Harry Arndt's sensational steal home in the last minute of play, with two out, with Jack Taylor at the bat, and the score 1 to 1, enabled the Cardinals to break even with the Pirates in a double-header yesterday, when many of the spectators were pulling for a Pittsburg victory. The natives lost the first encounter, 8 to 2, by virtue of the healthy pounding administered to McFarland.

Strange things occur in baseball. All season the fans have fought for the locals to win. Yesterday Brooklyn beat New York, and a double victory for the Dreyfuss crowd would have placed Clarke's warriors a game nearer to pennacious McGraw. An outsider would easily have believed that the Pittsburg lads were the home players in the second contest. They wanted the Cardinals beaten, but those erratic sons of Robison would not stand for it.

Pittsburg had plain sailing until they went up against Jack Taylor. Jack has an old score to settle with Herr Dreyfuss. Taylor is revengeful, and he has the ability to satisfy his vindictiveness. A few days ago Jack allowed four hits to Pittsburg, and they beat him when his pals whipped out fourteen.

The Cardinal flinger reduced their bevy of bingles to three and gave them all to Hans Wagner. Well did Mr. Taylor earn his victory, and how sweet the triumph was, only Jack can tell.

Wagner fought with the determination of a bulldog. He was everywhere in both encounters, but in the last one his work was never excelled in St. Louis. Had Pittsburg taken the second game the victory would have been Wagner's, not Pittsburg's.

FIRST GAME.

There was little worthy of note in the first go beyond the persistent bombardment of McFarland, the remarkable fielding of Arthur Hoelsketter and the clockwork performance of the Pirate infield. Ganley the first man to the plate, smashed the leather into space beyond Shannon and took three bases. From then on it was all Pittsburg.

The crowd contented themselves with applauding the wonderfully sharp fielding of Hoelsketter and Wagner. McFarland's thumping was music to the ears of the fans who want to see Pittsburg somewhere near New York when the curtain falls.

Just once did McFarland pitch the ball he sometimes shows he is able to heave and that was the first inning when he held Ganley at third base while he retired the side, striking out Wagner. Big Mike Lynch was never in trouble. The Celtic collegian exhibited a fascinating assortment of wide curves, with which he found much amusement with the Cardinals. Once Beckley scratched a double and young Hoelsketter smashed over Brain's head for another double, but Michael retired the following three with little difficulty.

SECOND GAME.

Taylor ambled across the lot with a young catcher from St. Charles, whom Jack corralled during the day. In the afternoon he put a Cardinal uniform on the recruit and made him warm up before the second go. It was good fungo exercise for Jack and the youngster's bewilderment at the flingers's benders put Taylor in excellent humor for the encounter.

"Deacon" Phillippe was ordered into action against the vindictive Jack. The duel of these two star flingers was intensely interesting. Taylor was twirling by far the more effective game, but the "Deacon" was getting the same results of his work against the locals, and when the clubs came together for the final session the score was even.

Shannon grabbed two of the outs from the willows of Leach and Beaumont, but Hans Wagner was not willing to die without a struggle, and whipped his third bingle to right field.

The inning previous the big Tyrolean made the circuit on a single, a stolen base, a walk to third, when he booted Grady's throw to left field, and tallied on Howard's rap to Arndt.

Hornus immediately darted for second, but this time Grady threw well, and Arndt tagged the German as he dove for the pillow. There seemed to be little hope for the locals. All through the game Wagner had been an impenetrable barrier to St. Louis success. Once he grabbed Gibson's poor throw out of the dirt with his gloved mitt and put the ball on Beckley with one hand.

It remained for Arndt to cap the climax of a day of brilliant fielding and an unusual exhibition of the game. But Wagner figured in this event, as he did in all the others. Arndt, the first man up in the last half of the ninth, whipped the ball on a line between Brain and Wagner. Hans gave a flying leap after the ball and knocked it down, but Harry got his base.

Arndt took a big lead and Phillippe threw to catch him. Howard lost the ball. It rolled almost to the fence. Phillippe found the leather as Arndt pulled up at third.

The game looked over as Grady walked to the plate. A fly would score the run. Michael Angelo fell down on a bounder to the "Deacon" and McBride fanned. With Taylor up, Arndt dashed for home. He just beat the throw of Phillippe and knocked the ball out of Gibson's hands.

Notes of the Game.

The Cardinals advance to Hannibal to-day, where they line up against Jake Beckley's pals of a half century age. "Beckley Day" promises to be the event of the year in the Sage's town. An athlete of Jake's years who has eluded Doctor Osler so skilfully, ought to be a drawing card in that part of Missouri. They say only one of Jacob's old playmates survives, and he is a hermit in the mountains. The Browns play a double-header at Chicago to-day.

Hoelsketter, or "Boney," as he is hailed, showed a wonderful aptitude on those bad bounders yesterday. The native son is bound to become a warm favorite with such fielding stunts. His double saved the Cardinals from a shut-out in the first game, and his infield rap in the second inning put the natives in the lead until the seventh. He accepted chances which would make Bradley blush.

