Local and State News.

Tyson Hutchinson of Stannard was caught in jail in this place last Thursday charged with stealing bonds, freight etc. in Sheffield.

The Christian Life—what is it? will be the subject of discourse at the church of the Messiah next Sunday evening.

There will be a bean-bean party and entertainment supper at the vestry of the church of the Messiah Thursday evening, Feb. 18.

Notwithstanding the croakers who are attempting to write down the business of St. Johnsbury, a careful canvass of the village shows eleven more business places and firms in January 1875, than in the corresponding month last year.

A little son of Mr. Borland of Cliff street, fell down the cellar stairs one day last week, and received some pretty bad abrasions on the head. He was stunned, and it was feared for a time he was seriously injured, but he came out all right.

As already stated in these columns, Mr. Ide of Hopkinton, was very ill at the time of his wife's death. His friends will rejoice to hear of his improvement elsewhere. Quite singularly, both father and mother of Mrs. Ide, who died during her illness, were buried there, and have been very dangerously ill.

The Free Baptist Society give an entertainment at their hall next Monday evening, consisting of Bible tableaux, dialogues, singing, etc. One of the dialogues will be the scene where a young man goes down to Egypt to buy corn and finds himself known to his brethren.

The next union religious meeting is to be held at the North Church this Thursday evening, at half-past seven. It is expected there will be another union meeting next Tuesday evening, although there will be meetings for young people, and enquiries after the truth Friday and Saturday evenings.

O. G. Hale says that Horace Peck offered him $18,000 not $16,000 for the Avenue House, and that he (Hale) refused to take $25,000 including $3,000 worth of furniture. We may have been misinformed. Speaking of the Avenue House, Mr. Hale has got things to run again mainly to suit him. Mr. Ide is installed as chief clerk, and with a help throughout, the house is not idle a day.

The expenses of the Passumpsic road, during the last half of the year were reduced $30,000 over the corresponding period last year. It is well understood that the stagnation of business generally, and especially the lumber trade has seriously affected the receipts of railways. Through the judicious management of superintendent Merrill however, the Passumpsic pays running expenses and the usual half-yearly dividend. So says the Stanstead Journal.

The "cold wave" in February was felt as intense as that in January, in some places, more so. In this place morning thermometers indicated as follows: Sunday morning 32 below, Monday 26, Tuesday 24, and Wednesday 24 below. Although this was not down to our January "thaw," coming on top of that, water pipes, etc., froze up fearfully. This "cold wave" extended all over the country with points of less severity. This will evidently pass for one of the severest winters on record. As we go to press, the wind has changed into the South, with a driving snow storm.

The State Board of Agriculture hold meetings at the town hall, to-day and to-morrow. The entire program was printed last week. That not already carried out is as follows:

THURSDAY EVENING.

1. What kind of Farming Pays?—James G. Hovey, St. Johnsbury.

5. The Importance of System in Agriculture.—F. V. Powers, Waterford.

FRIDAY MORNING, FEB. 12.

6. How to make Farming Honorable and Pleasant.—E. P. Allen, St. Johnsbury Centre.

8. Hybridization of Cereals.—Cyrus G. Pringle, Member of Board.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

9. Esthetic Culture.—I. W. Sanborn, Lyndonville.

FRIDAY EVENING.

10. Selection of Dairy Cows.—Gardner S. Fassett, Member of Board.

11. Principles of Butter Making.—Francis D. Douglass, Whiting.

Discussions are expected to follow each paper and it is hoped that every one will feel free to take part in them.

A Narrow Escape.

Bradford Page, who lives above Fairbanks village, undertook to prevent his cellar from freezing on Monday, by lighting a bushel of charcoal in an open vessel. Before a great while the oldest child fainted, and continued to do so, and other members of the family became sick before the cause was thought of and removed. At last accounts the baby showed symptoms of continued illness, and other members of the family were not well. It was a narrow escape from serious results.

Fire.

The Joseph A. Gould place near Passumpsic, occupied by Geo. W. Carr, 2d, was totally destroyed by fire this morning about two o'clock. The buildings destroyed were a good and large dwelling house, a nice new horse-barn, which cost $2000 to build, and a cow-barn. Some of the furniture was saved, but a quantity of wood was destroyed. The buildings were probably worth between four and five thousand dollars; insured in A. L. Mutual for $1300 in favor of first mortgagee, Mr. Gould. A policy for $1400 had been cancelled the 14th of last month. But little is known about the origin of the fire. Mr. Carr says he had a new boy come to work for him, and last night he built a fire in a spare room, and it may have caught from that. None of the neighbors reached the fire until the buildings were well nigh consumed.

