THE TOURISTS

Are Cordially Welcomed by the Good Citizens of Old Alabama.

Montgomery, with Its Brightest and Neatest Clothes on, Does Honor.

The President's Little Talk, With Its Usual Amount of Taffy.

AT MONTGOMERY.

A MINIATURE HAVANA.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., Oct. 20.—After a good night's rest on the special train the presidential tourists arrived here at 8 o'clock this morning. There was the usual large crowd in waiting. The almost quiet prevailed. Commerce street from the station to the hotel, nearly a mile away, was lined by troops on each side, who kept a wide avenue open for the passage. Gov. Seay, Mayor Reese and Col. Newman, president of the State Agricultural society, who composed the reception committee, were within the hotel and conducted the guests to the hotel. The manner of the reception made an

EXCEEDINGLY FAVORABLE IMPRESSION

upon the minds of the president and his companions. At the hotel Senator Pugh, Senator Morgan, members of the governor's staff, president of the house, speaker of the house, ex-Governor Lewis, ex-congressman Davidson and a number of ladies greeted the visitors in the hotel parlors, where half an hour was spent in making and renewing acquaintances. The president reviewed the troops from the balcony of the hotel. There were about [illegible] men in the station, including a troop of cavalry and a battery of artillery. The president has received a telegram from the mayor of New Orleans stating that a committee is on its way to ask that his trip be extended to that city. Col. Lamont replied that the president made compliance with the request impossible. After the review, Mrs. Cleveland was the surprised recipient of an unique and beautiful souvenir. It is a jewel case in the form of a bale of cotton, about eight inches in length and proportionate in depth and width. It is pure silver and is a very artistic production. Its sides are of oxidized silver representing the bagging of the bale, while frosted spots bear striking resemblance to snowy cotton bursting from its confinement. The plantation mark on the end of the bale is "C. C. Less," and the warehouse mark on its top is "F. C." Inside of the cover bears an inscription, "Presented to Mrs. Grover Cleveland by the Mayor and city council as a token of their regard on the occasion of her visit to Montgomery, October 20, 1887." The ride through the city was the most enjoyable feature of the day's demonstration. Public and private buildings were elaborately adorned, and everything wore a gala appearance. The welcoming address was delivered by Governor Seay upon arrival of the presidential party on the fair grounds. The president replied as follows:

INDEXATIVE ENGAGEMENTS

MR. MAYOR:

I am very glad to be here at the commencement of a great day, and I hope an improving series of visits throughout the country to every state of the united Union. Dallas, its people and its industry. I believe that the editor of the Ledger writes truth more, the years of independent growth and [illegible] than Alabama. There is hardly a food product which is not represented in its agriculture. It has within its borders abundant forests of useful and valuable timber waiting for its application to the needs of man, while its mineral resources are of great value and inexhaustible and give assurance of wealth and commercial greatness. In means of transportation your state is highly favored. About two thirds of your counties are bounded or intersected by rivers, navigable or easily made so. Your railroad facilities are already great, and are constantly increasing, and your [illegible] to the ocean is found in the gulf of Mexico. A state thus favored by nature and so profusely blessed by gifts of providence, cannot but occupy a commanding position in the union of the states which constitute a great nation, and so any have greater stake in the welfare and progress of the entire country or in a harmonious and friendly feeling upon which these depend. As you gather your agricultural products such as you increase their volume and variety, you are not only enriching yourselves and your state, but

ADD STRENGTH TO THE

[illegible] government. I am more, [illegible] some food as necessary to assure the maintenance and support of a great [illegible] government of a great people. In [illegible] preparing these products [illegible] at home [illegible] Less, if not less than [illegible] to furnish northern states [illegible] far toward [illegible] expense [illegible]. Your [illegible] appreciate the value of intimate and profitable business contacts with you and there need be no fear that they will permit them to be destroyed or endangered by designing demagogues. The wickedness of those partizans who seek to [illegible] their selfish schemes by engendering hate among generous people are fast meeting exposure and yet there is and should be an insistance upon strict adherence to settlements which has been made of disputed questions and upon unreserved acceptance of such settlements. As against this I believe no business consideration should prevail and I fully believe that there is American fairness enough ahead in the land to insure proper and substantial recognition of the good faith which you exhibit. You also have a problem to solve involving considerations concerning you alone, a question beyond reach of the federal law or interference and with which no one but you should deal. I have no fear that you will fail to do your full duty in this matter, but may I not in extension of thoughts which I have before suggested say to you that and care which may be accorded to every class of your citizens have relation to the general welfare of the whole country, as intimate and potential as your productions and developments of your mineral resources have to its material prosperity. I am informed that three fourths of the population of your state are engaged in agricultural pursuits, and I am glad that my visit to Montgomery occurs at a time when your state fair is in progress. Such exhibitions cannot fail to stimulate all interests, induce improvement, and surely there is no better index to a state's material condition and certain wealth than is offered by such a general display of its products. I shall return to my home duty, grateful to the people of your state and especially for the cordiality of their welcome fully expressed, with a feeling that she cannot evade, it she would realize the responsibility to the entire country which her greatness and commanding position have cast upon her."

EXCEPTIONAL ADVANTAGES

Attempted Wife Murder.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 20.—A most horrible case of deliberate attempt at wife murder occurred at Dayton, near this city, Tuesday night. A man named McAlister went into his wife's room at the Green hotel and opened her mouth and discharged a Smith and Wesson pistol into it, the bullet penetrating the roof of her mouth and lodging near the left eye. The unfortunate woman was in a delicate condition which exasperated the husband, who bears a most unsavory reputation in this section. McAlister was arrested and jailed. There is talk of lynching him. The murderer, after being placed in jail said it was his purpose to kill his wife, then put an end to himself. At last accounts the woman was not dead but she [illegible]
