THE UDDERZOOK-GOSS CASE.

Withdrawal of Claims against the Insurance Companies.

(From the Pittsburg Post.)

District Attorney Wanger of Chester county visited Newcomb, N. J., last week to learn what additional information he could get in relation to the case of Udderzook, now in the jail of Chester county on the charge of murdering Winfield Scott Goss, and in his professional duties called upon Mrs. Toombs, the lady with whom Wilson or Goss boarded during his stay at that place. She informed him that two weeks ago David Goss called upon her and requested a private interview. She refused this, but said she would be willing to tell anything where she was. He told her that he was a brother of Winfield Scott Goss, the murdered man, and of A. Campbell Goss, now indicted at Baltimore for being an accessory to defraud insurance companies, and that he had come there in the interest of A. Campbell Goss. She said he desired very particularly to know whether she was certain she could recognize the man who had boarded with her under the name of A. C. Wilson if she saw him again. She said she certainly could, and he showed her a picture of Winfield Scott Goss. He told her that if that was the case, and she was certain that was the man, he was very sorry indeed, as it placed his brother in a very bad situation, and that all the family would rather love all they possessed than have such to be the case.

Two of the counsel of Eliza W. Goss, the wife of Winfield Scott Goss, in suit against the insurance companies, received the following letter from that lady last week:

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3, 1873.—To Messrs. Whitney & Jones—Gentlemen: At the time I placed my claims against the insurance companies in your hands I believed there were no just grounds upon which their payment could be resisted. And such is still my conviction. It adds to my other sorrows, however, which are great enough, to contend further in regard to them at this time. It would be more judicious, for many reasons, to remove them from the courts, reserving, however, my right. The grounds upon which they are removed will soon be investigated elsewhere, and I can then judge better in regard to the matter. You will therefore please withdraw all the suits for the present. Grateful to you for all you have done for me, I remain, respectfully,

ELIZA W. GOSS.

From this it will be seen that Mrs. Goss, no doubt, thinks the trial of Wm. Udderzook at West Chester, in October next, will decide the matter as to whether or not it will be advisable to further press her demands against the insurance companies.

THE TRAIN ROBBERS.

Particulars of the Pursuit—How They Were "Surrounded" in St. Clair County. No History of the Gang.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Democrat writes from Sedalia, Mo., under date of 8th instant, some particulars of the pursuit of the supposed perpetrators of the Iowa train robbery, the story having been obtained. It is alleged, from a member of the Lafayette County Vigilance Committee. The correspondent says: "Immediately after the occurrence an Iowa detective was employed by the railroad and express companies to ferret out the thieves and bring them to justice. This official at once organized a band of eleven picked men to aid him in endeavoring to capture the outlaws, and knowing that the James boys, who were among the suspected ones, had been living part of the time in Ray county, and subsequently in Lafayette county, in this State, they headed for Auldville, where they were joined by the Lafayette County Vigilance. The pursuing party soon struck the trail of the robbers and capured a magnificent mare belonging to one of the Jameses. She was sent to Dubuque. Getting wind of the preparations that were being made for their capture, the Jameses managed to make their escape from Lafayette county. The trail was lost for a time but the detective soon received information which afterwards proved to be correct, to the effect that the robbers had gone to join the Younger boys at their home near Johnson City, a village in St. Clair county, some eighty-five miles from Sedalia, and fifteen or sixteen miles south of Montrose. On the 27th of August the Vigilance Committee arrived in Sedalia, and the officers of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas road furnished them with a special train. The official in charge had orders to take the party to any point on the road that might be deemed necessary to further their project. A stop was made at Montrose, where the Committee left the train and took wagons for the vicinity of Johnson City, arriving there about midnight. They left the wagons and teamsters by the roadside, in order that it might appear as though they were engaged in hauling lumber, while the main body of the pursuers took to the woods and made their camp. Scouts were then put to work to ascertain it the robbers were really in the neighborhood, and this fact was soon determined beyond a doubt. At 2 o'clock on Friday morning one of the scouts came in and stated that the Younger boys had put up for the night at their home in the suburbs of Johnson City. The scout had taken the precaution to notify the teamsters as he passed, and the wagons were driven to the camp. The plan of attack was speedily decided on, and the committee started for the "Robbers' Roost," arriving there in a short time. It was their intention not to make any demonstration until daylight, but in approaching the house an indiscreet member of the party cried out "Close upon it." This brought matters to a climax, and the entire party advanced on the house, their guns bearing on the doors and windows. The inmates were ordered to surrender, and as no signs of fight were visible, it was soon ascertained that the only occupants of the building were women and children, and that the objects of the pursuit had made good their escape. The women pretended to be very much frightened, and denied that the robbers had been in the vicinity. They afterward claimed to have been grossly abused by the Vigilants, and it is reported on good authority that a member of the family has gone to Jefferson City to see Governor Woodson with reference to the affair. The Committee returned to Sedalia on Friday night, very much chagrined at their bad luck, and very hungry. They complained of having had nothing to eat, and stated that they themselves had been eaten up by chiggers and ticks. They stacked arms at the Ives House, kept their six-shooters in their pockets, and got outside of numerous 'square meals.' The next morning they took the train for Auldville, and on arriving there disbanded and gave up the chase."