Jack Taylor was a well-pleased man last night. "Hey Barney" was not a well-pleased man. McGraw was satisfied—as well as could be with his hirelings falling down before the tail-enders. Taylor worked well both ways. He helped his friend McGraw, who is anxious to have Jack with the Giants, and he put a severe crimp in Dreyfuss's pennant aspirations.

Arndt's steal, which won the game for the natives, was far ahead of any feat of its kind seen here this season. Rockenfield stole home at Sportsman's Park, but his pilfer did not bring victory. Harry is entitled to a whole lot of credit for his daring work, and Danny Shay, who was on the coaching line, and got Arndt off to a good start, must not be forgotten. The play was the surprise of the day. None of the visitors suspected the trick. Evan Leach and Wagner admitted last night that the act was the most daring they have seen this season. That one steal may deprive Pittsburg of a pennant. Arndt and Taylor were tighter than bees last night.

The Cardinals are playing a much stronger game than at any time this season. The pitching staff is stronger and the natives are meeting the ball with more regularity. It is extremely doubtful if the Cardinals can take a series from Shannon, Smoot et al. Certain it is that the League Park crowd is willing to see the Brownies. The games should draw a good crowd. The Browns will have more trouble beating Brown and Taylor than they imagine.

Pittsburg did not lack "boosters" yesterday. The faithful were pulling hard for the Cardinals until the score boy placed a big "7" back of the Brooklyn club. A wild cheer greeted the success of Hanlon's crew. The Pirates were surprised. Then the support shifted to the Pirates. But Taylor had a score to settle, and well Jack did his work. Mr. Taylor demonstrated yesterday that he is a finger of more than ordinary ability—when he wants to be.

New York will have its troubles taking the flag from the Pirates if Leach and his lads are able to cut that lead down two or three games in the next week. The Pittsburg club at present is stronger than at any time this year, and what is better, their pitchers are going well. New York, on the other hand, has lost two out of four games to Brooklyn, which would seem to show that McGraw's pitchers are weakening.

New York 3—5, Brooklyn 2—8.

PARSONS GOES TO WISCONSIN.

Eastern Athletes Disappointed at Loss of California Sprinter.

The announcement that Charles Parsons, the California sprinter, had entered Wisconsin University, was a disappointment to Eastern athletes, as it was hoped that he would come to New York. Efforts were made to have him go East after he displayed such wonderful form at Portland, when he won the 100-yard championship in 9-4-5 seconds, beating such men as Archie Hahn of Milwaukee and Clyde Blair of Chicago.

It is said that Parsons will try for football honors at Wisconsin, but it is improbable that A. A. A. Karzenlein, the track coach, will risk such a valuable man on the football team. Parsons is not only very fast at 100 yards, but he can travel the 220 and 440 yards at a fast gait. He is nearly six feet in height and weighs 160 pounds.

Frank Greer of Boston, who has won the sculling championship of the United States for three years, has about decided to abandon the amateur ranks. Greer has not announced whether he will coach and row for money or go into the hotel business.

L. B. Goodwin of the New York Athletic Club, practically established a new swimming record recently at Atlantic Highlands, near Brooklyn. Starting from scratch in the 500-yard handicap, he won handily in the fast time of 5:37. This is twenty seconds under the Amateur Athletic Union record, held by Daniels, of 6:11.

There is some doubt of the record being accepted as official, owing to the lack of absolute accuracy regarding the length of the course and the approval of the officials. E. H. Adams of the N. Y. A. C. was second, while George Scheffer was third. Daniels did not compete.

Martin J. Sheridan, the champion discus thrower of the world and the all-around champion, was protested last Saturday by the New York Athletic Club in the senior Metropolitan track and field championships at New York. It is claimed that Sheridan received $75 for competing in a set of games in Boston on or about July 22, held under the management of Jack Moakley, the Cornell trainer. The protest was supplemented by the claim that Sheridan had further agreed to compete in Boston next Thursday, for which he was to receive $40.

Fred Shepherd, the crack sculler of the Scawanhaka Boat Club, has won eighteen rowing races this summer. This is a remarkable performance and stamps Shepherd as one of the greatest blade experts in the country.

HORSE SHOW COMPANY TO MEET.

Directors and President Will Be Chosen This Afternoon.

An important meeting of the St. Louis Horse Show Company will be held at the Hotel Jefferson, Twelfth and Locust streets, this afternoon. A Board of Directors will be elected. The directors will at once proceed to elect a president.

Mr. Augustus Busch and Max R. Orthwein have been prominently mentioned for this most responsible position. Mr. Orthwein, who is temporary president of the company, pending permanent organization, is very anxious that stockholders, both actual and prospective, attend. Mr. Orthwein is a staunch supporter of Mr. Busch for presidential honors. He says that the young brewer is the man for the position. Mr. Busch has promised to attend the meeting and Mr. Orthwein desires an especially large attendance of stockholders to meet him.
