides were second in this event, with the North Sides third.

The summaries:

CANADIAN REGATTA ENDED.

St. Catharines, Ontario, Aug. 5.—The closing day of the regatta of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen was a gala one in spite of a keen southeast wind and a rough course.

The Winnipeg four won the intermediate and followed up the victory by defeating the Argonaut crew in the senior four.

The best race of the day was the senior single, in which McGee of Toronto and Feussel of New York seesawed all the way. McGee won by less than two feet.

New York, Aug. 5.—Before a crowd of 20,000 at American League Park to-day the local climbers on the league ladder whipped the long-suffering Browns from St. Louis by the scores of 3 to 1 and 6 to 5. Save for a little frayed work here and there, the visitors plugged along smoothly enough, and the Highlanders every now and then had to shake out a reef or two and consult the chart in order to outfoot and outpoint them.

From the viewpoint of fast and interesting baseball the first game was the better of the two. Chesbro was just about at his best and that means the anxious seat for them that go down to the plate with bats. Sudhoff, too, was in prime pitching form, but "Happy" Jack had the better of the support. Young Mr. Wallace, whose wild throw cost St. Louis its first game here, was thoroughly on the hop in this contest and he was constantly pestering the locals.

Griffith's men started well enough. Conroy whipped a safe one to left and Keeler pushed him along with a sacrifice. He made a beautiful steal of third and scored when on the "squeeze" play Elberfeld's out helped him home.

In the second inning the Highlanders tallied again on a hit by Williams, an out and Wallace's error on Kleinow's drive.

Aided by Conroy's superb stops and throws from third, Chesbro allowed the Browns only three hits, right down to the ninth. One of these was a short two-bagger by Wallace, another Sudhoff's single in the sixth and the third Starr's scratch in the opener.
