SHOT FROM A HACK

A Colt's Long Forty-Five Awakes the Citizens on Second Street.

W. R. Orman, Proprietor of the Hentucky Saloon, Shoots and Kills

Bud Hughston, a Hack Driver, while Going Along a Highway in the City.

Full Details of the Killing, and the Causes which Lead to the Tragedy.

Just at 10 o'clock and five minutes yesterday morning two shots rang out on the ambiant air of the usual quiet city of Waco, and about one minute later a hack with two horses attached to it went tearing out of South Second street across the public plaza, and entered Austin street. Katie Horton, one of the city's demimonde, was the only occupant of the hack. The horses went tearing up the avenue to Eighth and down Eighth to the old circus grounds, where a man ran in ahead of the horses and brought them to a halt. When they ran across the plaza the EXAMINER reporter was standing on South Third street, and seeing crowds rushing toward the plaza he followed them. Just before the reporter reached the avenue Tom Nelson, a colored man told him that Bud Orman had shot Bud Hughston off of his hack and killed him. The reporter then started on a run to South Second street, and saw three or four men standing around a form lying on the sand On coming up he recognized the form as Bud Hughston, a well-known hack-driver in the city. Hughston was breathing heavily, and his face, hands and clothing were very bloody. The reporter suggested that the body be moved into the shade, and several men took hold of him and carried him to the sidewalk. He was laid on his back and the reporter knelt over the dying man and asked him who shot him. Hughston attempted to answer; but he only murmured some indistinct words. The death struggle was coming over him, and the reporter said, "Do you know me?" By a movement of the head and a stare from the eyes it was evident that Hughston recognized the speaker. The reporter then said, "You will be dead in a few minutes, and I would like for you to tell me who shot you, and what made him do it." There was another muttering and whispering, and the reporter put his ear close to the dying man's mouth, but could not tell what he was trying to say. By this time a cold, clammy sweat had settled on the dying man's forehead and his pulse had ceased to beat. The gauzy film was closing over his eyes and short gasps for breath showed plainly that life was ebbing away. A few minutes later he ceased to breathe, and all that was earthly of Bud Hughston lay stretched out on the sand and his spirit was summoned to the Great Judge in the Beyond. He lived between twenty and twenty-five minutes after the shooting occurred. Police Officer A. H. Knott was the first man who reached him after the shooting. Hughston was lying on his face with his arms under his head groaning and attempting to raise up.

W. R. ORMAN,

the man who did the shooting, turned around after he fired the second shot, and walked to the courthouse and gave himself up to Sheriff Harris. He was kept in the waiting room, on the second floor of the jail, and an EXAMINER reporter called on him, and asked him to in regard to the shooting. This Mr. Orman at first refused to do, but after a few moments' conversation, he said: "I am perfectly willing that you should know all about it. I shot sister, and if you or any one else had made the same remarks about them that he did, I would shoot you. There is the pistol lying on the shelf; it is a forty-five Colt's revolver; four barrels are empty; I shot two of them off while I was fishing on the Bosque river, and I shot those other two barrels at Bud Hughston. When I went to my saloon this morning, my barkeeper, Mr. Adams, told me that Bud Hughston had been there and made some very ugly remarks about my sister; I told him that I wanted him to tell me just what Hughston had said; Mr. Adams then repeated the exact words, and Charley Houston, W. T. Little and R. F. Wingo, testified to the same as being in substance what Hughston had said."

[The epithet as told by the men, named above, is too black and foul for publication. These men further state that Hughston closed his remarks in these words: "I will make the ——— ——— do so-and-so, and if he don't I will kill the ——— ———"]

After Hughston made these remarks he got on his hack and drove off. Orman continued his statement as follows: "I got my revolver, stuck it in my side and went to look for Hughston; I met him in front of my residence, on South Second street, between Franklin and Mary streets; I walked up to him and said, will you take back those words you uttered about my sister? Hughston answered 'No,' and I fired on him; as he was falling off of his hack I fired again. This quarrel has been going on for some time, and Hughston has done me great damage in my business; it started because I refused to give him a drink every time he called for one; after that he commenced doing me dirt; it never entered my head to shoot or kill him until he used the epithet this morning; then I could not stand it any longer; I consider that I have done nothing wrong that would criminate me before the law."