The same correspondent gives rather an enthusiastic account of the antecedents of the robbers, saying: "The criminal record of the gang dates back as far as 1861, and although they have done little but murder and pillage, no one of them has ever been taken. Undoubtedly the desperado most to be feared is Arthur P. McCoy. He is about thirty-five years of age, a giant in stature, and as brave as a lion. He followed the occupation of a painter in St. Louis, but on the breaking out of the rebellion joined his fortunes with some irregular command in the Confederate interest, and thenceforward was known as a desperado of the most bloodthirsty type. He became a spy and a bushwhacker, but was never known to be wounded. He has had a hand in every bank robbery of consequence that has occurred in Missouri, and has also 'worked' in Kentucky and other Southern States. McCoy has earned the reputation of being the deadliest pistol shot in America on horseback, and is a stranger to fear. At Gallatin in this State, while being pursued by some citizens whom he had robbed, his wonderful marksmanship saved him a hempen necktie. While his horse was at full speed, McCoy shot a citizen in the forehead who was sixty yards to his right, and turning fired over his left shoulder, and put a ball through the brain of an unfortunate Vigilante who was taking aim at him with a shot-gun from behind a tree fully 110 paces distant. Both men feel dead in their tracks. His home is in Howard county, and after the Iowa adventure he was traced there, and his shanty surrounded by nine men. McCoy was watching the pursuing party from behind a log, and at daylight he made his hiding-place known, covered the leader of the expedition with his deadly Derringer, and made the entire crowd about face and march by single file away from the spot. It was supposed he would join the balance of the gang at the home of the Youngers, in St. Clair county, but the surmise was incorrect, as although he may have been in the vicinity, no traces were found of him. The James boys, Jesse, and Frank, are the clever members of the 'mob,' and to them is always assigned the responsibility of planning the robberies. They also do their share of fighting when necessary, are excellent shots, superb horsemen, and, to use the expression of my informant, are as 'good grit' as ever drew triggers or handled knives. During the war the James boys belonged to Quantrell's command, and since its close they have done nothing but rob, making banks and railroad trains a speciality. They and their relatives live in Ray county, but the boys have spent the greater portion of their last few years in Lafayette county. In addition to the other robberies, they were connected with the raid on the Lexington Bank as far back as 1865. After the attack on the Cameron Bank they retreated to an impregnable position in the Sni Hills, sixteen or eighteen miles southwest of Lexington, where they built themselves a cabin, and fortified it so strongly that, although a number of persons knew their whereabouts, and were aware of the large reward offered for their capture, no attempts at arrest were made. The brothers are about thirty-two years of age, light haired and comparatively slim built. Of the Youngers' record but little is known beyond the fact that they reside near Johnson City, in St. Clair county. They are three in number, and two of them served with the Jameses under the command of Quantrell, during the war, so that they too, received a thorough education in guerrilla tactics. They have been noted desperadoes since they were big enough to handle a gun, and, like the balance of their associates, are crack shots with either rifle or pistol. They have been known for years as notoriously bad men, and were outlawed by Governor Fletcher for refusing to surrender and take the requisite oath at the close of the war. Since that time they have been accused of several murders, and numerous robberies have been attributed to them."

