WACO, TEXAS, DEC. 24 1887

He is the wisest man who utilizes his surroundings whatever they may be.

The poet, Billistcritt, is about now singing the blood-curdling opera of "The snow, the snow! the beautiful snow."

Under the constitution only native Americans are eligible to the office so what is the use of talking about General Phil Sheridan as a possible candidate for the presidency?

Where there is a will there is a way, and few men are so absolutely worthless as not to be able to develope some good to himself, his country and mankind from his surroundings.

One of Waco's needs is an Arboreal association, and it is within easy reach. The Examiner knows a gentleman eminently equipped for the leadership, and there are several hundred splendid men and women in the city who would gladly become active members if some one or more persons would make the move. Col. Wm. L. Prather is respectfully solicited to formulate a call for a meeting and bring it to this office for publication. If it should be signed by a score or two of his prominent friends of both sexes, a large meeting and a pleasant evening will be assured.

The Dallas Convention.

This important body has met and adjourned. There was probably better work done in an aggregate deliberative way of popular kind than has heretofore been done by the assembly in which the control of the state was vested. Although there was a disposition to grand-stand performance and show to be practiced, effort to make the place simply a show was represented and the representative men of the real work of the state were present. There was probably more harmony, unanimity and brains in this convention than ever before assembled in the body in Texas. The action was harmonious and seems to have been satisfactory. There were no fireworks provided for any body, and no speeches made and not an invitation to quarrel. The general directory was composed of able representative men of the senatorial districts. The only paid officer will be a secretary whose salary should be standardized at at least liberal. The only places for vacancies to fight over in the creation of this secretary's office, and the general management of the executive committee to reduce the expenditure of the office to a minimum, which will be simply hard work and postage as the business getting it will be expected to furnish office and quarters, makes it a small matter to be fought for. The bulk of the money will be expended by the counties. Yet the selection of a secretary and the location of his office are questions of the most vital importance. As secretary no cheap John or merely clerical man must be chosen. Neither must a man be sent to whose office is some pent-up town, county or district, however important that town, county or district may be, but a man must be secured who knows Texas, not by hearsay, but personally knows her panhandle and appreciates its great undeveloped resources, her magnificent timber regions, her mineral resources. The former wealth and future possibilities of South Texas, the splendid advantages of the West, and who has kept pace with the progress of Central Texas, a good organizer and a man who will work equally hard for the development of every portion of the state. He office should be where no section of the state could complain of its being too remote to benefit their section. Dallas has many claims for its location. It is the leading business city of the state, the pushing, driving enterprising metropolis of North Texas but if located there all the country south of there will feel that its location north of, or upon the Texas Pacific road would confine the enterprise to North Texas, the Texas Pacific acting as a kind of a dead-line as to all the country South of that, and so fixed is this impression in the minds of the people of South Texas, that they have already provided for an independent organization in case Dallas gobbles up the state enterprise. Austin would give very general satisfaction, but there are two serious objections to it. First, it is the most inaccessible important town in the state and second, you could not locate a Methodist publication board, a Baptist mission board or a Society of Friends in Austin without having it run into a political machine inside of thirty days. But if Austin can unite the state, although Dallas is a more convenient place to Waco, yet we say let the headquarters go to Austin, though it is believed Waco would receive a more hearty support from the various sections of the state than any other point and would be freer from objections than any.

It is generally understood by a reading public that the slaves of Brazil are being freed as they attain a certain age—say thirty years—but a recent publication notices an account of a traveler's observations in Brazil and says: "In the Minas and Rio region there are 350,896 human beings working in a condition of slavery far worse than that of the slaves of the South before the war." Before a matter of such vital interest to the common American citizen, tariff and free trade pell. If they are that "bad off" the South, which has seen the error of her way, had better be doing something and doubtless would be willing to fit out an armada to destroy the Brazilian institution, if it could only be manned by the New England wing of female sister suffragists.

