AN EXCITED DETECTIVE.

Jackson, Mich., November 26.—Yesterday afternoon a man representing himself as Col. W. P. Perry, of Pinkerton's detective force, applied to Superintendent Bush, of the Michigan Central, for a special engine to go to Mason, a small station thirty miles south of this city on the J. L. & S. railroad to attend the funeral of the Cronell family. Bush supposing him to be the person he represented himself, granted the request and Perry went to Mason, as soon the assistance of the sheriff and arrested a farmer named Andrews, who resides nine miles west of Mason, bringing him to Jackson at midnight. Considerable excitement was caused by the arrest and thousands of excited and angry people crowded about the depot awaiting the arrival of the special train bringing in the prisoner. Threats of lynching the prisoner were freely expressed by the crowd, but the engine was stopped outside of the city limits and the prisoner was conveyed to the jail in a hack to avoid the mob. Perry now turns out to be a crank and an excursionist named Bennett, and Andrews is a respected farmer who dropped at the hotel on the night of the day of the killing in question, and giving his name and place of residence, said he was going to Chicago. Sheriff Wonder expostulated the facts and sent Andrews back home.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Washington, November 26.—The judges of Supreme Mason overall decline the facts of the trial and sentence, and states that the prisoner is good and sufficient reasons exists a full and free conditional release.

MASON'S CONTEMPT.

EGYPTIAN CIVIL WAR.

THE REBELS TRIUMPHANT THUS FAR.

England as a Peace Maker—The Chinese Muddle—Turkish Justice—Fire.

OLD WORLD NEWS OF YESTERDAY

Turkey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, November 26.—Baker Pasha, chief of police, and six officers of the secret police are in jail, charged with blackmail. The prisoners in a case in which persons of consideration are implicated, and of the accused were willing to pay a heavy bribe the prosecution was stopped, but of they returned the amount demanded, connection was usually secured through peculiar money. The plot was discovered through one of Baker's pay men, who in his confessed to justify. It is known that nine innocent persons have suffered long terms of imprisonment.

Egypt.

THE WAR IN SOUDAN.

Cairo, November 26.—The fall of Tokar from Sunday confirms the news of the defeat of Hicks Pasha. The power of Mahdi increasing, owing to rumors that El Mahdi with a large force is advancing upon that city, and has cut off all the supplies of grain. Official advices admit that the Europeans are leaving Khartoum by boats. Two trains parts leave Suez to morrow for Sussim. Baker Pasha will probably command the expedition. Plans are being prepared for building fortifications at Assuan.

Belgium.

A NEW CONTINENT.

Brussels, November 27.—The Association of Canada has been approached and offered a principle of Belgium. It is stated that this will with the operations of commerce between the Congo and Belgium.

England.

CLEARED OFF.

London, November 26.—The trial of George Warden, manager and cashier of the London Plate bank, for stealing, and of John David Waters, one of the stock and share brokers in the bank, for stealing and receiving stolen bonds of the bank, began to-day. Warden pleaded guilty.

THE MAHDI'S STRENGTH.

London, November 26.—A Khartoum dispatch says: The Arabs report a large force of Dervishes close to Khartoum. El Mahdi has been ordered to attack Khartoum. We only have provisions sufficient for a month, and there are only 2,000 men here, the nearest nearly four miles of lines of communication. It is pretty certain Hicks Pasha is advancing upon a Valentine. The land retreat is closed, but the river may be stopped to-morrow, as the rebels are building the chain across the river at Sobatke.

Canada

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

Port Dover, Ont., November 16.—A fire at noon, which destroyed $10,000 worth of property in the town, started in Tinsley's hotel, and made a clean sweep of Queen street on the north side from the Commercial to C. McCann's jewelry store. The flames had made such headway before they were discovered that they were entirely beyond control. A strong wind prevailed, carrying flames from spreading to the south side of the street, and saved Crook's drug store. The loss is large, a large quantity of goods were removed that were considerably damaged. No insurance to speak of.

NEW YORK CELEBRATES

The One Hundredth Anniversary of the Evacuation of the City By the British. A Heavy Rain Fails to Check the Enthusiasm—Washington's Statue—Naval Display.

THE NEW YORK CELEBRATION.

New York, November 26.—The day opened with a dull lead in a misleading manner, the atmosphere was moist and rain fell not early. At sunrise the bells and steps fired a salute of twenty guns, this was followed in half an hour with a succession effect of the steam whistles in the bay and on the river to create the most disagreeable noise imaginable, thus emphasizing the wonderful difference between navigation in 1783 and 1883. At nine o'clock the people took possession of the streets and every square of everyance down town; they filled the omnibuses and carriages and still the sidewalks on Fifth and Sixth avenues and Broadway presented a dense mass of humanity. The decorations were elaborate on most of the public buildings and club houses, but some contented themselves with a display of the stars and stripes, occasionally mixed with the colors of France and Germany, or mingled with bright red, white and blue bunting. All places of business were closed and the entire population of Manhattan and Long Island gave themselves up to the enjoyment of this patriotic occasion. All the points of historic interest were surrounded by crowds anxious to recall the events of the day when the British withdrew from American shores and independence was finally made a sure. President Arthur and Governor Cleveland and staff stopped at the Fifth Avenue hotel. Other dignitaries, from other states, were also present, including the governors of twelve other original thirteen states. The threatening weather of the morning soon developed into a rain that increased as the day progressed, and only the most courageous of the men and women retained their place on the reviewing stands, and those remaining stood upon the seats and protected themselves as well as they could with umbrellas. The people on the roofs, where they had expected to obtain a view of the parade on the sea as well as on the shore, quickly sought shelter below. The streets, however, continued to be crowded, and Broadway was a sea of umbrellas. The bunting hung to the flagstaffs and the walls of the house in which the flags were hung out, and where was in the morning all brightness and gaiety bottoming flags, only wet rags flapped heavily in the wind.

The fog on the bay and river deprived the thrills of steam vessels of much of its expected glory. It was a novel parade to New York, and it attracted a great deal of observation. The programme laid down for it by Admiral Sterin was strictly adhered to. Boats to the number of several hundred were rendezvoused in the bay and formed in divisions and steamed into North river and along the New Jersey shore until opposite Sixty-fifth street, thence returning down the New York side of the river, and around the battery into East river, steaming up that river as far as the navy yard, and returning along by the Brooklyn bridge to the starting point at Bay Ridge. As the leading steamer of the fleet passed Fort Tompkins, the signal gun announced the fact, and the salute was fired by twenty-one guns, the signal for the cheers and music. Amid the cheers and music the fleet passed in review before the President and staff, who stood on the steps of the Fifth Avenue hotel, followed by members of the visiting fleet, the representatives of the foreign navies, and the members of the diplomatic corps, the cabinet, the governors of the thirteen states, the mayors of the principal cities, the members of the legislature, the judiciary, the members of congress, the heads of the various bureaus, the generals and staff of the army, the heads of the various bureaus, the heads of the various bureaus, the heads of the various bureaus
