PIOCHE DAILY RECORD.

VOL. VI. PIOCHE, NEVADA: SATURDAY, JULY 26, 1873. NO. 107.

A NEW CROP OF ABOLITIONISTS.

It is rather a striking illustration of the irony of events that the ex-slaveholders of Louisiana and southern Texas should be found rejoicing over emancipation in Porto Rico, and profoundly anxious to see it followed up in Cuba. What would have been thought, fifteen years ago, of a prophet who had predicted such a phenomenon?

Yet it is all natural and logical enough. The old things have really passed away; the Grant stump and press were mistaken last year in their vehement asseverations to the contrary. Betwixt the Free South of to-day, and the Slave South of fifteen years ago, there is some space. The Louisiana and Texas planters, employing a free labor that requires to have its wages regularly forthcoming on pay-day, and will not work without them, find it impossible to compete with slave-owning planters of the West Indies; the latter can undersell them every time. Hence their eagerness to see the chains stricken from the negroes of Porto Rico and Cuba. Until that is done, they despair of seeing the sugar interest in this country revive and recover its prosperity. A few years' study of the ledger and day-book has done what decades of Bible-reading and sermon hearing failed to do—made abolitionists or them. Pending the arrival of the hoped-for event, they can greatly better their condition by acting upon the advice lately given them by the Missouri Republican, to-wit: by subdividing the larger plantations and separating as rapidly as possible the business of planting from that of cane-grinding and sugar-boiling. Such a division of land and labor could not fail to be of great benefit to their pockets. With honest and selected government, it might go far towards enabling them to raise sugar at a profit even under the present unfavorable conditions.—[Springfield Republican.

HOW A RAILROAD OFFICIAL WAS SOLD.—Several days since a lad of eight years, neatly attired and scrupulously clean, whose appearance suggested the numerous refining influences of a wealthy and aristocratic family and the fond care of a true mother, artlessly strolled into the office of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company and inquired for the Superintendent, and, in the event of his absence, for an official of equal prominence. An Assistant Superintendent; instead of donning the traditional railroad frown, and gazing severely upon the boy, in the generosity of his nature listened patiently to the recital of a long and tedious story of a youthful adventure and allowed his sympathy to get the better of him. The boy said that his parents had gone to San Jose and accidently left him behind, and now, having lived two days on the remnants of the family larder, he felt anxious to go forward and join his people, not that he was alarmed at sleeping in the house alone or felt lonesome, as he never had known fear since the day of his vaccination, he wanted better food and more of it. The official kindly issued a pass to his visitor and saw him on the cars and in charge of a merry conductor, saying as the train left the depot, and the merry laugh of the lad rang in his ears, "It does one good to do good, and by gosh I think I've done it. If there is any one thing that I do like better than another, it is a good honest boy, and I know such a one as soon as I see him." Then this man of keen discernment retired to his office and forgot the incident in the multifarious duties of the day. After a lapse of several days there emerged from the San Jose train one morning a couple who attracted his attention, a father with his hand grasping the jacket-collar of a little boy, and wearing a look that betokened extreme disgust; and that boy, wrathy beyond measure and disordered in attire, was the honest little fellow to whom he had issued a pass. Imagine the chagrin of the official when he learned that he had been victimized and was responsible for the transportation of a runaway boy to San Jose.

NASAL CATARRH.—A medical writer says: "I will give a remedy for nasal catarrh which I think of some value. Many cases of catarrh are caused by inability of the liver to perform its functions properly. In such cases there is often a too alkaline condition of the blood. When this is the case, the liver does not take out as much of the carbon and other substances as it should, and the mucus membrane of the nose becomes a dumping ground for the foul matter. If persons thus affected will squeeze the juice of a good sized lemon into half a tumbler of water, and drink it without sugar just befeore dinner, they will, if they live hygienically, be surprised to see how soon the catarrhal difficulty will diminish. When it fails to do so, it may be considered as due to other causes." The same writer says: Dr. Ellis gave me a simple receipt for throat and lung affections with which I propose to close this article. Upon my remarking on my tendency to such affection, he said: "Now Doctor, you may go home and thank God for having seen me, for I will give you a simple remedy that will be the means of prolonging your life for many years. Get a silk ribbon an inch or more wide, tie it about your neck and wear until worn out and then replace it, and continue to do so." I confess I was a little surprised to find a man of Dr. Ellis' standing relying with so much confidence on such a remedy, and I asked an explanation of its virtues, but this he was not prepared to give. If any reader tries this or the foregoing remedy, I should be pleased to know the result.

BRITISH KNOWLEDGE OF AMERICAN GEOGRAPHY.—Familiarity with American geography is not the strong suit of the literary Briton, and in particular of Lady Georgiana Fullerton. In her romance "Too Strange not to be True," Charlotte of Brunswick, early in the last century settles upon the Lower Mississippi, where the Rocky Mountains are visible from her windows, and where, amid the gambolings of monkeys and the tumblings of buffaloes, she gathers the lotus flowers from out the tropical luxuriance, and in the twilight rows her canoe to the falls of Minnehaha, narrowly escaping the alligators, but returning in time for tea, and, to amuse herself, quoting Longfellow's song, Hiawatha, which she had heard the Indians chanting in their forest palaces."—[Baltimore Gazette.