Mrs. Cleveland recently received from Achille Olivieri of Venice, Italy a jewelled casket made expressly for her. Olivieri is a manufacturer of glassware and mosaics. Col. Lamont has sent the casket back to Venice with a note to the donor in which he says that the gift was one of too great value to be accepted by Mrs. Cleveland, who does not receive presents from those who are not her personal friends. The note is couched in polite language, but seems likely to wound Achille in the heel.—New York World.

This modern Achilles has another point more vulnerable than his heel, his pocket-nerve is touched. With the superb gift came a request that President and Mrs. Cleveland would visit the private show on exhibition in Washington. They not only acknowledged the introduction but gave him a chance to sell the picture. They are evidently about looking as severely as any other people.

Willingness is the effective force in educational material progress and in the uprising for the elevation of the laboring. A mass of thought and energy may well be hived to the surface materials and reach the end in view if he has at his command a will keep to his work, if he be honest, will the regard and confidence of the people to his life-work and to be may will himself into defeat and to meet and remunerative job. There is room for laborers—not for idlers in the cause of reformation. Hold your young man and you clearly out of that quagmire of immediate popularity and do something.

The Texas Banner makes the statement that it has this year handled on its basis of cotton—presumed Texas cotton. For the want of deep water the great bulk of that Texas cotton was carried on the Mississippi river, and it handled about $1,000,000 in freights along the road to New York and New England. The Texas Pacific practical and on the improvement of Texas products. Its continuous deep water at Arabesque the mouth of the Brazos or Galveston would reverse the machinery and the centripetal motion would save Texas cotton planters $1,000,000 annually.

Among the candidates for the Mexican mission are Generals Bragg, of Wisconsin, General P. M. B. Young of Georgia, and Judge Tompkins, of Atlanta.

General Young tried the air of the Russian capital and found that too cold. The atmosphere of Vienna would have been delightful but he was not permitted to test that. It may be that Mexico would be neither too hot nor too cold, but just right, at any rate it would be a pleasant experiment, and his position there might prove satisfactory to all concerned.

Senator Coke's court bill proposes to restrict the jurisdiction of the federal courts, and make them keep their hands off of affairs that belong to the states. The Louisiana Observer says "the bill is full of objections, and the sage remark is prefaced with the "fact" that "Senator Coke may be a good fence-straddler." Suppose Mr. Mills should vote for that bill would the Observer raise "several objections" to Mr. Miller?

The office of war at St. Petersburg believes the new explosive, Sleetover will be of incalculable value in war. It is proposed to make the guns of aluminum, which will revolutionize transportation. It is said that in an experiment a mile-is was shot from a cardboard tube by Sleetover, without injury to the tube.

Vanderhurst, of the Texarkana Times, and Moses Harris, of the Austin Dispatch, know too much of each other's antecedents to risk a paragraphic cross-fire. Stop it, gentlemen, stop it, or make clean, smooth cuts that will not disfigure the cadaver.

PRESS PENCILINGS.

The Waco Examiner is carrying aces in its sleeve for Miller. It is evidently going to try to play to Crantill's hand.—Paris News.

The fool sometimes lies under a mistake; the knave frequently from choice. The Examiner is playing a "lone hand," and the rounders are losing time in guessing at its "lead."

It will probably be three years before we get such a boom as California has had, but if work is done the boom will surely come and will come to stay.—Staked Plains.

Nor is such a boom desirable. There is no fraud, delusion or speculation in the Texas programme. We do not invite settlers to rob them, but to give them homes and make them happy.

Texas has the most extensive pineries of any state in the union, Wisconsin nor Minnesota not barred.—Denison News.

Yes, but did you know that they are being rapidly gobbled up and denuded by western lumber men? Land and the hip-pocket are the only two things that Texas permits to go free.

There are five saloon keepers in the Waco jail living on corn bread and boiled beef.—Waco Advance.

And would you have them fed on dead prohibitionists and rum-smashes, pray?

