Helping the Wicked One.

BY MISS ANNIE E. WILSON.

Walking by the wayside, home from church, along the smooth, broad pavement of the city, the whole family moves along together, the mother feeling very complacent in her handsome silk and new bonnet, and the father stepping quite proudly beside his pretty wife.

The young people have all been dutifully drilled to go to church with their parents, unless they have some good excuse for staying at home. So they are all here, except the eldest daughter, whose new dress was not quite finished, though the sewing girl worked hard on it until late Saturday evening. Little five-year-old Emma holds her father's hand; George, next older, walks beside his mother; while two bright, intelligent misses of ten and twelve, follow in their parents' footsteps. Lily, the elder, looks serious and quiet. Some good seed, perchance, has found a tender, moist spot in her young heart, and may take root and bring forth fruit to the glory of God.

Alas! the mother's voice breaks heedlessly in upon the sober thoughts of the child: "Don't you think Mr.—— is falling very much? he does not preach near so well as he did at first, —do you think he does? There was not a thing in that sermon to-day. I could not keep myself awake all I could do, and you did not try, you were fast asleep before he was half through."

Both laughed as if it was a very amusing thing to throw contempt on a man's faithful, earnest labor.

"It certainly was a poor sermon; but he may not have been feeling very well, I believe he was sick the other day," remarked the father.

"But I don't think a minister has any business to preach unless he can do it well, so that his congregation will enjoy hearing him. Don't you agree with me, Mrs. ——?" she added, as an acquaintance stepped up beside her.

"Indeed I do,' replied her friend; "I wish we could find some one who would give us good sermons all the time."

"And yet," mused Lily, "he said he had a message from the King of kings, and I thought it was meant for me."

"But I believe, after all," continued the mother, "I would rather listen to our own minister than to that little fellow he had preaching for him last Sunday; his gestures were as awkward as a school-boy's, and his whining voice made me so nervous I could scarcely sit still."

"And he," thought Lily, "told us he was an ambassador for Christ."

"I couldn't sit still either," said little Emma.

"No, you never do," replied the mother carelessly.

"I liked the young preacher best," spoke up Master George, "because he did not preach so long."

"Well," questioned Lily in her heart, "if father and mother, who are Christians, see no good in the sermons, why need I disturb myself; surely, if they believed what the preacher said, they would talk to me about it sometimes. I reckon it will be time enough for me to think about being a Christian when I am grown."

Ah! whither had the good seed gone? Had not the parents, her own father and mother, played the part of the Evil One in taking away the word out of her heart, lest she should believe and be saved? And who can calculate the number of souls that have been lost, turned out of the way, by just such thoughtless criticisms on the way home from church, or even at any time?

Inadequacy of State Laws.

FOR THE PROTECTION OF WOMEN.

It is no offense under our laws for any "employer, superintendent, overseer, contractor or hirer" of any one of these women, to make insulting proposals to her whereby her food and clothing or her lodging may be improved. A law on this subject was thought to be needed, and accordingly one was reported to our last legislature from the judiciary committee, but it was defeated in the house, and it is not as yet unlawful for the employer of a woman to attempt to corrupt her.

It is no offense under our laws for an employer of one of these women to seduce her, because our supreme court in construing the law against abduction embodied in public statutes, c. 207, sec. 2, decides in 12 Metcalf Reports, p. 93, that the law was not intended to punish "cases of mere seduction or illicit intercourse with individual enticing."

Even if an employer of an unmarried woman of chaste life and conversation shall fraudulently and deceitfully entice and take her away for the purpose of prostitution to one of these 100 houses, or elsewhere, our laws consider his act a far less offense than if he had stolen a cow worth any trifle over $100.

To steal a cow of that value subjects a man to imprisonment in the state-prison for five years, whereas a man who merely ruins the life of a pure woman by fraud and deceit for the gratification of his beastly appetite, cannot be punished by more than three years in the state-prison.

Or to steal a cow of that value, a man may be sent to the common jail for two years and be fined not over $600, but if he steal the good named of woman, he cannot be put in jail more than one year though he may be fined $1000 instead of $600.