The reporter then visited the men named by Mr. Orman as having heard the words used by Hughston, and they testified to the same statement Orman had made.

ORMAN'S ARREST.

A formal complaint was made before Justice R. W. Davis and Orman was arrested on a charge of murder. He employed three lawyers to defend him, and they will apply for a writ of habeas corpus before Judge R. W. Rimes as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made.

During the examination of the witnesses, which was in the district court room, Mr. Orman and his attorneys listened to the evidence, but did ask the witnesses any questions, nor did they introduce any for the defense.

At 2 p. m. Justice R. W. Davis had a jury summoned who viewed the body, made examination of the wounds, and the evidence in the case was then proceeded with.

KATIE HORTON

being sworn testified as follows: "I know Bud Orman and Bud Hughston; Bud Hughston is dead; he was shot by Bud Orman at 10 o'clock this morning; saw the shooting; saw the second shot but only heard the first one; this morning about 10 o'clock I told Bud Hughston to carry me up to the Central hotel from Stella Noland's, I wanted to get my trunk; got in his hack and he drove me up South Second street; before he got to the narrow gauge crossing he asked me where I wanted to go; I told him; the next thing I knew I heard a pistol fire, and I looked out of the carriage and saw Bud Orman with a pistol in his hand; as I looked out Orman fired the second shot, and Hughston fell off of his hack; did not hear Orman speak a work nor Hughston either; the horses broke to run as soon as the second shot was fired, and did not stop until they reached the circus grounds; did not see Hughston have any arms; was very drunk when he started with me; Orman was standing very near the horses when he fired the shots Hughston fell after the second shot was fired; did not say a word.

Cross-examined—Did not see Orman until after the first shot was fired; do not know that Orman fired the first shot; two shots were fired.

CHARLEY NOEL.

Was sitting in front of Kentucky saloon at the time of the shooting; saw Mr. Orman come out of his saloon and walk down South Second street; he walk down to the front of his residence on Second street, which is on the right hand side; saw Hughston come down Second street; and Orman went out in the street, to meet him; when he got within six or eight feet of him I saw Orman shoot; he fired twice and Hughston fell; the pistol was pointed at Hughston; Hughston fell after the second shot was fired; Hughston did not stop his team, and was in motion when Orman fired; after shooting Hughston Orman turned and walked toward the court house; I met him at the court house door, and he handed John Baker his pistol; Orman then walked through the court house to the jail; do not know of any previous difficulty between deceased and defendant; did not hear defendant say anything about shooting deceased; when defendant left the saloon he did not seem to be excited; saw Orman throw pistol up before he fired first shot; did not see him fire second shot.

FANNIE ROBINSON,

a colored woman, being sworn, said: Know Hughston and Orman; saw the shooting on South Second street this morning; was coming toward court house; saw Orman shoot Hughston; was walking on sidewalk opposite Orman's residence; heard shots fired, looked around and saw man falling off of his hack; Orman was standing on sidewalk when he shot Hughston; saw Orman when he threw pistol up; did not see where he got the pistol; I was about seventy-five feet away when the shots were fired; Hughston was not doing anything when Orman fired; did not hear any words pass between them; Hughston tried to get up after he fell off the hack, but he could not; he got on his knees and then fell on his face; Orman was on right hand side of the hack when he fired the shots; Hughston fell off on left side of hack; Orman was standing on side of hack when he fired.

A. H. KNOTT.

Was standing on the corner at Parnell saloon and heard a pistol shot down South Second street; looked in direction of sound and saw Bud Orman standing in front of Bud Hughston's hack; when Orman fired second shot saw Houghton fall; Bud Orman then turned and walked up the street toward the court-house; met Bud on corner of Franklin and Second; he said, "I will surrender; I have killed the ——— ———; I will go over to the court-house and surrender to Bill Harris." I then went on to where Bud Hughston was lying; was first to him; he was lying near the middle of South Second street with his face down; he never spoke after I went to him; did not see any weapons on him; when we carried him to the sidewalk, saw his clothes unloosed and did not see any weapons about his person; about the time I looked up I saw Orman fire the second shot and Hughston fell under the horses; Orman was standing on the left hand side of the not more than three or four feet away when he fired.

