RUTLAND HERALD.

RUTLAND, VT.

TUESDAY EVENING, OCT. 8, 1839.

For President,

HENRY CLAY.

MARYLAND ELECTION.—This election which took place last Monday for eight members of Congress, and for delegates to the State legislature, has probably resulted in some loss to the Whigs in the delegation to the State Legislature, as well as to members of Congress.—We had hoped a different and more successful result to the great and glorious struggle of the friends of Reform in the National Councils in Maryland; but we have to take reverses as they come along, even if we are provoked thereby. But we are strong enough yet if we are only united and do our duty.

The Journal of Commerce of Saturday, from which we obtain our information, and which has returns from most of the districts, comes to the same result that we do. The Vanites have carried the 2d, 3d, 4th, and 6th districts, (the 4th comprising Baltimore city is a double district and sends two members.) The other three districts it was presumed, had elected whig members, although the returns were not so full as to render it certain. A few days will settle the matter more definitely.

The Whigs have lost 6 state delegates with returns already received, and the House will doubtless be decidedly locofoco.

JUDICIAL APPOINTMENTS.—Hon. Richard H. Bayard, lately of the U. S. Senate, has been appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the state of Deleware, vice J. M. Clayton resigned. In Massachusetts, Hon. John Mason Williams, has been recently appointed to a similar office in that state, in place of Hon. Artemas Ward resigned. It is here worthy of [illegible] as a coincidence, that there are now three Chief Justices of the Supreme Court in New England by the name of Williams, one in Massachusetts, one in Vermont, and one in Connecticut.

We invite the attention of our readers, to the article over the name of Elliott Cresson, on the inquiry, what can Colonization do?—This article was written by one who well understands the origin and present results of Colonization, and whose confidence in its final complete success, in the removal of the great evil of slavery from our land, is fully evinced by the devotion of his life and talents to the cause without reward, other than that of doing good.—Whatever our own feelings may be in relation to Colonizing the people of colour on the coast of Africa, we are induced to think the practibility of the project, is established beyond a reasonable doubt. The Colonization Society has shown from actual experiment, that the black man is capable of self government, that he may be made an industrious man and a useful citizen in his father land;—that by establishing Colonies on the coast of Africa, the facilities of the slave trade have been greatly diminished, and tending at least to show, that in this way, this infamous traffic may be finally stopped, notwithstanding the base cupidity of those engaged in it.—It has also shown to the slave holder, who desires the welfare of the slave, that a place is found where he may be made useful, honorable and happy, and thus affording strong inducements to emancipation;—and it also opens to benighted Africa the dawn of a brighter day—a day when freedom and christianity shall take the place of superstition and gloomy despotism.

Doubtless before this time most of the members of the Senate and the House of Representatives are in motion towards the seat of government. Some are thinking busily about the present prospects of the two parties, and endeavoring to so shape their course that whatever party may have the ascendancy, their own "dish may be right side up"—some no doubt are calculating to enlighten the people with their speeches— Some are full of wise projects for Banking—and some are overflowing with wrath against all banks—and all, with few exceptions, abound in wise projects of every kind, according to the opinions or whims of their author—But the paramount desire which moves to effort both the members elect and the multitude, who go "on their own hook," to office, and office not only for the sake of the emoluments, but office merely for its own sake, "a little brief authority"—And Oh! how sad the reflection that so many are doomed to bitter disappointment. We could almost wish there was an office for every aspirant, both "little and big."

We expect to be able in our next number to furnish our readers with the annual message of the Governor, perhaps some of the county appointments and what is not the least important, be able to say which party has the majority in the House—and as faithful chroniclers of the times, we shall endeavor to inform our readers from time to time what their servants are doing at Montpelier. We can but look with some degree of anxiety at the leading object which will come before the General Assembly at this session—we allude to the Revision of the laws. This being a matter of deep interest to the whole state, a matter to which every individual, whatever may be his condition, is concerned, we hope it will receive that careful investigation and patient deliberation which it demands—and above all we hope that the patriotism and good sense which generally characterizes the "Mountain State," will so far prevail as to banish all party projects from its consideration.

We are happy to learn that Mr. L. Thrall is likely to recover from the serious injury he received by the upsetting of his wagon, noticed in our last.

The Kingston (U. C.) Herald states that Bill Johnson has taken possession of Grindstone island again, and is provided with plenty of arms and ammunition.

ON DITS OF THE DAY.

[The world is coming to an end in 1843, according to Mr. Miller—Queen Marina Van Buren is president.]

Human nature is favorably to be developed by the approaches of the season of Presidency.

The nine candidates and the celebrated letter are about equally odious, so far, the letter claims to be the only true democratic, and the Whigs to be the pro-slavery party.

Martin Van Buren has promised to Washington expectants to fill the offices of the country Coopers (and the rest too), provided by hard manœuvres peculiar to his party, and by scattering upon the people such measures that will fill the cup of humiliation and oppression to its brim—viz. the subterranean veto!

Henry Clay is in no mistake from the presidential contest and Gen. Harrison is only to be in the field against the legislation hero—its contingent upon their popularity!

The "Democratic party" are going to have a majority in our Legislature, and are going to adopt the New York political code—speaking to keep from authority.

The 'Smoke and Reform' party are going to have a special place of residence at Montpelier, in order to call the daily roll to see if there are any deserters.