RUTLAND, VERMONT,

General Wholesale Agents for

VERMONT AND NEW HAMPSHIRE,

AND

WASHINGTON, WARREN, ESSEX, AND CLINTON COUNTIES, N. Y.

TWELVE REASONS

Why the Trade give to the Excelsior Diary the preference over all others.

1st. It is printed on fine rose tint paper.

2d. The same quality of paper is used through the entire line, giving just as good paper in a cheap book as in a high priced one.

3d. It is the best bound Diary in the market.

4th. We give you 25 different styles to select from.

5th. Quite a number of the best selling patterns are made by no other house.

6th. The pocket-book styles are all arranged to suit the business man.

7th. Retailers want a Diary that is neat, attractive and saleable.

8th. You will find fewer of these among the old stock of dealers, as they sell better than any other Diary.

9th. The sale of the Excelsior has increased more than ten per cent. in the last four years, which fact shows that the retailer appreciates them.

10th. We give attractive show cards and posters, and plenty of them.

11th. They cost no more, and by no less, than other Diaries—all lists and discounts being uniform.

12th. The Excelsior is the best selling Diary offered to the trade.

We intend to visit all dealers in Diaries early in the season. If there are any, however, that we do not reach, we shall be pleased to send them, on application, a line of samples to examine in comparison with other goods.

Early orders are always filled complete, while late orders are apt to find the assortment broken, and frequently the best selling styles used up. It is a good plan to put in orders early as pay-day comes no sooner than with late orders. We can deliver goods any time after 1st of October.

Send in your orders for the Excelsior early to

FOR CASH.

P. O. Box 4625. No. 25 Nassau Street.

THE MIDLAND RAILWAY is an enterprise of National Importance, and the Stock and Bonds soon to be placed upon the principal Stock Exchanges will be freely dealt in as those of the New York Central, Erie, and Pennsylvania Central Railroad Companies. Five hundred and eighty-six miles of its railroad are now completed and in operation. Continuous trains are running from New York to Newburgh, and on the Western Extension, towards Buffalo, the company is running trains 86 miles, the remainder of the distance, 120 miles, to Buffalo, is in course of rapid construction, and it will be completed within one year. The New York and Western Midland Railway will be one of the most great new Trunk Lines running out of New York.

$50,000,000.

We confidently believe that fifty millions of dollars will be made by the stock and bond holders in this road within a few years by the rise in the value of the property.

The selling value of the stock and bonds of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad is over, $110,000,000

The selling value of the stock and bonds of the Midland Railway Companies, including sufficient to complete the track to Binghamton and double track east of Middletown, $21,000,000

Length of New York Central and Hudson River railroad in New York 144 miles.

Length of the Midland railway, Jersey City to Buffalo, via Montclair, 286 miles.

Saving over the Central route..... 70 miles.
Saving over the Erie route..... 78 miles.

This difference of distance in favor of the Midland will must always enable it to compete with the other lines advantageously as to profit, and ought to give it a larger share of the passenger than any other line. The early completion of the Western Extension, from Campbell Centre to Buffalo, is ensured by the subscription of capitalists to a syndicate formed to purchase $500,000 of bonds from the company. The syndicate has guaranteed to furnish the balance, if wanted, to complete this road. We offer for a short time, New York & Oswego Midland Railway Co's First Mortgage seven per cent. Gold Bonds, Western Extension, at 75 and accrued interest in currency.

We are negotiating for selling Jersey City & Albany Railroad Company's 7 per cent. gold bonds at 80 and interest in currency. This road is now in operation from Jersey City to Tappan town, a distance of 24 miles. Nine miles further are graded, on which iron is being laid. The road will be completed to Hackensack within a year. These bonds are only issued on completed road.

A specialty will be made of the stock and bonds of the following companies: New York & Oswego Midland railway company, New Jersey Midland railway company, Montclair railway company, and Jersey City & Albany railroad company. We have never offered a diluted stock of these bonds.

All bonds and stocks known in this market will be bought and sold, for cash, on orders for investing or dealers. We solicit correspondence and agents for the sale of these bonds.