DR. J. M. WILLIS.

Know Bud Hughston, he is dead; I was present when he died; his death was caused by gun-shot wounds; I made an examination of the wounds; one shot took effect at the third rib on left side, passed through the body and came out at right shoulder; the other shot entered the chin a little to the right, the ball struck the bone, shattered it and came out on same side about three inches back; the cut on back of his head was a scalp wound; suppose it was done by the carriage wheels passing over his head; the wound which passed through his body is what caused his death; the shot passed through both lungs and might have passed through the heart.

THE VERDICT.

Here the testimony rested, and the jury returned the verdict as follows:

STATE OF TEXAS, }
County of McLennan. }

We, the jury, after viewing the remains, and having heard the evidence of the witnesses, find that the deceased; Bud Hughston, came to his death in McLennan county, Texas, on the 8th day of September, 1885, by means of a pistol shot wound in the body at the hands of W. R. Orman; that the shooting was willful and deliberately done.

HUGHSTON'S BODY.

After Hughston died on the sidewalk his body was removed to the main hall in the court house and laid on a cot. Hundreds and hundreds of people came in to view the remains and see the holes made by the bullets. His clothes had been partly removed and his bare breast and arms were exposed to view. He was a robust, healthy man in the prime of life, and his frame was well developed, every muscle showing that he had been a man of iron nerve. From the hole in the side, warm blood trickled out and fell in a wooden cuspadore which sat underneath the cot. The face retained its natural appearance for about one hour and a half when there a change came over it and a purple hue covered the features. His eyes were tightly closed and the mouth was kept closed by a handkerchief being tied around under his jaw and over his head. After the jury had reviewed the body and examined the wounds, it was taken charge of by his brothers, Messrs. Thos. and A. Y. Hughston, who made it ready for burial. The funeral will take place to-day.

ABOUT THE KILLING.

The EXAMINER reporter did not have much time yesterday to circulate among the people and hear what they had to say about the killing, but enough was heard to know there is a diversity of opinion. Some seem to think it was a cold-blooded murder, while others think Mr. Ormsa did right in shooting Hughston; further developments will come out when the case is heard on a writ of habeas corpus. It is said that there are extenuating circumstances connected with the tragedy which will throw more light on the subject later on. Orman is worth considerable property, and he will contest his case to the very highest courts, should he be convicted below.

THE TWO MEN.

Orman has been in Waco since he was a boy, and worked several years as a journeyman tinner; afterwards he commenced gambling. At one time he ran a large gambling house in Hot Springs, and has been the proprietor of several houses in this city. For the past year he has run a saloon. Though a gambler and saloon keeper no one can say that they ever saw Bud Orman under the influence of whisky. He never did drink ardent spirits. He is not considered a dangerous man, but is known for his genial qualities, and treated everybody kindly. By being frugal he has accumulated considerable property about him and is considered to be in easy circumstances.

Bud Hughston came to Waco eight or nine years ago, and for a while worked as a laborer, doing jobs about the city. For several years past he has drove a hack of his own, and was considered among the leaders of the hack drivers in the city. Occasionally he got on sprees, and was considered disagreeable while drinking. He was looked upon as a harmless man, and he treated every one the best his nature taught him.

As neither one were thought to be dangerous, it was a great surprise to the people when it was made known that the tragedy had taken place.

POLITICS AND RELIGION.

Who Killed Cock Robin Prohibition?

To the News.

