For years it has been our constant aim to handle only the very best of merchandise, goods that only find their way in exclusive men's and boy's houses, never such goods as are sold in department stores or job lot houses. Hard luck caused by the drouth and the unsettled water problem makes it compulsory to raise money quick. Hence our

Managing Husbnads

There is a positive exhilaration to be derived from a bringing all one's efforts to bear upon a husband when business worries have pressed him from the office. There is a peculiar delight to fight with the unknown anxieties which his love will not permit him to unburden at home. It brings out all the tact and patience and diplomacy all the charm and graces of a woman's character to transform a cross, tired, worn-out husband into a new man—just by a good dinner and a little tact.

But to manage a husband when there are so many kinds of husbands to govern, more than any other one thing, a thorough study of your subject. To meet your husband with a smile which is the old fashioned rule for all ills, is enough to make a nervous, irritable man frantic. Look him over before you even smile. You ought to know how to treat him. Don't sing or hum if he has a headache, or begin to tell him the news before you have fed him. If there is one rule to lay down—which there is not—or if I were giving automatic advice—which I am not—I should say that most men come to it like hungry animals, and require first of all to be fed.—Lillian Bell in Harper's Bazar.

GOOD WORK

Ever heard of the man who sold his horse because it was growing thin? After awhile he saw a fine looking horse he wanted to buy. It was his own old horse grown fat. The new owner had found the right medicine.

Scott's Emulsion does that kind of work with sickly children. Sometimes it changes a child's whole nature so much one would scarcely know the child. Scott's Emulsion starts the small ones to growing like weeds. The scrawny ones get hearty and fat. Color begins to show in the pale face.

Scott's Emulsion does this good work without hurting the little stomachs. No extra burden. All help.

We will send you a Tube to try, if you like.

OUR TRADE WITH JAPAN.

It is interesting to note that in the Japanese imports from the United States and from Germany were practically identical, and in 1900 the imports from the United States were 50 per cent greater than those of Germany. Bearing in mind the high price of our cotton exported to Japan, imports and the production of Manchuria in Germany led the manufacturers of that country to push their goods trade to the utmost, even at a loss sometimes. Last year Japanese imports from the United States and India were almost identical, but in 1899 the imports from India were nearly a third greater than from this country. Cotton is also a staple product of India, and in exchange of cotton and cotton yarns and cloths produced by other countries Japan is the taker of Japan. It is only necessary to refer to the fact that wages in this country are far higher than in those of these countries. Eleven years ago Japanese imports from the United States were greatly exceeded by those from China and India; last year England led us by less than 20 per cent and India by ten thousand dollars in over forty-two million dollars.—Journal of Commerce.

A PRINTER GREATLY SURPRISED.

"I never was so much surprised in my life, as I was with the results of using Chamberlain's Pain Balm," says Bradley T. Crook, proprietor of the Asheville (N. C.) Gazette. "I contracted a severe case of rheumatism early last winter by sitting my feet wet. I tried several things for it without benefit. One day while looking over the Gazette I noticed that Pain Balm was positively guaranteed to cure rheumatism, so I bought a bottle of it and before using one-fourth of it my rheumatism had taken its flight and I have not had a rheumatic pain since." Sold by Elvey & Hulett.

A CONGRESSMAN ABROAD

Representative Green of Pennsylvania, one of the party of statesmen who went out to the Philippines last summer, is indulging in reminiscences, in the form of which may be found a few pictures of a black frock coat and green linen trousers. He thinks highly of the women who film.

But, all in all, one hundred degrees above Green, it was the height of comfort which he carried with him to Manila for "duds." He collected all the heavy, hot, stifling clothes that everything in the world, gave designed by society. Among all the things he wore several hundred height degree peculiar set in the certainty of discomfort. What he did with all of these novelties, cotton-backed. One of them, however, was presented with great ceremony by Green to the governor of Malta, a Britisher land with a uniform that dazzled the eyes and a pet of titles after his name as long as the moral law.

When this episode occurred the rest of the party held a mass meeting "Green," said they, "you can give your d——d trousers to the savages, but we will make you draw the line at British governors."

Thereafter, Mr. Green was less in evidence.—Washington Post.