One Mr. Field of Windham county has been accumulating votes for many months, and is going to Montpelier as fast as he can upon the backs, if he has to do it better 'love by some there, and expects to leave them all up. This same Mr. Field is to the Locofoco Legislature of Cowford Junior where probably most of the great questions will be settled and the fate of all monopolies decided.

No special variation in the market prices from last week's quotations.

Horrible Tragedy.—A deep and most painful sensation was excited in the community this morning by the rumor of a deed of blood which it was sincerely hoped at first was but a rumor—but which, after inquiry, proves too true.

Those who have been accustomed to walk in Chesnut-st. in the neighborhood of Independence square, (a point perhaps with the exception of the Exchange, where both at day and evening our citizens most do congregate,) must have frequently stepped into the confectionary store and refreshment rooms of Mr. Wood, opposite the State House.

They must remember also his handsome and attentive daughter whose chief care it was to attend to the more elegant ministrations of the establishment. She was a faithful and dutiful girl, just blushing into womanhood. Among her many admirers was a young man in Sixth street of the name of Peak, who succeeded in securing her affections. About two weeks since, we understand, they were privately married, and on Thursday evening the young woman left the establishment of her father, and joined her husband. On Saturday she returned, and all the circumstances were made known to the former. He instantly closed his shop, much to the surprise of the public, more than usual attraction being now in the ladies' department, a striking likeness of Queen Victoria by a young artist of this city having been placed there for exhibition.

The demeanor of the father to his daughter was morose and unreconciling, although he had previously invited her home; but she strove by every means to avert this feeling, which, so far as it was likely to end in anything desperate, he ingeniously concealed. This morning, however, at about 10 o' clock, as the daughter was sitting in the room with her father, and we believe some other members of the family, he walked deliberately up to her, and drawing a pistol from his bosom, placed it almost against her forehead, and shot her entirely through the brain. The ball, we learn, passed through the skull and fell in another part of the room.

The murderous weapon was at once thrown from the hands of the desperate man in the presence of his dying child, and himself secured. The sheriff of the city was sitting in his office, and was immediately aware that something unusual had occurred. He crossed the street immediately and ascending to the apartment where the dead was done, found the murderer standing, pale and terribly agitated, with his back to the fire-place, and his daughter lying prostrate and bleeding on the floor, with her head near his feet.

One child, a promising lad, was clasping his knees, and averting with tearful eyes, and language of imploring passion, that "father did not, father could not do it!"—while other members of the family were sobbing and shrieking over the dying sister and child. On the entrance of the sheriff, Wood lifted up his arm as if in the act of firing a pistol, and exclaimed—"I am the man—I shot her!—I shot her."

While writing this article, we learn that the father, after such an act, is guarded safely with a guard of officers over him. An immense crowd gathered around the place, yet none were admitted but certain members of the medical faculty, and the coroner's jury of inquest, who will delay their verdict until 8 o'clock this evening. The girl was lingering in great agony towards the close of the forenoon, but not the slightest hope of her recovery was entertained.

Mr. Wood is an Englishman, who may be remembered as a fruiteller for many years in the Chesnut street Theatre, and the keeper of a little shop in the Arcade, which his daughter and himself attended. He has several other children who with their mother, are thrown into inconsolable distress by this dread act of murder and blood.—Phil. Gaz.

Death of General Hayne.—It is with feelings of inexpressible pain that we have to state that Gen. Robert Y. Hayne, one whom both the state of South Carolina and the city of Charleston delighted to honor, and cherished with a warmth of affection that never knew abatement—died at Ashville, (N. C.) on Tuesday last, after a few days illness, of bilious fever. Gen. Hayne was in his 49th year.

Death of the Hon. James C. Alvord.—Letters were received in this city yesterday from Greenfield, announcing the death of the Hon James C. Alvord of that town, the member elect to the next Congress from the district so long represented by the Hon. George Grennell.—Bost. Atlas.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.—The following short sentence of advice by William Penn, should be kept in mind by all young persons who are thinking of commencing matrimony.—"Never marry but for love, and see that thou love what is lovely."

The Stockholders of the Bank of Montpelier decided at a late meeting called for the purpose, not to accept the act passed by the Legislature rechartering that Bank. The profits of the Bank for the last six years have been but a trifle over 6 per cent and with the additional tax imposed by the new charter, the stockholders think they would not realize even six per cent, and in connexion with other considerations they prefer to withdraw their capital for private use. They will ask for an extension of their banking powers one year to enable them to close up the concern. This is the only Bank in Washington County and as the County is strongly opposed to Banks, even as short election time, the Legislature cannot with any degree of consistency impose a Bank upon them.—If the chartering of a bank to be located in a town or county, where a majority of the voters declare banks to be "nuisances," "shaving shops," and "a curse," is not high handed tyrranny, we should like to be informed what tyrranny is.—Caledonian.

Public Opinion.—When a nation changes its opinion and habits of thinking, it is no longer to be governed as before; but it would not only be wrong, but bad policy, to attempt by force what ought to be accomplished by reason. Rebellion consists in forcibly opposing the general will of a nation, whether by a party or by a government. There ought, therefore, to be in every nation, a method of occasionally ascertaining the states of public opinion, with respect to government.—Ib.