WACO, Texas, September 5, 1885.—Under the caption of politics and religion, there appeared in the December, 1884, number of the Guardian and Young Texan, the organ of Waco university, the following article over the familiar initials, R. C. B. They stand for Rufus C. Burleson, the widely-known Baptist minister and educator. In view of the Rev. Brigg's assault on Senator Coke for saying to the voters of McLennan county, "if your preachers go into politics, scourge them back," Dr. Burleson's views at this juncture are not mal apropos. Shall we follow Dr. Burleson and Senator Coke or Dr. Carroll and Brother Briggs? While pausing for a reply, I paste on the article of the venerable doctor, "for more than a quarter of a century an educator and university president in Texas:"

Who killed Cock Robin Blaine? Parson Burchard. How did he kill him? With his R. R. R. Poor Blaine says yea, weeping, "That speech of good Father Burchard against Rum Romanism and Rebelion ruined me. It offended and drove from me thousands of Romish Catholics and rum-sellers." Poore Blaine found out too late that preachers in politics, instead of being "wise as serpents and harmless as doves," are as silly as flies and harmless as hawks. They everlastingly let their mouths go off half-cocked, at the wrong time and wrong way. They tear, tatter and tumble things to ruins. The speech of old Father Burchard should be an everlasting warning to preachers and politicians. As an electioneering trick, 400 preachers and pastors, in order to cover up the many obliquities of Blaine, called on him in a body at New York. Old Father Burchard was their spokesman. But, alas! "the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft aglee." Instead of bolstering, he burnt, bruised, blasted and beached Blaine by his rip, rage and ruin speech —Rum, Romanism and Rebellion. Henceforth, let preachers never forget that our divine master said, "my kingdom is not of this world," and whenever preachers in New York or Texas use their office as pastors to aid any political party, they prostitute their high calling and ~~irritate "preachers mark our state~~ rights and responsibilities as other citizens. I have been a Jackson democrat forty years. I regard it, not merely a privilege, but a religious duty to vote for everything from a justice of the peace to president. But I would feel I had committed sacrilege to use my office as a preacher for political ends. It is even worse than using the pastoral office to bolster up patent medicine and quack nostrums and quacks in general. I always regard a preacher's name to such as prima facie evidence of hum bug and fraud. Let doctors look after the healing art, and politicians the interest of the state. Let not the shoemaker go beyond his last nor the pastor beyond his pulpit.

What could be sounder Jacksonian democracy than the above? And as for prohibition not being a political movement, Dr. Crauffil told me yesterday that the man who said it was not political, did not understand the use of language; it proposes to enforce a moral reform by an appeal to the legislative power. He said the Dallas platform is conclusive; prohibition is a party question and came to stay; but it went, all the same. Cock Robin Blaine and Cock Robin Prohibition were evidently both killed by the same deadly willopus-willopus jaw bone.

MISS KATE STOUTE.

PERSONAL.

Mr. J. S. Wheeler, formerly proprietor of the Arlington hotel of Temple is in the city.

Miss Margie and Lula Miller, who have been visiting Miss Lizzie Chandler, returned yesterday to their home in Belton.

Mrs. H. M. Cruger, of Houston, is spending a few weeks with friends on Speight street. We are glad to welcome the good lady to Waco.

Mr. Paul Bremond Cruger arrived in the city last night on his way from Lampasas to Houston, where he goes to accept a position with Major Waldo.

Mr. Charles Hardy, formerly of Gatesville, now of Abilene, is in the city, and we are glad to know will remain here if he can make a suitable business arrangement.

Miss Nina Carroll returned from Austin yesterday afternoon. The little lady has been sick with dengue fever, and does not think that she will return to Austin to teach in the school there.

The EXAMINER is glad to see Russel Kingsbury at home again. We hope to see our old friend settle down to the practice of the law, a profession for which his fine talents admirably fit him.

Mr. John Kelley, the famous California violinist and vocalist, is at the New McClelland, accompanied by his wife, also well known in musical circles. Mr. Kelley will probably give an entertainment here before leaving.

Mrs. O. L. Wiley, of Lampasas, who is well-known in this city, made a short visit here yesterday, stopping over from one train to another—leaving on yesterday evening's Missouri Pacific train for St. Louis and other northern cities.

Mr. David Williams, a Vanderbilt student, Alabama, and brother of our fellow-townsman, Eugene Williams, Esq., who has been reveling among the Wacoites for several weeks, left yesterday for New York, where he will devote himself to the study of medicine.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pains, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhœa.