In iron ore East Texas is richer than any part of Pennsylvania.—Tyler Courier.

Perhaps brother Mosely was never in the iron fields of Pennsylvania. If he will demonstrate the truth of his statement, the floodgates will be lifted and capital will deluge Texas.

"Miami" is another "queen City of Panhandle," Roberts county is its locality, and the Ranger is its newspaper.

The Waco Examiner in-reproducing an editorial extract from these columns credited to Temple Journal. The new management and it ought to be, I believe does not have been established a month yet, but I know that I have read it a month or more and the Examiner—Temple Times.

The Times has name the name of editor. The Examiner makes out few more mistakes but when a contemporary so esteemed as the Times has occasion to call attention to the fact it is pointed. Don't go to it, brother.

Truth is a valuable asset. It seems to be now in short supply. We have come to regard it as the greatest virtue of office seekers. But it is not a fact that earnest reflection, and among professed Christians, of what is implied by that the word—Christian.—Belton Journal.

Respectfully referred to the occupants of Waco's pulpits to-morrow, for an answer.

Young man, don't stand around the world waiting for opportunities. They are not going to beat you up. Do something. Do what you could to hand and do it well. Take in the situation. Make opportunities. Don't wait for something to turn up. The world owes you a living. Make something for yourself and take something. Be ready and have something. Be ready for anything. Be ready for each chance.—Greenville Banner.

Golden words. Hold them young man and cut the paragraph and paste it in your hat, and then read it every morning. There's millions in it for you.

THE FRANCKLYN LAND CO.

Cunard Wants His Money—Sharp Practice.

New York, Dec. 23.—Gordon Cunard obtained a judgment on April 16, 1887, against the Franklyn Land and Cattle Company for $15,[illegible]. He assigned that claim to Radcliff-Baldwin, who has brought suit for its recovery. On this suit Morton, Bliss & Co., Keeler & Co., and several others have been enjoined from paying to the company the amount of four promissory notes executed by Stephens & Lytle for $[illegible]. In 1885 C. G. Franklyn became president of the Land and Cattle Company. On September 1, 1885, the company sold to Stephens & Lytle, of Kansas City, a large drove of cattle for $[illegible]. The payment was in the promissory notes in question. It is claimed that Charles G. Franklyn fraudulently converted the notes to his own use, and gave them to Morton, Bliss & Co., and the others enjoined, in payment of the individual indebtedness. The notes were subsequently sold to the Tradesmen's Bank of Kansas City for $[illegible], and five of them were in turn sold to the National bank of Illinois. The plaintiff asks that the notes be restored, all the transactions be declared void and the notes applied to the payment of Cunard's judgment.

THREATENED STRIKE.

On the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad.

Philadelphia, Dec. 23.—Shortly before 10 o'clock this morning a rumor was current throughout the city that the hands employed by the Philadelphia and Reading railroad had gone on a strike, and that this was the forerunner of similar action on the part of the Schuylkill miners. Upon inquiry it was learned that there had been some trouble among the men on the coal wharves last night, but it has not gone so far as an open rupture, and that there were no signs of disturbance there this morning. "You cannot tell what will take place however," said an informant, "and for the next few days all will be uncertain. A growing feeling prevails that President Corning will not make any concessions on the agreement entered into with the men and miners feel they have another big fight on their hands.

AT NEW YORK.

New York, Dec. 23.—Officials here of the Reading road refuse to give any information about the threatened strike. The latest trouble is at Elizabethport, where the men refuse to put the Reading coal on Coxe Brother's boats, because the latter are Lehigh Valley operators. The general manager has given orders that the boats must be loaded or the men will be discharged immediately. The report says not a wheel will be running on the Reading road to-morrow.

SUIT FOR AN ESTATE.

