THE STATE AGRICULTURAL FAIR.

The fourth annual fair of the Vermont State Agricultural Society was held at Brattleboro last week, commencing on Tuesday, the 12th, and continuing three days. From the full reports given by our exchanges, we compile the following account.

The grounds devoted to the exhibition, covered an inclosed area of thirty-five acres, upon the "Old Muster field," about a mile from the center of the town. The arrangements within the enclosure were exceedingly well adapted to the various departments of the exhibition. The race course formed a circuit of half a mile with an extensive range of elevated seats for the accommodation of spectators, and is pronounced the best course yet seen at any agricultural fair in New England. Convenient locations in the field were set apart for the exhibition of farm stock, manufactures, horticultural and floral products. The famous Germania Band, 12 in number, furnished the music.

The show of Horses was the great feature of the fair. The entries numbered about 120, mainly from Vermont, including 26 of the Sherman Morgan breed, 31 Woodbury Morgans, 11 Bulrush Morgans, and 29 Hambletonians; and eight pairs of beautiful matched horses. The grand parade of horses, presented a rare sight, the cavalcade extending over two thirds of the course. Trials of speed followed. The best time apparently was made by Flying Morgan, who was put round the course by his owner, Mr. Adams, of Burlington, at the rate of 2-46.

The exhibition of Working Cattle was avowedly the best ever seen in this State. The number of entries exceeded 200 yoke, of which West Brattleboro contributed 48, and Wilmington nearly as many. The prevailing bloods were crosses of the Durham and the Native. The best yoke of cattle on the ground, considering size and weight, were not in time for premiums. They were owned by Josiah Forbes, of Deerfield, Mass., five or six years old, and weighed together six thousand pounds. In general excellence of all kinds of cattle, Wilmington, Vt., confessedly carried off the palm. The "long team" from that town numbered 28 yoke of superb oxen.

The show of sheep is pronounced the best ever exhibited in the State. The pens contained near 400 choice sheep, most of them French and Spanish merino and Silesian, and the remainder were superior mixed breeds. Addison county has the credit of entering much the largest proportion of these sheep, and Windham County stands next, both as to numbers and excellence.

In the swine and poultry departments, the show was quite limited. A Suffolk sow owned by Mr. Stickney of Waterville, recently brought by him from England, where it took the first prize at the Royal Agricultural Societies Exhibition at Gloucester in 1853, and cost the importer $210, was the principal attraction to lovers of porcine improvement.

The contributions of fruit and vegetables were not numerous, but were generally fine, and the display of floral wealth superior, as was also the collection of specimens of needle and fancy work.

Among the mechanical novelties were a horse hoe, which lifts the soil from the hills of corn and potatoes and leaves it in a position to be acted on by a weed cutter which follows, and returns it free of all weeds; a patent potato digger, to be worked by two horses, which works at a rate producing five bushels per minute, and an ingenious machine which manufactured tin pans as fast as the metal could be fed to it.

The proceedings closed with an oration, which was delivered by Hon. Charles T. Russell, of Boston. His subject was "The enfranchisement of Labor," and the effort one of marked ability.

On the whole, the fair at Brattleboro' was evidently the best managed and most successful one which has taken place in the State. The weather was fine up to the latter part of the third day, when a heavy rain came on, driving the orator and his audience under cover and prevented the match for trying the speed of the prize horses.

The gathering was very large, estimated at 10,000 for the first day, and 15,000 on each of the two following days. One report puts the greatest number present at one time at 25,000. No accidents took place, and everything went off well. The sum taken for membership and admissions, amounted to $5,500, enough to cover expenses and leave a respectable balance to meet those of next year's exhibition. The principal premiums awarded were as follows:

SHERMAN MORGAN HORSES.—Stallions, 7 years and upwards. 1st premium, A. V. Stockwell, Brattleboro, $15. Stallions 4 and under 7. 1st premium, E. A. Birchard, Shoreham, $15. Brood Mare with foal at her foot. 1st premium, J. Johnson and Bro's Bradford, 15.

OUR SCHOOL SYSTEM.

To the people of the State of Vermont:

The time has come when the cause of education demands a thorough revision of our system of common schools. A few thoughts in relation thereto may be the cause of deeper and a more general thought on the subject, whereby our too much complicated school system may be abolished, and one more simple in its construction and details be substituted in its place.

The division of towns into school districts, is, and always has been, a fruitful source of contention in town meetings and attended often with more or less expense, and individual disadvantage; and the locating and the building of school houses in the districts, have always been attended with discontent; and the houses so badly constructed as to incommode both the teachers and scholars. And then, the towns in this State will average about four or five school districts to each town; and each district has its collector of taxes only think, a thousand collectors of school taxes! and the same number of petty clerks, and a host of Prudential Committees! and those not always of the most elevated intellect and prudence; for school districts have not always had the Democratic notion that the burthen of an office must be shared by all its members, especially when it is not lucrative!

Now what I would propose to have done is, to have the school districts in each of the several towns in this State abolished, and the law dividing the towns into school districts repealed.—To give the town Superintendant of common schools the sole charge of the several schools in each town, supplying them with competent teachers, and removing those who are incompetent—having authority to draw money from the treasury of the town to defray the expenses of the several schools under his charge, and to perform other duties which may be thought necessary for the benefit of said schools. To constitute the select men and justices of the peace in each town a board; having the power to locate and construct, (when necessary) and also, to furnish and keep in suitable repair, the several school houses in their respective towns, at the expense of said towns. And furthermore, to constitute the Governor of the State, the "State Superintendant of common schools, in the State of Vermont," who shall have a general supervision of all the schools in said State, and to whom the several town Superintendents shall make their reports of the condition of the several schools in each of their towns returnable, at a certain time, annually.

The benefits resulting from such a change in the school system, would be, the placing the collection of the school taxes in the hands of the proper officer to collect taxes, one who has to give bonds to the town for the responsibility, and who is sworn to the faithful discharge of his duty. There would be no longer a necessity for the division of the public schools monies according to the number of children over four and under eighteen years of age; and the scholars would attend the schools which would be most convenient for them.—The town Superintendent, being partially removed from local influences, would not have that delicacy in removing an incompetent teacher, which is sometimes manifested by the district prudential committee; and being the person to examine candidates for teachers, he would be better able to judge of their qualifications, and obtain good teachers; and when it comes to be generally understood that a teacher is continually on trial, liable to be removed at any time, it will call forth the energies and capacities of the teachers to their utmost limits.

WATER WHEELS

To Mill Owners!

THE subscriber having purchased of Timothy Ross, his patent rights of DIRECT ACTION WATER WHEELS, for the State of Vermont, published Sept. 26th, 1853, is ready to furnish Water Wheels for Saw Mills, Grist Mills, Starch Mills, Woolen Factories, Machines for Paper Mills, Trip Hammers, &c.—The advantages these Wheels have over other wheels, are, they require much less water than other wheels, strength and durability. Large Water Wheels for Mills. Time from 15 to 120 inches of water, as the head of water requires. Position but one of water and 45 inches of water is sufficient to drive a common saw mill.

These Wheels are made of iron, and cast in one piece. There are various sized Wheels, diameters, 4 feet, 6 feet and 8 feet. They are so constructed that they can be attached to wooden shafts, without altering original setting of gearing.
