THE WAR.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Times furnishes the following with regard to the passage of troops through Baltimore:

"One of the officers informs me that he never saw such a demonstration of joy as was manifested by the Baltimore people at the landing of the troops from the steamers. A crowd of 10,000 people assembled, and followed the troops through the streets. Not a single hor a sound of disapprobation was heard during the whole march. The people joined to vie with each other in cheering, and other patriotic demonstrations.

"The stars and stripes were thrown to the breeze along the route, while the soldiers responded with hearty cheers to the demonstrations. Capt Sherman's battery was placed with three guns in advance and three in the rear, while the infantry marched, with closed ranks in the centre, and with a file on each side of the street to keep it clear. They carried their muskets loaded, with bayonets fixed. They did not see a secession flag nor hear a word of treason.

"As they left the depot, vast crowds lined the road, and cheered wildly. Bonfires were lighted along the entire route from Baltimore to Washington. They were saluted by Butterfield's command, under Col Jones of the Massachusetts Sixth, at the Relay House and at Junction. They reached Washington at o'clock, and marched immediately to quarters. They were seven hours on the road—half of the men in freight cars, with the doors closed and locked, to prevent accidents. They had nothing to eat for thirty-six hours. All were in good spirits, and most of them are ready to serve during the war. The Pennsylvania first regiment of volunteers numbers sixteen hundred men.—On the other side of Baltimore are 15,000 ready to move as soon as wanted. Four regiments were expected to follow immediately. Some will join Gen Butler at the Relay House.

"By the same route, immediately following, 1,000 regular troops from Texas, under Major Shepard. This company have been in service nearly twenty-three years. They are very efficient body of men. They will be stationed at some post outside the city. The war department contemplates attaching to it a battery of field artillery of the regular army.

"There are now at the Relay House and in Washington thirty thousand troops, fully armed and equipped."

Tennessee in League with Jeff Davis.

Tennessee seems to be fully committed to union by the action of her governor and legislature. By a message of the governor we learn that commissioners appointed to represent Tennessee, and a commissioner from the confederate states, Henry W. Hilliard, have concluded a military league, substantially the same as that said to be proposed by Virginia. The league is entered into as preparatory to the admission of Tennessee into the confederacy, and stipulates that the whole military force of the state during the impending war shall be under the chief control of and subject to the confederacy, and that troops upon becoming a member of the confederacy shall turn over all the public property, forts, arsenals, munitions of war and ships of war in the United States, to the confederacy, and also that all expenses incurred are to be assumed by the confederacy. The secession party ratified, and the governor has signed the league. Tennessee is thus bound to the chariot wheels of Jeff Davis and his supporters, without any regard to the wishes of the people, although they are to be allowed to vote upon the ordinance of secession on the 8th of June.

Capture of Wiman's Steam Gun.

The machine captured by Gen Butler's men near Baltimore on Friday, is a mysterious affair. It was Rose Wiman's famous steam gun of which much has been said. Failing to get an opportunity to use it in Baltimore for the destruction of the government troops, Wiman was secretly dispatching it to the rebel camp at Harper's Ferry, in charge of the lieutenant n. Dickinson, who was to put it up and put it in operation. Dickinson was taken prisoner, with evidence proving the treason of Wiman, who will be arrested if he can be found. The gun was captured at Ellicott's Mills, about 7 miles West of the Relay House, by a detachment of 100 of the Massachusetts 6th regiment under Col Jones, with Major Cook and two guns of the Boston flying artillery. No resistance was made to a few men who had it in charge. The gun has been mounted on the stone bridge that crosses the Patapsco river at the Junction. The beauty of the matter is that there are plenty of engineers in the ranks of the Massachusetts sixth and flying artillery to work the gun, which is undoubtedly a very destructive instrument. It commands an immense sweep of country in its present position. The news of the capture was a sensation at Washington, and Secretary Cameron telegraphed to Gen Butler, thanks to Col Jones and the men of Massachusetts for taking the "steam gun." The inventor Wiman an immense amount of money, and is said to throw 300 shot a minute. But there are some doubts as to its actual efficiency. The mechanics say the idea is all right, and that there is no doubt that a reliable machine may be made on some such principle. A Mr McCarty of New York has built one, which is declared superior to that of Wiman, and throws shot and shell as fast as they can be poured into it.

Proclamation by the President.--Martial Law in Florida.