In other words, Massachusetts declares by her laws that it is of less consequence to the welfare of the community to protect the honor of a pure woman from ruin and deceit, than it is to protect property in a horse, a cow or a dog, worth any trifle over $100.

Even this statement does not show the full extent of the degradation of woman effected by this law against abduction. To bring a man within its operations, the woman ruined must be unmarried and of chaste life and conversation. Now if a man is indicted under this law, and the abduction with fraud and deceit is fully proved, and there is no evidence whatever introduced to prove bad character on the part of the woman, the law nevertheless makes no presumption in favor of her being chaste, but allows the man to escape punishment unless direct evidence is furnished of her being chaste. (131 Mass. Rep. 224, 1881.) Yet the law presumes every man to conduct his business honorably until the contrary is proved, and constantly requires more evidence to prove fraud against a man than it does to prove a debt against him (12 Cushing 31).

If a woman is on trial for an offence involving a breach of chastity on her part, she is presumed by law to be chaste until the contrary is proved; but if she is only the victim of some scoundrel, and he is on trial, no unmarried woman can be found in the state who will be presumed by law to be chaste enough to permit his conviction under this law. She must be proved to be chaste in every instance! Such are the laws by which Massachusetts protects the honor of her poor women!

Not one of these disgraceful laws would be in existence to-day if women had been able to vote.—[Wm. I. Bowditch in Woman's Journal.

The Result of Bad Parental Policy.

"It is a life of misery to me, farming is," said a gray-haired, gray-bearded farmer to me the other day, with whom we stopped to chat by the roadside. "I never ought to have been a farmer. I can make most anything of wood or iron, and ought to have been a mechanic. I wanted to learn a mechanical trade when I was a boy, but my father said to me, "I'll learn you a trade; I've learned two boys before you a trade. Farming is the best trade!" Then the boy wanted to go to school and get an education, but the father said to him, "I'll educate you; I've educated two boys before you." And so the man kept up the process of trying to make a farmer of what Dame Nature was endeavoring to make a mechanic. Circumstances and the father, succeeded in thwarting nature of her mechanic in good measure, but never in making a happy farmer of the boy. It was pitiful, really, to hear our friend's lament over his disappointed life, "a round man in a square hole," that he is! Nature's hints as to what she wants of your boys, farmers, and other folks, are well worth your study and following. You may thwart her in a measure, but she has a way of avenging her insults, that often cause intense misery. Better make her your friend than an enemy. —[Watchman.

Gleanings and Gossip.

The Chicago driving park association have voted to introduce horse-racing on Sundays. The Mexican Sunday seems not to be so far off.

"Where shall we go for the summer?" is the question that now agitates society. Why not go home for a change? It will beat the seven-by-nine rooms in the summer hotels all hollow.

Yan Phou Lee, the bright young Chinese student at Yale, is to edit a department of Wide Awake, the excellent children's magazine.

The people will have the news. It has just been telegraped all over the country that the Rev. R. Heber Newton keeps a cow, but whether a brindle or a "moodey" is not stated.

Springtime is the uncertain season when a man takes home a hammock and the next day wishes he had bought a blanket instead.—[Philadelphia Call.

A physician of this city, applied to by a patient who wanted some spring medicine "to tone up her system," told her to "let medicine alone." "Go and get a pair of 'base ball' shoes," said he, "and walk out every day till you are within an ace of being tired, and you will require no better tonic. This sitting about in the house and taking medicine is enough to kill any woman."—[Springfield Union.

In the hall in which the republican national convention will be held the entire seating capacity will be 9041 seats, including those on the stage. Under the stage a space will be reserved for 350 type-writers. In all over 3000 applications have been received.

Bishop Elliot, of Texas, went to Del Rio the other day to dedicate a new Episcopal church. When he got there he concluded not to do any dedicating, as a cyclone had got there before him and blown the church into a thousand bits.

The revision of the Old Testament annihilates "the unicorn" and gives us a "wild ox" instead. It also changes Job's declaration "Yet in my flesh shall I see God," to "Yet out of my flesh shall I see God."

