PALATIAL FLATS BUILT IN LONDON

Eleven Bed and Living Rooms for Family, With Servants' Hall, Billiard Parlor and Three Bathrooms, to Rent for $15,000.

SPECIAL BY CABLE.

London, Nov. 18.—(Copyright, 1905.)—The palatial flats of London, and they are many, will be completely eclipsed by the magnificent mansions which are to rise on the site of Gloucester House, the town residence of the late Duke of Cambridge.

Millionaires' flats they are called, and the name is justified by the rents, which will be $15,000 a year, exclusive of the rates and taxes. The foundation is already in, but it will be eighteen months before the building will be completed. The structure will be six stories high and will be faced with new stone, not unlike Carrara marble.

The position, of course, is an ideal one. Thed rawing-rooms are facing Green Park, while Park Lane will be the side attraction. The frontage is about 60 feet and the depth 250 feet.

There will be eleven bed and living rooms in each flat, and, for the first time in the history of flat life in London, the servants will enjoy the luxury of a large servants' hall.

By throwing the drawing-room and the adjoining boudoirs into one, a magnificent ballroom can be obtained. There will be two elevators, one for the tenants and one for servants. Each flat will have three bathrooms, and the cooking and heating will be done by electricity, and—hitherto an unknown luxury for flats—there will be billiard-rooms.

CAT CAUSES PANIC ON TRAIN.

Beast Leaps Off When Car Door Is Thrown Open.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

London, Ontario, Nov. 18.—Conductor William Aigle, Messenger Matheson and an Owen Sound traveler had an exciting experience in a Grand Trunk baggage car with a wildcat en route from Owen Sound to London.

The cat was a monster, having been captured in Louis Head, near Wiarton, a year ago.

The feline was held prisoner in a heavy wire cage. It became very savage, and endeavored to liberate itself.

Conductor Aigle's attention was drawn to the matter, and he secured the attendance in the car of the traveler in charge of the animal. With the aid of a heavy stick the cat was quieted.

Suddenly the occupants of the car were startled by the cry of the messenger: "The cat's out!" The beast had forced its way through the meshes of the cage and sprang perched on the safe beside the messenger at work at his desk.

The three men sought safety on piles of baggage, and the cast was monarch of all he surveyed. Growling fiercely and spitting almost from end to end of the car in a vain effort to find egress, the infuriated cat kept up a reign of terror.

The messenger secured his revolver, but the traveler begged that he would not kill his property. Conductor Aigle, realizing that the door of the car be closed and the animal allowed to escape at Guelph, this was effected, and the cat, with the train traveling at fifty miles an hour, jumped out upon the platform and leaped from the car. With mighty springs it crossed fences and fields and was soon lost in the woods about Cheslev.

CANVASS OF MEN ON STREET DIVULGES THAT BUT SEVEN OUT OF TWENTY ATTEND CHURCH

Reasons Given For Failing to Attend Services Are That They Are Ashamed of Clothes, Lack of Cordiality in Extending Invitation and Inability to Attend Because Night Duties Necessitate Sleeping in Day Time.

REASONS WHY MEN DO NOT ATTEND CHURCH.

THE REVEREND DOCTOR W. J. WILLIAMSON.

[illegible]

Do you go to church?

Twenty men were confronted with this question in a quiet, unexciting mind in a down-town district from the Republic building. Seventy-three said they did. Seventy-three said they did not. And the question was answered in the affirmative.

Twenty men were asked that seven of them were found hardhanging. Twenty-three were relatively said "I go when I feel like it." Others said they go when they feel, and then passed it off with expression on their faces that said they rarely showed their observation went in the city. Hence that some matter-of-fact "Daily on re-[illegible]

The man who said he go to church in a rather [illegible] appearance [illegible] He [illegible] he business man in prosperous circumstances.

[illegible] go to church? [illegible] answer gave information.

He surveyed the questioner keenly and [illegible] "Why, I go to church because it is expected of me. It was explained that the question referred to the informed [illegible] of a given number [illegible] the reason [illegible] replied [illegible] recommendation [illegible]

[illegible] young man [illegible] and he also read [illegible] gave [illegible] required with [illegible]

A man in overalls and a jumper and [illegible] was the [illegible] question was [illegible] "Yes."

[illegible] been [illegible] for the [illegible] and [illegible] in a [illegible] with the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] the question [illegible] "Sometimes." [illegible]

Several men to whom the question was put waited [illegible] the question [illegible] them to work at night and be [illegible] they were [illegible] sleep during the hours when [illegible] church.

One man said that he had a family of three small children and [illegible] his wife is an ardent [illegible] worker. He remained at home on Sunday [illegible] taking care of the children while [illegible] going for all.

SEVEN ANSWERED YES.

In this manner twenty men in various circumstances were accosted and the same question asked of all. Seven of the entire number answered "yes," six responded in the negative and the remainder either ignored the question entirely or made some comment which left room for doubt as to their position on the question of church going.

Possibly had the matter been pressed further other reasons why men do not go to church besides indifference and want of proper raiment would have been given. In fact, sensational preaching and bringing politics into the pulpit were assigned as the chief reasons by two friends for their not attending church. A cause given by a lawyer is that he seriously questions the minister's sincerity. But these are not counted in the twenty, for the question was put to them on another day.

If seven in every twenty is a fair estimate of the male attendance in churches, this would indicate that a little more than a third of the total adult male population of the city, or to be more exact, 42,750 of the 130,000 registered voters consider themselves members of some religious body.

Many congregations in St. Louis are about equally divided as between male and female attendance, but in a great number pastors admit that it is a difficult matter to secure even a sprinkling of men.

