MUCH COTTON COVERING ON REPORTS OF WEATHER.

Market Later Yields to Realizing and Close Is Barely Steady at Net Advance of 5 to 8 Points.

New York, Oct. 11.—Reports of frost in Northwest sections of the cotton belt and forecasts for frosts in exposed sections of the Eastern belt to-night caused active covering to-day and the market during the middle session had quite a sharp advance, yielding later to realizing; the close was barely steady at a net advance of 5 to 8 points. Sales were estimated at 350,000 bales.

The opening was firm at a net advance of 4 to 11 points in response to higher cables. Reports of frosts in portions of the Northwest and a light frost at Memphis were received early, but the local professional element had bought on the previous day in anticipation of a frost scare, and, when early reports indicated no material damage, the market worked off under realizing and a renewal of bear pressure with prices just before noonday only 1 to 2 points above last night's finals.

Later however, the official forecast for frost in the Western belt and prediction for frost in portions of Arkansas and Memphis caused a second upward turn on covering of early sellers and outside buying, with prices in the early afternoon at the top point of the session or a net advance of 12 to 16 points.

Toward the close selling was the feature and the market lost about half of the gain, Southern spot markets unchanged to ⅛ higher.

BRIGHT MARKET AT NEW ORLEANS.

BUT DULL SPOTS.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 11.—The Times-Democrat, in its summary of the cotton situation, will say to-morrow:

Overcoats were worn in the far South yesterday, and the effect on the cotton market was electrical. The cold snap was barely severe enough to have materially damaged the crop, but it has broken the lethargy of pickers and strengthened the convictions of farmers generally, which, combined, has brought about a mild but decided bull flash back into the fold and to some extent re-established the popularity of the small crop estimates. While there is never any safety in guessing at killing frost dates in the ordinary conditions of the weather during most of the growing season, the coming of the first real frost and the possibility of freak there promptly after the phenomenal harvest from the hitherto weakened ranks of the enemy to hold off until the last moment.

The real element of conflicting perplexing in the matter of late-cotton development probably begins to figure as a price influence at no very distant date. At present, while the warning of early frost has caused a sharp rally, it is not the part of wisdom to lose sight of the fact that the bulls will loosen up the fever quarantine, and so cause the average farmer to pick out the crop. Now, however, the condition of affairs does not promise to last for more than a few days longer, and the weather weapon is again supply the bulls in first hands to warrant the making of the crop into a permanent advance, it is too early to say what the market is destined to develop.

Cotton Quotations.

New York, Oct. 11.—Spot cotton closed quiet, 5 points higher; middling uplands 10.20; middling gulf 10.45; sales 500 bales. Futures closed barely steady. Oct. [illegible], Nov. [illegible], Dec. [illegible], Jan. [illegible], Feb. [illegible], March [illegible], April [illegible], May [illegible]. Futures opened steady, with prices 5 points higher on Oct. and 1 to 3 points higher on other months, with a good demand from all sources. Spots and futures rallied on covering by shorts and a good demand from bulls, prices rising 10 to 12 points on Oct. and 5 to 7 points on other months, with the bulls in control and the shorts covering freely. Later there was a reaction on realizing, but the market
