Eczema!

For the benefit of suffering humanity, and in heartfelt gratitude at the wonderful result, I deem it only my duty to give this unsolicited testimony in favor of Swift's Specific. My wife has been afflicted with hereditary Eczema or salt rheum from her infancy. It has increased in intensity with each succeeding spring, and being somewhat skilled in medicine myself, I tried every remedy I could think of for years—sarsaparilla combined with every form of Potassic, and hundreds of other remedies, lotions and salves, many of every one knows a kind, but they all gave only temporary relief. During the spring of 1884 her lower extremities became so inflamed and sore that she was obliged to keep them constantly coated with a covering of "Fuller's Earth," moistened wet and allowed to dry on. Among other things she was afflicted with a periodical nervous Headache, occuring regularly every seven days, sometimes followed by an intermittent fever for weeks at a time, so that life became a burden to her.

This spring I determined she should take S. S. S. and follow strictly the directions in regard to dose, diet, etc. This was about seven weeks ago. After taking the first large bottle the disease seemed to increase the burning, itching and inflammation became unbearable, she, however, persevered in the use of the medicine. After taking the second bottle the inflammation began to subside. After the third bottle the inflammation disappeared, and sore spots dried up and turned white and scaly, and finally she brushed them off in the impalpable white powder resembling rice silk. She is now taking the sixth bottle, three tablespoonfuls four times daily. Every appearance of the disease has gone, and her flesh is fast filling out, white and smooth again, and what is more, her periodical headaches have disappeared, and she is now, at 45 years of age, enjoying the only good health she has known for upwards of forty years. No wonder she declares with emphasis that every bottle of S. S. S. is worth a thousand times its weight in gold.

Any further information concerning her case will be cheerfully given by herself at her residence, 136 Medbury street, Detroit.

Joseph E. McDonald's Views.

From the Chicago Times.

Ex-Senator Joseph E. McDonald, of Indiana, was a guest at the Palmer house yesterday. He has been spending the summer with his wife at Deer park, and is looking unusually well. He came to Chicago to attend to some legal business. In conversation with a reporter for the Times yesterday Mr. McDonald expressed himself freely, and gave some original ideas on the public questions of the day. After speaking in a general way of the good feeling that seemed to prevail among the people toward Cleveland's administration, he touched on the president's civil service policy. "Cleveland can do no other way than to observe the civil service law," said he. "If he would do otherwise he would disgard the law, and I am sure no good democrat wants him to do that. Now, I will frankly say that I would not have voted for civil service, but it is a law, and it is here to stay. It is evident that some such law is needed, although there is still plenty of room for amendments. The principal objection to it, to my mind, is that it will have a tendency to create an 'official' class. Of course, any party if it remains in power long enough, will have all its own men in, and that is all right enough, too, as there are men in both parties fully capable of filling all the positions. I believe that all the clerical positions under the government should be entirely divorced from politics. The clerical help should be appointed on the same principle that men are employed in large banking and mercantile establishments. If their positions are contingent on political preference they will be thinking more about retaining their positions than performing the duties of their offices. They then become offensive 'partisans.'"

"What do you think of that term, 'offensive partisan,'?"

"I think it was very unfortunate that the president adopted it. It is apt to come back on him and cause him much annoyance."

"Will the senate take it up and refuse to confirm some of his appointments?"

"Well, it will place the senate in a position where it can itself attempt to define what the term 'offensive partisan' means. The president may have his definition, and then the republican senators may have theirs."

"There has been considerable discussion in regard to who should take the office—the president's appointee or the old appointee—in the case the senate refuses to confirm the new man. What is your opinion on that subject?"

"If the senate refuses to confirm a presidential appointee the old office-holder takes his place, but the president may immediately thereafter suspend him and appoint the same man that he did before, or a new one. Of course the senate can refuse to confirm again, and the president can again suspend, and thus a sort of a see-saw can be kept up, but in the end the president would have the best of it. We had such a case when I was in the senate during Hayes' administration. Hayes, as you know, removed Arthur as collector of the port of New York. The senate refused to confirm the appointment of his successor, but the president came out ahead, and Merritt received the position.

Referring to the postoffice muddle at Indianapolis, Mr. McDonald said there had been much ado about nothing. He did not think Mr. Jones in any way to blame. If he showed a preference for appointing democrats to republicans, that was but natural, and now he is making his appointments too slowly to suit the democrats. The federal appointments were progressing slowly but surely, and all good democrats seemed to be satisfied.

A FALLING WALL.

It Crushes a Negro Man to Death.

Last afternoon, about 3:30 o'clock, while four negro men were working in a cellar in the rear of Sanger Bro.'s building, an old partition wall fell down, crushing Alex. Brunting beneath it. The debris—bricks and dirt almost covered the man up, and his fellow workmen had to dig him out. This took some little time, and when they had extricated him Alex. complained of one of his legs being broken and his ribs mashed. He was put in the delivery wagon and taken to his home on South First street, where he died in about five minutes after being taken out of the wagon. Brunting was a laborer, and had commenced work only yesterday morning. The workmen were cleaning out the cellar, and Brunting was digging near the old rear wall of the building when it fell on him. He leaves a wife and three children. Justice R. W. Davis will hold an inquest on the body this morning.

Who shrieked with laughter at his side,
And, pointing to the woman,
As flambeau-like their tresses flamed,
He energetically exclaimed,

EAST WACO ITEM.

On Saturday night there was a row in a saloon in East Waco, and W. T. Poole threw a one pound weight at J. W. Wright, but it missed its mark and struck Mr. James Reno in the head, inflicting a severe wound. Poole was arrested under a charge of assault with intent to murder, and gave bond in the sum of $500 to appear before the grand jury. Wright was also arrested for disturbing the peace, and gave bond for his appearance before Justice R. W. Davis.

STORY OF A TRUNK.

Sunday night Mr. E. S. Morris had his trunk carried to the Missouri Pacific depot, intending to leave on the 1:20 o'clock train for his home in San Antonio. When he went there later he found it had been broken open and two fine suits of clothes had been taken out, besides several shirts, under wear, etc. Yesterday morning, a negro, who gave his name as Wm. Lee, was seen with Mr. M.'s fine coat and vest on, and was arrested by Officer Hart. He was placed in Jail. Lee had exchanged one pair of the pants for a pair that would fit him. He implicates another negro in the crime, and said he had the other clothes, but up to 10 o'clock the accomplise had not been arrested. Mr. Morris estimates his loss at $92. Lee claims to be a Fort Worth negro, and had intended going home Sunday night, but the lone trunk on the platform proved to be a tempter, and now he may go to the penitentiary.

Our Millinery Department.

The necessity for a first-class millinery department on a large scale, has been a long felt want in Waco, and we should have answered the call before this, but knowing that a large amount of space is required to carry on the millinery business properly, we decided to wait until our new building was completed and reserve the proper amount of room for it. This we have done and about September 15th, we will open up with the largest and best assorted stock of millinery ever shown in Waco. We have experienced millinery buyers in the market all the year around, which will enable us to show the very latest novelties simultaneously with such cities as New York, St. Louis and Chicago. We shall give notice of our opening in the proper way when our styles and prices will give general satisfaction and the sending away from home for a stylish hat or bonnet will be a thing of the past.