Involving Taint in the Blood of a Distinguished Family.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—Sarah C. Bond, a young colored woman, attempted to establish a claim for $8,000 before Judge Tuley yesterday, by proving that Mrs. Elizabeth Bunch, a light mulatto who recently died here aged 76, was an issue of a secret marriage long ago between Miss Curtis of Parkersburg, W. Va., and Jas Washington, the negro coachman of the Curtis family. The Miss Curtis belonged to the aristocratic stock into which President Geo. Washington married. Miss Bond is the only descendant of the negro coachman. She succeeded in showing that Mrs. Bunch was really the daughter of Miss Curtis, born while the latter was a school girl and at once placed in an orphanage. Miss Bunch's career was traced to her death in Chicago, where she left $8,000 worth of property, mainly the Olivet Baptist church. The claimant however failed to show that Miss Curtis and the coachman were ever married and therefore was unable to prove relationship with Mrs. Bunch. Judge Tuley therefore disallowed the young colored woman claim for the $8000.

WHOLESALE DECAPITATION

One Foot Should Another and Will Fall A Victim to the Employer of the Other Foot.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 23.—The result of the so-called investigation that is going on at present will be a general shopping of hours at a meeting of the board of directors on January 1 and a Pittsburgh Lake Erie official said—"The Lake Shore road is now digesting the Wabash. We want to see the Lake Erie prosper, and in a very short time the Lake Erie road will be in reality a branch of the former. By the time that a year or two shall elapse we shall change the whole freight system of the Lake Erie if it ever had one and make it the same as the Lake Shore. That is why they are taking stock and counting it. We have on hand so far as the investigation has gone in their work they have discovered nothing crooked on books and it is not at all likely they will. There is not the least doubt but that this thing will have the effect of shoving out a number of men and the vacant places will be filled by men from the Lake Shore."

$200,000 STOCK YARDS

Fort Worth Wants to be the Chicago of Texas—Prospects Good

Special Dispatch to The Examiner.

Fort Worth, Dec. 23.—The citizens of Fort Worth had a final meet by to night to raise the $[illegible] necessary to establish the Fort Worth Union stock yards. Some fifty prominent citizens were present and between 8 and 10 o'clock the balance of $[illegible] was raised. A call of twenty-five per cent. will be made before January 1, to pay for the two hundred acres of land bought.

Society Gambling.

Playing poker for money in the presence of society young ladies seems to be a fashionable "lad" just now in Louisville, Ky. The information got into the papers in this wise: A short time ago Bishop Clay, a young man of that city, was sued by one of his acquaintances, Brannin Sherley, to recover an alleged $50 gambling debt, and was given a judgment by the justice of the peace before whom the case was tried. Mr. Clay appealed the case and gives the following statement to the Courier-Journal:

Some time last June I called at Brannin Sherley's house, on St. Catherine street, to visit a young lady who was stoppping there. There were seven or eight of us present. During the evening if my memory serves me correctly, Sherley proposed that we have a little game of poker, and forthwith he produced a gambling lay-out. Darwin Johnson was one of the party, and he was quite anxious to take a hand. Bridgeford Smith and myself said we would play if the ladies did not object. There was every assurance that they would not, and so the cards were dealt and we played for an hour or so in the presence of the young women. Once one of these played the "hand" of one of the gentlemen, and she played it like a veteran, too. Not a word was said about money, and not a cent changed hands. It was generally understood that the card-playing was purely a social pastime. Three or four days later I heard of that card party, when Sherley called at the office where I worked. He was talking to one of the boys, and, seeing me, remarked that we had had a good time playing poker. I said yes, that the evening had been very pleasantly spent, but that the poker-playing did not amount to anything. Two weeks ago I was again reminded of that card party, when a constable served notice upon me that I had been sued for $50 by Brannin Sherley for money I had borrowed of him to pay Darwin Johnson for a loss at a poker game at his (Sherley's) house. I, of course, was amazed, knowing that I had never authorized Sherley to pay a cent to anybody for me, as there certainly never was an occasion for such a transaction.