President Lincoln has issued a proclamation setting forth that insurrection exists in the state of Florida, by which the lives, liberty and property of loyal citizens are endangered; and as he deems it proper that all needful measures should be taken for protecting such citizens and all officers of the United States in the discharge of their duties in that state, the president therefore directs the commander of the forces of the United States in the district of Florida or any person or persons in command of the military forces of the United States in the Florida coast to permit no person to exercise any office or authority upon the islands of Key West, the Tortugas and Santa Rosa, which may be inconsistent with the laws and constitution of the United States, authorizing him at the same time, if deemed to be for the public safety, to suspend the writ of habeas corpus and remove from the vicinity of the United States fortresses all dangerous or suspected persons.

State Legislation against Treason.

The Pennsylvania legislature has passed a very stringent and comprehensive bill for the punishment of treasonable acts against the state and the general government, and the legislature of Connecticut has a similar one in progress. The penalty affixed is imprisonment of not less than ten nor more than ten years, and a fine of not over $5000, or both, in the discretion of the court. Also, the forms of oath to be taken by state officers are so framed as to require a renunciation of any allegiance claimed by any person or state at war with the government, knowingly assisting an enemy, or enlisting or inducing others to enlist in the armies, furnishing munitions or other aid to the enemy, carrying on traitorous correspondence with the enemy, and various other acts by which the enemy may be assisted or the government obstructed. This legislation is important and needful, as there is much looseness of opinion and practice prevailed, and the true nature and mischief of treason is only half comprehended.

Martial law will soon be declared in Baltimore, and Winan and other traitors be locked up.

A Thrilling Incident at Camp Curtin.--An American Eagle Surveys the Camp.

One of the most thrilling incidents connected with the military operations of the day, took place at Camp Curtin on Saturday afternoon, the 26th. A number of persons were engaged in raising the stars and stripes over the main building, used as the headquarters of the officers, and just as everything was in readiness and the men had seized the halyard to run up the flag, a large eagle came from no one knew where, hovered over the flag, and sailed majestically over the encampment while the flag was run up! Thousands of eyes were upturned in a moment, and, as the noble bird looked down, cheers of three thousand men rent the air. Never was such ovation paid the "Imperial Bird of Jove."—It lingered for a few minutes, apparently not a particle frightened at the terrific noise, then, cleaving the air with his pinions, he disappeared in the horizon. In the days of the Roman republic this would have been looked upon as a glorious omen, and we do not see why we should not look upon it as such now. Never was an incident looked upon with more favor. It sent a patriotic thrill through every heart that witnessed it, and every heart seemed to be animated with the deepest feeling of patriotism and devotion to the flag of our Union.

John Brown Setting a Back Fire.

The government will of course neither encourage nor permit any tampering with the Southern slaves or any attempt to promote insurrections. But it will be entirely out of its power to prevent these natural consequences of a civil war, or to stop the private enterprises of the sort which may be secretly started by the John Brown men and the free negroes of the North and of Canada. The Cleveland Herald has information that the report of an encampment of negroes in that state, on the Virginia border, was correct; that they were between Newcastle and Beaver, under the direction of John Brown, Jr., but have removed further East. The Herald believes that the Haytean emigration scheme, in which Brown and Redpath are engaged, involves a more formidable demonstration of the sort, and says: "There is reason to believe that this project is much more extensive than the marching of a few hundred negroes into the frontier of Virginia; that not only a large and well drilled force of blacks in Canada are ready to co-operate, but that the emigration to Hayti will result in a descent upon some undefended point on the coast, with a military force of Haytean soldiery, and that the banner of emancipation will be backed by a formidable body under skillful leaders. Our informant is a man of character, not easily imposed on, nor willing to mislead others, and speaks from direct information from some of the parties. He expressed the confident belief that in a short time named, the Southern states, in consequence of this movement, would be invoking the aid of the United States government to protect them from a general servile insurrection."

Free Sailors held as Slaves.

The white portion of the crew of the Star of the West, captured by the Texas rebels, have arrived at Chicago. They state that three colored sailors on the Star, all free men, were taken by the leaders at Montgomery, put up at auction the same day, sold and hurried off into slavery. As soon as they arrived at Montgomery these unfortunate men were seized, not allowed a word of defense, and hurried off like cattle into the interior, under the tender mercies of the slave driver. One of these was Levi Mann, aged about 50, and the other Walter Goodyear, aged about 18, having families in New York city. The native alleged for depriving them of their liberty was as dirty and sound as the n was an excuse for murder—the poor fellows were sold to defray the expenses of sending out to the free states the rest of the crew, when it was found that they could not be bribed to enter the rebel service. The men thus deprived of freedom were in the service of the United States. Looking at this act in its relation to the laws of war, it is as flagrant a violation of them as to have made slaves of the white members of the crew.