This fire complicates an already complicated case. The mortgages had been foreclosed, and the time of redemption ran out in seventeen days, and Carr must leave then anyway. The losers by this fire are mainly the mortgagees, A. H. McLeod and Judge Poland of this place. The wood burned had already been sold by McLeod, and everything about the premises attachable had been attached. The place had been skinned of everything Carr could get off it, and what is left will not much more than pay the first mortgage. If there are two nervous and excited men seen about to-day, you can safely predict that one's name is Carr, and the other McLeod.

The Gospel Meetings.

The religious meetings held in this place the past week by the committee of young men, were very largely attended, and pervaded by a deep religious feeling. The leaders were Geo. Davis of Burlington, Mr. Cook of Lodi, Messrs. Remington of Fall River and Moore of Boston. These men were ably seconded by Mr. John Sewell of Norwich, and local workers, both clergy and laymen. The plain, simple and attractive way these men had of presenting the Gospel, won the attention and respect of all, and the hearts of many. The town hall was packed with earnest listeners on Sunday afternoon; over eight hundred crowded the South Church in the evening, and nearly as many met at the North Church on Monday evening. Probably as many as seventy arose for prayers, and a goodly number of these declared that they had already given themselves to the Lord. This included heads of families, young men and women, boys and girls.

A most touching incident occurred in the meeting at the North Church Monday afternoon. William Robinson, a man who, as he expressed it, had "walked in sinful channels all his life," arose, and in the most penitent and broken manner, told his experience, his hope and his joy. The case of this man is most remarkable. A drinker and fighter, those who know him best have considered him a dangerous character. Since the Avenue House riot last fall, in which he was prominent, he has been in jail. The Spirit of God seems to have visited him in prison, and he is now a new creature. Although under the condemnation of the law, he is free in the liberty whereby Christ makes all free who come unto him. He is the happiest man in town. His prayers and praises have opened the prison doors to him as they did to Paul and Silas at Philippi. Sheriff Preston allows him to attend these meetings, fully believing in his sincerity. It is apparently one of those wonderful exhibitions of the power of the Holy Spirit of which we read sometimes, but which few are permitted to witness.

Bigamy.

Thomas Whalen was arrested near Passumpsic last Friday for having two wives. Some half dozen years ago Whalen married Joseph Greenwood's daughter. During the past year he married another wife in Willimantic, Conn. On returning to Passumpsic and resuming former relations with the Greenwood family, his Connecticut wife procured a requisition from Governor Peck, and a man appeared on Friday and enlisted Sheriff Preston, when together they went down to Greenwood's place, just below Passumpsic. Arriving at the house, they found their bird had flown. Mr. Preston soon discovered tracks, across the field, and he followed these, while his companion went for assistance. After tracking his man across fields, over fences, down banks and up hills, Mr. Preston found they ended at a barn. Going into the barn he began search, and finally found Whalen hid down behind a land-roller in the corner of the floor well covered with hay. He secured him and took him back to the house, and Saturday he was conveyed to Willimantic to answer the charge of bigamy. Whalen used to live in this place and work for Luke Buzzell.

Frozen to Death.

The story comes that Louis Paquin was frozen to death Saturday night in his sleigh between Danville and West Danville. The story also comes that he had been drinking. It was a fearful night, and it was all a sober man could do to keep from freezing. Paquin was a blacksmith and lived in Calais. He formerly lived in this vicinity.

The Next County Fair.

The Executive Committee of the Agricultural Society met at the St. Johnsbury House the 9th inst., chose Major Gen. W. Bossett, marshal for the next fair; appointed the awarding committees; fixed the list of premiums, making no material change from last year, and fixed the time of the fair the 21st, 22d and 23d of September. The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That it is deemed expedient that the chairman of each awarding committee be notified of their duties by special letter from secretary and that it is expected he will be present with his associates or substitutes.

Resolved, That the rules of the society be hereafter that the executive committee meet in the committee's room with the officers of the society in the morning at 9 o'clock of each day of fair to review the day's programme.

Another Falsehood.

"How do St. Johnsbury working people like on the whole a newspaper whose editor, as C. M. Stone did a few days ago, says that the workmen of St. Johnsbury don't know enough to get any benefit from their money if they do save it, and therefore it had better be in the hands of the merchants who know how to take care of it?"—St. Johnsbury Farmer, Feb. 5.

The above is entirely and unpalatably false. Some friend, if he has any, should tell the writer of the above, that one of the meanest and most cowardly acts, is to misrepresent another by putting words in his mouth that he never uttered, with the intent thereby to injure his reputation.

Personal.

Ezra B. Gates of the East village, moves to Littleton the present week, where he goes into the milling business with two brothers already there.

Col. Franklin Fairbanks has been elected one of the trustees of the New England Agricultural Society. Frederick Billings of Woodstock is president.

Half Fare Regulations.