The fact that there is a large boarding population in all large cities is claimed by some to be a cause. Many young men, ministers say, who had church connection in their home towns, become negligent when they come to seek their fortune in the cities, and only attend services at irregular periods. They soon become indifferent as to their religious obligations and, having no one to encourage them, quit.

The Reverend Doctor W. J. Williamson, pastor of Third Baptist Church, stated that he had no complaint to make on this score, but gave an interesting talk on the subject.

DOCTOR WILLIAMS'S VIEWS.

"Multitudes of men," he said, "do attend church. There is an evident increase of interest in religious matters. The churches of our city have a fair proportion of men in their membership, and these represent all grades of social, professional and business life.

"Multitudes, however, do not go to church. Some are too absorbed in business. Being the Lord's Day for physical rest. Of course, most of these are making a mistake. Man does not live by bread alone, and he who makes his place for religious truth will find his life becoming more and more impoverished. Many of the most useful men in every walk of life testify that engaging in public worship sends them to Monday's tasks with quickened impulses and a restful mind. The church wants busy men. The same scripture which commands a man to serve the Lord requires him to be diligent in business. There is something the matter with a manly religion when he is content to be an idler. If you will visit the prayer meetings of St. Louis you will find that almost without exception those in attendance are the busiest men in our city; men who bravely bear their own burdens and some of the burdens of others. A man ought to be ashamed to give his wife this excuse. She has worked all week as hard as he, but when Sunday comes she gets the children ready for Sunday school, attends church and in many cases goes home to get her husband's dinner.

"In every community there are men who are endeavoring to lead Christian lives apart from the aid of public worship, and we cannot deny the fact that they attain a character not possessed by many church members, but the comparison is not between this man and a weak member of the church, but between this man, good as he is, and what he might become if he gave himself to the public worship and service of God. Nothing in all human experience has ever taken the place of the public assembly. But saving oneself is not the highest end of life. Jesus said, 'He that saveth his life shall lose it.' By cooperation in the affairs of the church we become a part of the most helpful organization ever known to man.

"The reason for the nonattendance of a very large class is as old as the story of the race—an unwillingness to accept God's standard of life. The Savior said some love darkness rather than light. Sin is the great and fundamental cause of many of our attitudes.

"Sunday amusements draw many from the house of God, though it is extremely doubtful if those who are so engaged would come to church even if these places did not exist. The Christian life is not built upon negations and we cannot legislate men into the kingdom of God. After all, it is a question of taste, and men are free.

LABOR KEEPS MANY AWAY.

"Sunday labor keeps many away. Much of this seems to be necessary, but very much could be done away with, and society be the gainer thereby. Some of the most successful salesmen on Washington avenue will not open their stepkes on Sunday, and they seem to succeed. Some of the largest houses urge their men not to sell goods on Sunday.

"Church going is a habit with many, and once formed becomes a part of life. The church itself should accept its share of the blame. Some churches have lived in the past and in the future, failing to put the right emphasis upon the life that now is. The people are harassed with doubts and temptations, and when Sunday comes they want a message of cheer and helpfulness, something that will enable them to meet bravely their daily duties and live an overcoming life. Men can no longer be bound by creeds, which their fellow-men framed centuries ago. They want and are entitled to have the simple message of Jesus as revealed in an open Bible.

"The church is not to be a club of people selected by worldly standards, but should include all who seek to follow Christ, whether they be rich or poor, learned or ignorant. The atmosphere should be one of cordial welcome. There ought to be no place in the world where a poor man should feel so much at home as in the house of God.

"The church should be an ideal democracy, the one place where all men are free and equal, where social distinctions and rank should give way to the larger brotherhood and be inspired by the spirit of him who, possessed of all power, girded himself with a towel and washed his disciples' feet.

"The motto of the world is 'Every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost.' Christ came to see that the devil did not get the hindmost. The church will have power in proportion to the degree in which it possesses this spirit. It does not deserve any more, and God will see to it that it does not get more.

"After all, what is church? A company of believers in Christ who, in the observance of his teachings, are banded together for mutual helpfulness, and engaged in extending the gospel of God's love throughout the world. Surely this is worthy of the best we have."

NEW GUNS FOR U. S. ARMY.

Rifles Manufactured to Supplant the Krag-Jergensens.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 18.—Workmen in the United States Armory here will be busy night and day for a few months now turning out new Springfield rifles of the 1903 models for the soldiers of the regular army. All the old Krag-Jorgensen rifles now in use will be stored away for emergency purposes only. After 60,000 new guns will be required for the regulars, and it is intended that these shall be supplied as rapidly as possible.

After the men of the regular army have been supplied the men of the navy and State militia will be equipped with the new rifles. There will be another output of about 300,000 guns to be stored away for use in case the country should ever have another war.

These new rifles will be issued to the soldiers at the rate of about 20,000 a month. This means that there will be many new employes at the armory.

Birthday Hotel Dinner.

Oscar Sontag celebrated his birthday anniversary in the Madison Hotel yesterday afternoon with a dinner to G. A. Cramer, Harry Smith, Arnold Milentz, Samuel Grose, O. G. Rode, George Wipoman and Al Bruer. An auto ride about town was enjoyed afterwards.

Ablaze, He Jumps Into a Pond.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Princeton, Ind., Nov. 18.—Charles Coleman of Oakland City set a keg of giant powder, which was damp, to dry in the front end of his shop. The explosive dried faster than Coleman thought it would, and while he was pounding a piece of red-hot iron a spark flew into the keg and an explosion followed. A keg of dry powder in another part of the room exploded at the same time and Coleman was enveloped in a sheet of flame.

Finding he could not tear the burning clothing from his person, Coleman ran to a pond some distance away and jumped in, saving his life.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant-tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in the stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."