Reports from Harper's Ferry.

Preparations indicate that the federal government is getting ready for a contest at Harper's Ferry. The rebels are said to have planted 40 cannon there.

1500 Alabama troops with 20 cannon landed Sunday night at Manassas Junction, en route to Harper's Ferry.

A person employed on special service visited Harper's Ferry last week, and returned to Chambersburg, Monday. He reports that the number of rebel troops is 6000 altogether. About three-fourths of them are well armed, the balance not armed at all. Only 200 Kentuckians are there now, and one company of South Carolinians. The resident militia at Harper's Ferry is very restive under existing circumstances. Only one days provisions were on hand. All supplies are cut off from Western Virginia by the people of that section. The supplies within reach, in the surrounding country, must be exhausted within two weeks. Positively not more than 1000 stand of arms were found in the wreck arsenal, and some of these in bad condition. The rebels cannot manufacture more than twelve rifles per day. They have only 600 men on the Maryland side of the Potomac. No batteries have been erected on this side, and the rebels show no disposition to erect them. All their preparations indicate defensive purposes, with no disposition for forward movements. They must retreat or be provisioned. This, however, does not contradict the probable advance of the main confederate army by that route on Southern Pennsylvania, when Jeff Davis discovers the impossibility of breaking Scott's lines around Washington.

Route Open Through Baltimore.

Through travel to Washington via Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore was resumed Monday, the bridges of the Bush and Gunpowder rivers having been rebuilt. The Canton bridge was finished Monday evening, under direction of the city of Baltimore.—The telegraph poles are being replaced, and there is a prospect of the immediate resumption of through communication.

A train from Philadelphia went through to Baltimore Monday afternoon, with mails and passengers. It was warmly welcomed by the people. The national flag was displayed in various parts of the city, Monday, the prohibition having been removed by the police.—The citizens were all day expecting the arrival of federal troops on the Northern Central railroad, but none arrived up to 10 o'clock p. m.

☞ Gen Twiggs considers Mr Buchanan's denunciation of him, just before he left Washington, as a personal affront. He, therefore, addressed to a letter to Mr Buchanan, after the latter had retired from office, dated East Pascagoula, March 30, holding him personally responsible in the following language:

"Your usurped right to dismiss me from the army might be acquiesced in; but you had no right to brand me as a traitor. This was personal, and I shall treat it as such, not through the papers, but in person. I shall, most assuredly, pay a visit to Lancaster for the sole purpose of a personal interview with you. So, sir, prepare yourself. I am well assured that public opinion will sanction any course I may desire to take with you."

☞ Perley, writing from Washington, May 9, says:

We had a sad accident here this morning, at "Camp Cameron," where the New York 7th are located in true military style. Private Lawrence Keese, of Shumway's eighth company (only son of the late auctioneer Keese,) was shot dead by a musket which fell with the others in a stack at the guard tent. He was a gallant little fellow, universally loved by his comrades, and his death has cast a gloom over the camp. Col Lefferts had an injunction placed on the wires, and sent an officer by express train to carry the sad news to his widowed mother, and to one who was pledged to become his bride "after the war."

PARTICULAR CAUTION.

☞ In the science of medical imposition, which meets us at every turn, it is difficult to tell who is a regular practitioner, and who is a pretender. Many of the advertisements of so-called Physicians are mere catchpennies, without any knowledge of the disease they profess to cure, and are unworthy of public patronage. Others, in more respectable dress, are but little better, and as the newspapers are full of their specious promises, it is difficult to make a judicious selection. Young men, or those who fancy themselves diseased, are the easy victims of these pretenders. Dr. M. will send free, in a sealed letter envelope, a pamphlet on Diseases of Women and on Private and Chronic Diseases, which should be read by all, containing information with the most unmitigated severe and truthful warnings, with all which is necessary to be known in the choice of the best means of cure. To the Public.

"The undersigned, practical watchmakers and dealers in watches, having bought and sold American Watches for a number of years past, and having dealt in all kinds of foreign watches for a much longer period of time, beg to state that they have never dealt in watches which, as a class or in individual instances, have been more satisfactory to themselves and customers, whether in respect of durability, beauty of finish, mathematically correct proportions, accurate compensation and adjustment, or the time-keeping results, than those manufactured by the Waltham Company."
