OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH.

My Lords and Gentlemen—With great satisfaction I again meet you in Parliament, and have recourse to your assistance. My relations with foreign powers continue on satisfactory and friendly footing. At the last session I informed you that overtures had been made me, to ascertain whether, if a conference should be held by the great powers of Europe, for the purpose of settling arrangements connected with the future condition of Italy, and that a plenipotentiary would be sent by me to assist at such a conference. I have since received a formal invitation from the Emperor of Austria and the Emperor of the French to send a plenipotentiary to a Congress, to consist of the representatives of the eight who were parties to the treaty of Vienna—the object of such Congress being stated to be to receive communication of treties concluded at Zurich, and deliberate in association with the above powers, the Courts of Rome, Sardinia and Sicily, on the means best adapted for the pacification of Italy, and for placing its property on a solid and durable basis. Desirous at all times in concurring in proceedings having for their object the maintenance of peace, I accepted the invitation, but at the same time made known that in such Congress I should steadfastly maintain the principle that no external force should be employed to impose upon the people of Italy any particular government or constitution. Circumstances have led to the postponement of the Congress, without a day being fixed for a meeting; but whether in Congress or in seperate negotiation, I shall endeavor to obtain for the people of Italy freedom from foreign interference by force of arms in their internal concerns; and I trust that the affairs of the Italian Peninsula will be satisfactorily and peacefully settled. The papers on the subject will soon be laid before you. I am in communication with the Emperor of France, with a view to extend commercial intercourse between the two countries, and thus draw closer the bonds of friendly alliance between them.

A dispute having arisen between Spain and Morocco, I endeavored by friendly means to prevent a rupture, but regret to say, without success. Papers on the subject will be laid before you.

My Plenipotentiary and the Plenipotentiary of the Emperor of the French having in obedience to their instructions, proceeded to the mouth of the Peiho, in order to repair to Pekin to exchange in that city ratifications of the treaty of Teinsin, in pursuance of the 56th clause of that treaty, their further progress was opposed by force, and conflicts took place between the Chinese forts at the forts at the mouth of the river and the naval forces by which the Plenipotentiaries were escorted. The allied forces on that occasion displayed their usual bravery, but after sustaining a severe loss they were compelled to retire. I am preparing in concert and co-operation with the Emperor of the French an expedition to compel redress and the fulfilment of the stipulations of the treaty. It will be gratifying to me if prompt acquiescence of the Emperor of China, in the moderate demands which will be made by the Plenipotentiaries, shall obviate the necessity of the employment of the force. I have directed that the paper on the subject be laid before you.

An unauthorized proceeding by an officer of the United States, in regard to the Island of San Juan, between Vancouver's Island and the main land, might have led to a serious collision between my forces and the United States, but the collision has been prevented by the judicial forbearance of my naval officers on the spot, and by the equitable and conciliatory provisions and arrangements proposed by the Government of the United States. I trust that the question of boundary, out of which this affair has arisen, may be amicably settled in a manner conformable with the justice of the two countries, and be defined by the first article of the treaty of 1846. The last main have been extinguished. My Viceroy has made peaceful progress through the districts which have been the principal scenes of disorder, and by a judicious combination of firmness and generosity, my authority has everywhere been solidly and by treaty permanently established. I have received from the Viceroy the most gratifying account of the loyalty of my East Indian subjects, and of the good feeling evinced by the native chiefs and the great landholders of the country. The attention of the government in India has been directed to the development of the internal resources of the country, and I am glad to inform you that an improvement has taken place in its financial prospects. I have concluded a treaty with Japan, and a treaty regarding boundaries with the Republic of Guatamala. I have directed that the treaties shall be laid before you."

The remainder of the speech is devoted to local matters. The public revenue is pronounced in a satisfactory condition. The estimates have been prepared with a view of putting the army and the navy and the defences of the country on an efficient footing. The volunteer movement is referred to with pride and gratification. A reform bill, and other legislative measures are prominent, and the speech winds up with an expression of gratitude for the general prosperity which prevails.

Boy Love.

One of the queerest and funniest things to think of in after life, is boy love. No sooner does a boy acquire a tolerable statue than he begins to imagine himself a man, and to ape manish ways. He casts side glances at the tall girls he may meet becomes a regular attendant at church or meeting; carries a cane, holds his head erect, and struts a little in his walk. Presently, and how very soon, he falls in love; yet falls is a proper word because it best indicates his happy, delirious self-abasement. He lives now in a fairy region, somewhat collateral to the world, and yet, blended somehow inextricably with it. He perfumes his hair wit fragrant oils, scatters essence over his handkerchief, and desperately shaves and anoints for a beard. He quotes poetry, in which 'love' 'dove' and 'heart' and 'dart' peculiarly predominate; and he plunges deeper in the delicious labrinth, fancies himself filled with the divine afflatus, and suddenly breaks into a scarlet rash—of rhyme. He feeds upon the looks of his beloved; is raised to the seventh heaven if she speaks a pleasant word; is betrayed into the most astounding extacies by smile and is plunged into the gloomiest regions of misanthrophy by a frown. He believes himself the most devoted lover in the world. There was never such another. There never will be. He is one great idolater! He is the very type of magnanimity and self abnegation. Wealth! he despises the grawling thought. Poverty, with his adorable beloved, he rapturously apostraphises as the first of all earthly blessings; and "love in a cottage, with water and crust," is his beau-ideal paradise of dainty delights. He declares to himself, with the most solemn emphasis that he would go through fire and water; undertake a pilgrimage to China or Kamschatka; swim storm tossed oceans; scale impassable mountains, and face legions of bayonets, for but one sweet smile from her dear lips. He doats upon a flower she has cast away. He cherishes her glove—a little worn in the fingers—next his heart. He sighs like a locomotive letting off steam. He scrawls her dear name over quires of foolscap—a fitting medium for his insanity. He scornfully depreciates the attention of other boys of his own age; cuts Peter Tibbets dead because he said that the adorable Angeline had carotty hair; and passes Harry Bell contemptuously for daring to compare that gawky Mary Jane with his incomparable Angeline. Happy! happy! foolish boy-love! with its joys, and its hopes, and its fears; its sorrows, its jealousies, and its delights; its raptures and its tortures; its ecstatic fervors and terrible heart-burnings; its solemn ludicrousness, and its intensely prosaic termination.