Eczema!

For the benefit of suffering humanity, and in heartfelt gratitude at the wonderful result, I deem it only my duty to give this unsolicited testimony in favor of Swift's Specific. My wife has been afflicted with hereditary Eczema or Salt Rheum from her infancy. It has increased in intensity with each succeeding spring, and being somewhat skilled in medicine myself, I tried every remedy I could think of for years—sarsaparilla combined with every form of Potassic, and hundreds of other remedies, lotions and alkali washes of every every known kind, but they all gave only temporary relief During the spring of 1884 her lower extremities became so inflamed and sore that she was obliged to keep them constantly coated with a covering of "Fuller's Earth," mixed wet and allowed to dry on. Among other things she was afflicted with a periodical nervous headache, occuring regularly every seven days, sometimes followed by an intermittent fever for weeks at a time, so that life came a burden to her.

This spring I determined she should take S. S. S and follow strictly the directions in regard to dose, diet, etc This was about seven weeks ago. After taking the first large bottle the disease seems to increase the burning, itching and inflammation became unbearable. She, however, persevered in the use of the medicine After taking the second bottle the inflammation began to subside. After the third bottle the inflammation disappeared, and sore spots dried up and turned white and scaly, and finally she brushed them off in an impalpable white powder resembling pure salt. She is now taking the sixth bottle, three tablespoonfuls four times daily. Every appearance of the disease has gone, and her flesh is becoming soft, white and smooth again, and what is more, her periodical headaches have disappeared, and she is now, at 35 years of age enjoying the only good health she has known for upwards of forty years! No wonder she declares with emphasis that every bottle of S. S. S. is worth a thousand times its weight in gold.

Any further information concerning her case will be cheerfully given by herself at her residence, 152 Mullett street, or by me.

The Great Wholesale Drug

Firm of Thompson & Olmstede, Galveston, Texas, fully and freely indorse English Female Bitters.

Dr. T. C. Thompson, of the above firm, testifies as follows: "I have been handling about FOUR THOUSAND DOLLARS WORTH OF ENGLISH FEMALE BITTERS PER YEAR for several years, and take pleasure in saying I never knew a medicine to give such UNIVERSAL and LONG CONTINUED satisfaction in all my business life. I have been selling it ten years, and the sales have always been large, and very satisfactory to my customers throughout the Southern States.

"I have conversed with hundreds of druggists relative to its merits, and have known of many wonderful cures within my own PERSONAL observation, which convince me of its superiority as a remedy for the cure of all Female Complaints so common among all classes.

"I recommend it cheerfully and in confidence."

Visions of Bliss.

Nine millions of Empty Pill Boxes! What a sad commentary on constipation and biliousness! What a vast storehouse of pills it all were collected. And to think that all these drastic, nauseating pills have been kindly solicited to enter the stomachs of men and women! Sickening and disgusting to think of. No one knows the pains and aches, loss of time, piles and infinite misery they have caused. You don't need such powerful medicine. Stop their use, and try one dose of Bailey's Saline Aperient, and visions of bliss will hover over your dejected brow! It relieves constipation, cures biliousness, sick headache, heartburn, &c. It is pleasant, effectual and cheap, and well adapted to ladies use.

Large bottles only 50 cents, and sold everywhere.

Oh! my Head

How many terrible aches one's poor head has, and what suffering is caused by these headaches. It did may be had from Nervous Neuralgic, or Tick Headache by the use of Tongaline Which is not a cure-all, but which is a cure for Nervous Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Sciatica and Gout. No proprietary medicine has ever obtained such strong endorsement from the medical profession.

"For the indefinite aches and pains of nervous patients, TONGALINE is superior to any other anodyne. For Nervous Headache or Muscular Rheumatism, it is always a specific."
FARR RITCHIE, M. D., St. Paul, Minn.

"Have used TONGALINE in cases of Neuralgic Headache with success in almost every instance. In strictly Neuralgic forms it is unexcelled."
O. D. NORTON, M. D., Cincinnati, Ohio.

"TONGALINE has already done good service in two cases of bilious Headache."