The Central Vermont, Passumpsic, Portland and Ogdensburg, and Montpelier and Wells River Railroads, have entered into an agreement limiting the occasions when half fare tickets will be granted, as follows: On and after February 1st, 1875, half fare will only be granted to persons attending Camp Meetings, Fourth of July Excursions, State and County Fairs and Teachers' Institutes. Persons attending other conventions or meetings of bodies of whatever nature, where reduced rates are given, will be charged local fare going and one half fare in returning, with the exception of Sabbath School excursions, for which special rates will be made by each road.

East Hardwick.

Rev. J. Torrey and family left for Yarmouth, Me., on the 5th inst. Previous to their departure the Ladies of the Congregational Society presented Mrs. Torrey with a thirty dollar enseme shawl as a slight token of friendship and regard.

Last Sabbath morning was the coldest of the season, the mercury going down to 33 below zero. Church going families from the hill roads were obliged to shovel and plow the roads before they could reach the church. The society committee are negotiating with Rev. John Frazier to supply the pulpit.

Two cows belonging to M. D. Mudgett in a fight recently got their horns so interlocked as to necessitate sawing off one of them before they could be separated.

Mrs. H. T. Jones of South Hardwick, recently suffered severe injuries by falling, striking her head with force on the door-step. She was taken up quite insensible, but is now improving with hopes of rapid recovery.

Mr. Harvey Carr of West Hill, recently met with a sad accident while splitting wood at his house. A chip or splint flew striking him in the eye completely destroying the sight. He is confined to his house and fears are entertained for the safety of the other eye.

About a dozen houses in South Hardwick street were deprived of their usual supplies of water a few days ago, through the failure or obstruction of Aiken's aqueduct, by which they were supplied. Frost was the apprehended cause, but upon examination at Aiken's residence where the trouble existed none was found. But the removal of two large lizards from the pipe soon solved the problem and set matters right.

The Brattleboro Record has been purchased by D. Leonard of Fairhaven.

The Globe says that the Rutland sportsman who predicted a mild and open winter because the hair on squirrels' tails was not so thick as usual, had his ears frozen four inches deep the other morning.

A man dealing in spectacles called at Cook's hotel, Greensboro, stopped over night, called for his team, but said nothing about his bill until he was in his sleigh, when he inquired for his bill, and when told that it was $2.50, said he would pay $2.00; but when he was told that would not settle it, he wished them good morning without paying it at all.

The Express has this owl story from Albany, Vt. John Waters caught an owl a few mornings ago in a trap that measured 5 feet from tip to tip of his wings. (!) this is not all of the owl story. This owl had been quite familiar with the hen roost, and had carried away six good nice fat hens in one night. Then in about a week it took away four more. After this he took another and then another. Up to this last one no relics were left to tell the story, but this time the owl took a meal out of the hen and left a part to mark the place of her death. Mr. Waters took advantage of this and putting a trap by the carcass that night he had his owl by the foot. This owl had caught and eaten 12 large fat hens from one barn in less than two weeks, and yet did not weigh but 3 3-4 lbs.

The south end of the Passumpsic railroad bridge at White River Junction was discovered to be on fire about 6 o'clock Thursday afternoon. A number of locomotives were run upon the bridge and with water from their tenders the railroad employees soon extinguished the flames. Loss small.

Lizzie, a little daughter of Madison Potter of Belvidere, narrowly escaped death a few days ago. She and a cousin went into the cellar after apples, taking a light. It is supposed she set the light in the bin, and climbed up over it, setting her clothes on fire. Some of the family hearing her screams, ran and extinguished the flames, but not until the child's dress and apron were burned off, although the child herself was not badly burned.

Sickness prevails to an alarming extent in Glover. There were six deaths in January. The prevailing disease is pneumonia, but there has been one death from cerebro spinal-meningitis, and a very malignant type of canker rash is raging in one school district. In Brownington diphtheria, measles and other diseases are raging to a serious extent. There have been several deaths from canker rash in Albany.

A funny story is told of two Lamoille county farmers who are not Grangers. They induced their wives to join the Grange and report, before they would commit themselves. Now, while they will, they cannot, two black-balls greet every application. Meanwhile, the wives go regularly and triumphantly to every Grange meeting, and the men stay at home, tend the babies, and wonder what they do at the Grange anyhow.—Vergennes Enterprise.

For nine years Col. H. D. Hopkins was Superintendent of the Bethany Church Sunday School, Montpelier, in which position he proved unusually capable and efficient. After a respite of a couple of years, on Sunday last he again assumed the duties of that responsible place to which he has been reelected.—Montpelier Argus.

The session was one of the pleasantest and most spirited in the history of Odd Fellowship. The grand lodge adjourned to meet at Rutland on the first Wednesday in February 1876.

