MR. JAS. I. MOORE.

His Attorney, the Day, Seeks to Prove his Right to Streets and Alleys.

The good citizens of this city are satisfied that Mr. Jas. I. Moore, who is one of the good citizens of this city, saw the editor of the Day on Monday last. But few believe that Mr. Moore although he is admitedly the obstructor in chief of street and alley building in Waco, intended that the Day should go so far as it did in advocating his claim to rights more securely vested than any body else can attain and above eminent domain in divine originality. In the first place reader just cast your lovely eye over the Day's grout:

As is generally known the city is about to proceed against Mr. James I. Moore for the condemnation of a strip of land, he has, in the rear of his Austin street residence property, which it is desired by the use as an alley between Austin and Waco streets. This proposed alley will run through Mr. Moore's yard, making his residence property into two parts. Desiring to avoid litigation if possible Mr. Moore lately submitted a proposition to Alderman Ryder, chairman of the street committee which is, briefly stated, as follows: that in consideration that Mr. Moore agrees to deed the city the property they will recommend him for the accomplishment of removing his outhouses and fences and pay him the nominal value of the land taken, the price to be determined by the land in question in the vicinity. In addition to this he proposes to deed the city, on the same terms, the strip of land, twenty feet wide now known as Eleventh street, and running through his property from Austin to Washington. This land is his property and is now used by his tenants. It is an important thoroughfare, as it affords the only access from Washington to Austin street. It is worth more to Austin street than it is worth to him. In fact it is almost valuable to the teachers and pupils at the Columbian street public school building. Mr. Moore says all he desires is to receive fair treatment from the city. He desires to avoid the expense of litigation, for himself and as a taxpayer would prefer to see the city keep out of the courts. It is to be hoped that he and the street committee may be able to reach an adjustment either of the foregoing. The alley spoken of is the one popularly known as Eleventh street, and is to be kept open. If Mr. Moore's proposition to accept as the entire cost to the city, will be about $1,000. If the courts have to decide the matter the cost may be far greater.

It would sound only a slight degree more absurd if the Day should refer to Austin avenue as "a thoroughfare known as Austin avenue." Eleventh street is one of the most beautiful in the city, and belongs in its order as surely as do the other streets that parallel or cross it. Mr. Moore has erected his mansion across it, but the city will move his inconsiderable establishment aside as easily as a brindle cow brushes a fly from her flank, and Waco will also, without a "by your leave, sir," open Seventh street, spite of another fort that Mr. Moore has erected across that thoroughfare. Oh, but Mr. James I. Moore is a dandy at stopping up streets and alleys! It is a pleasant little way that he has. He "donated," as he termed it, a narrow alley parallel with Eleventh street, for his own use in getting to the new Christian church under erection at the corner of his alley and Washington street, and now he claims to close that alley unless the city pays him $1350 for sewer right-of-way along the city's alley, near his mansion, upon which he has planted a peach orchard.

On the 4th inst. the city filed a suit for condemnation of its alley, occupied by Mr. Moore's peach orchard, and Judge Evans appointed commissioners to assess the damage he would sustain in the matter. Yesterday he sought an interview with the city council committee on streets and alleys, and that committee sat down upon Mr. Moore's plan of compromise.

Waco places a high estimate upon Mr. James I. Moore's qualities as a gentleman of integrity and sterling worth. It will do him justice always. Living, this city will respect him and his rights, and few men would be more regretted should he depart. But to engaged at the formative period in buying streets and alleys for speculation and he will get squeezed. He is "long" on streets and alleys and is therefore on the bull side of that market. The people of Waco are the bears, and the bears will squeeze the bull until he parts with his holdings.

C. Robinson will suit you in prices and goods. Call on him.

For Feeble Little Ones.

For many enfeebling complaints to which children are subjected, Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, used medicinally, in the hands of parents and nurses, never fails, on account of its absolute purity and efficacy, in effecting a cure.

MR. J. A. FINDRUSE, 175 Battery avenue, Baltimore, Md., writes: "My twin babies of five months had suffered with pain since their birth, at times having their bodies so drawn up and become stiff, expelling them in great convulsions. These pains were caused, no doubt, by irregularity of bowels, the children becoming constipated. After trying treatment of several relatives, as well as medical treatment, without avail, and with the loss of rest to myself and wife, we thought it impossible to save the little ones, and, as a last resort, we resolved to try one bottle of your DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY. We are glad we did; the result was wonderful. It relieved the babies at once, producing a natural quiet sleep, relieving them of wind pain, restoring the bowels to a normal condition, thereby removing the cause of convulsions. We were generally opposed to administering to children any intoxicating liquor, but I don't think your MALT WHISKEY was that."

MR. A. J. STERRILL, Editor Christian Recorder, writes: "I have used your DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY in my family for a long time. I get it in preference to a doctor when I need it. Have given it to my child, a little girl, with good effect. She is to-day in the best of health and as hearty as any child of her age. I attribute her present good health entirely to your excellent whiskey."

Mrs. H. K. FAIRALL, Professional Nurse, 6 North Bond street, Baltimore, Md., writes: "I first practically tested the merits of DUFFY'S MALT WHISKEY in the case of two sickly and delicate children, who were weak and pale at birth. In less than three months by the use of it they were healthy, fat and healthy as any children I have ever seen. Another instance wherein the most regrettable results were obtained was the case of a child hopelessly ill and given up to die by the attending physician. I used your DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY, combined with milk, and in a month the child was entirely cured. I could mention hundreds of cases where I safely say it has saved life."

Mrs. C. HART, 108 Wilson Avenue, Chicago, Ill., writes: "In case any of my friends or acquaintances should need a tonic I will say, from personal experience, that DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY is the best I know of. Will my physician, and he says he will do so in his practice. I will recommend it."
