NOTES.

Proposals must be submitted to perform the service "with celerity, certainty, and security," according to the words of the act of Congress of March 3, 1845.

No pay will be made for trips not performed; and for each of such omissions not satisfactorily explained, three times the pay of the trip must be deducted. For attempts so far behind time as to break connection with depending mails, and not satisfactorily explained, one-fourth of the compensation for the trip is subject to forfeiture. Fines will be imposed, unless the delinquency be promptly and satisfactorily explained by certificates of postmasters, or the affidavits of other creditable persons, for neglecting to take the mail from and into the post office for safekeeping it to be injured, destroyed, robbed, or lost; and for refusing, after demand, to carry the mail as frequently as the contractor runs, or is contracted to running, relative to the route.

The distance is given according to the best information, but no increased pay will be allowed should it be greater than advertised. Bidders must inform themselves on this point.

The Postmaster General may annul the contract for repeated failures to run agreeably to contract, for disobeying the Post Office laws or instructions of Department, or for assigning the contract without his assent.

The Postmaster General may alter the schedule, as the public interest may require. He may also order an increase of service by allowing thereby a pro rata increase of the contract pay. He may also curtail or discontinue the service in whole or in part at pro rata decrease of pay, by allowing one month's extra pay on the amount of service dispensed with.

Payments will be made for the service by collections from or drafts on postmasters, or otherwise, after the expiration of each quarter—say on February, May, August, and November.