On Tuesday evening a public meeting in the interests of the order was held at Concert hall before a large audience, which was addressed by Hon. Milton R. Tyler of Burlington, and Henry Clark of Rutland. An Odd Fellows life insurance company was organized and the following persons elected officers:

A 85000 horse, owned by Mr. Norwell of Shepard, Norwell & Co., Boston, ran away on Monday, and, breaking his shoulder, had to be killed.

PHAIR SENTENCED TO BE HUNG.—The decision in the case of John P. Phair, convicted in October last of the murder of Mrs. Ann Frieze, which was carried up on exceptions to the Supreme Court, was decided last week, the court refusing a new trial. Chief-Justice Pierpont sentenced Phair to be hung on the 21st of April, 1877.

☞ All the Montpelier papers of last week contained an obituary of the old Pavilion hotel, and even the outside papers tried a hand in it. We copy elsewhere from the Watchman, and the St. Albans Messenger has this:

Col. Boutwell was a bluff, hearty man, with a keen wit, a pungent sarcasm, a somewhat fearful command of epithets, but with a tender heart and a generous soul. His comparatively recent death brought out a flood of anecdote in connection with public notices of his career and which it is not our purpose now to repeat. But there was a phase of his character which casual observers never discovered but which is well known to all his friends—we refer to his kindness to the orphaned and the poor. As a landlord, of course the necessities of business compelled him to keep this ever welling impulse in restraint, but many an unfortunate traveler, stranded upon his beach, could testify how he had been dismissed from the Pavilion, after a good night's rest and a good square meal, by a man with a wig and large nose, whose generosity entitled him to give the parting advice that "a man is a fool to travel without money, and should the guest ever do it again, he hoped to——he would freeze to death——unless he was somewhere near the Pavilion."

We have a personal acquaintance with one young lady, who, when a fatherless child, became the object of Col. Boutwell's bounty and affection, which lasted for many years, and whose prayer it is now that he has gone to his reward. There is another noteworthy instance. During one of the war meetings at Montpelier, when the usual profusion of promises to care for the dear ones left at home had been put forth by the citizens who be sought the young men to enlist, a man who had been in Col. Boutwell's employment went forward and signed the paper. He left three motherless children behind, who were cared for by the friends of their mother. Months after and the father gave his life for the country and one long row of the children died of diphtheria. Col. Boutwell heard of it and neither of many others he remembered those promises. He went and found the remaining orphan, took her to his home. Mrs. Boutwell received her with the tenderness of a mother's heart, and to this day she is a member of the now broken household, a lady educated and promising young lady.

Lamp chimneys are made less liable to break by immersing them in cold water in a suitable vessel which is then placed upon the stove until it boils, after which the chimney is taken out and allowed to cool slowly. But a heavy blow from a hammer or a ball upon a stone hearth will break them even after being treated in this manner.

When to Advertise,

—AND THE—

BEST MEDIUMS!

Many advertisers have a theory about advertising. Some say that there is no use of trying to force trade when it is dull; others say that trade is good enough at certain seasons and they only want more trade in such and such months. Hence they advertise at that time only.

Men who advertise only at stated times are liable to be disappointed in the time it takes to receive results from their advertisements. Somebody has said that the first time a person sees an advertisement in his newspaper, he pays little attention to it; the second week he reads it somewhat carefully; the third week he begins to talk with his family or neighbors about it; and the fourth week he goes and buys the article advertised.

Premising that this describes a large class of readers, articles for use in the spring should be advertised in the winter, while mowing machines and hay rakes should be advertised in April and May, instead of July, the same time.

While in some things regard may be had to the season of advertising, the fact remains that people read a local paper about as much at one time as another, and if at certain periods an advertisement is not likely to be quite as productive, that fact keeps competing advertisements out of the newspaper columns, and consequently gives the whole field to the man who does advertise at that time. Therefore we believe that it is generally admitted that the best time to advertise is all the time.

THE BEST MEDIUM.

In every locality the local newspaper is taken by the best people. The newspaper is the only advertising medium that is bought and paid for by the persons whose attention the advertiser desires to attract. Every man thinks more of the paper for which he pays than of a gratuitous sheet or circular which is thrust in at his door. An advertisement in his own paper attracts his attention and secures his confidence without any offensive solicitation, almost without his knowing it. The strong reason why the newspaper is the best advertising medium is because it is paid for by the recipient. The subscriber pays the cost of manufacture and distribution, the publisher can therefore give publicity to an advertisement at a lower price per hundred or per thousand than could be afforded under other circumstances. No other medium has ever competed successfully with the newspaper as a general advertising medium.

There are over five hundred copies of the Caledonian taken every week in St Johnsbury alone; and no other medium compares with it for reaching the families in this town.