Let farmers' boys take courage. Prof. Brewer, of Yale College, says that fifteen of our twenty-one presidents were farmers or sons of farmers. Further, that men educated on farms have had the leading part in making this nation what it is.

This is how corn pops: When pop corn is gradually heated, and so hot that the oil inside the kernels turns to gas, this gas cannot escape through the hull of the kernels, but when the interior pressure gets strong enough it bursts the grain, and the explosion is so violent that it shatters it in the most curious manner.

Calf and other skins are made to resemble very closely alligator skins by a very ingenious process. A photograph having been made of a genuine alligator hide, a copy of it is produced in bichromated gelatine, which gives in relief all the curious markings, and from this latter relief representation a metal die is readily executed. This die is pressed heavily on the cheap leather, with the result of making it look so like the leather manufactured from the skin of the alligator as to deceive experts unless it is handled and examined. Any suitable stain can be imparted to the factitious product.

At Richland, Mich., last month, as Mr. George Hoyt was returning from Plainwell in a sulky, leading a stallion, the animal, when near his house, siezed Mr. H. by the arm with his teeth and drew him from the sulky and began a furious fight with him, biting large pieces of flesh from his arm and severely bruising his body. Mr. H., a powerful man, kept a strong hold upon the ferocious animal, or probably he would have been soon killed. Miss Nettie Hoyt, hearing the cries of her father, ran to the rescue with a pitchfork and made such good use of the sharp fork times that the beast gave up the battle, leaving Mr. H. almost exhausted and the flesh on his right arm lacerated and chewed to a jelly from his shoulder to his elbow. Gangrene set in and the doctors removed all the bruised flesh, but no improvement following the arm was taken off, and at last accounts Mr. H.'s condition was considered very critical.

Workmen for the past few days have been engaged in digging up the pipe that conveys the overflow of water from the watering trough near the Clement building to a sewer, a stoppage having occured. The pipe is a common sewer pipe, five inches in diameter, each piece shutting into another, thus making a complete line. The workmen discovered near the depot park that the root of a willow tree had grown over the pipe and a tiny shoot from the root had forced itself through one of the joints, where apparently no opening existed, and had developed inside the pipe, filling the same for a distance of over a rod with a fibrous, hairy growth, of the consistency of a sponge, which completely shut off the flow of water. The growth must have been rapid, as the pipe had been in position only a year or two. —[Rutland Herald.

New Remedy for Diphtheria.

A recent copy of the Paris Figaro contained a report made to the French Academy of Medicine by Dr. Delthil. Dr. Delthil said that the vapors of liquid tar and turpentine would dissolve the fibrinous exudations which choke up the throat in croup and diphtheria. Dr. Delthil pours equal parts of turpentine and tar into a tin pan or cup and sets fire to the mixture. A dense, resinous smoke arises which obscures the air of the room. "The patient," Dr. Delthil says, "immediately seems to experience relief; the choking and rattle stop; the patient falls into a slumber and seems to inhale the smoke with pleasure. The fibrinous membrane soon becomes detached, and the patient coughs up microbicides. These, when caught in a glass, may be seen to dissolve in the smoke. In the course of three days afterward the patient entirely recovers." This treatment was tried recently in New York with little Rath Lockwood, the child of a Times' compositor, who was ill with diphtheria. She was so weak that it was deemed dangerous to try tracheotomy, or cutting open the windpipe. She was lying gasping for breath when the physician visited her. First pouring about two tablespoonfuls of liquid tar on an iron pan, he poured as much turpentine over it and set it on fire. The rich, resinous smoke which rose to the ceiling was by no means unpleasant. As it filled the room the child's breathing became natural, and as the smoke grew dense she fell asleep.—[N. Y. Sun.

HARNESSES

I have now the largest and most complete stock of carriages ever offered in Northern Vermont consisting of Cornings, White Chapels, Brewster Side-bars, Concord Wagons, Democrat Wagons, Open Wagons of every style. All the latest styles of Two-seated Carriages, also Dog and Village Carts.

I will here say that this is one of the most complete stock of carriages I have ever offered for sale. They have all been built to my order the past winter, and for FINE MATERIAL, STYLE and FINISH.

I DEFY COMPETITION.

As they are built by one of the largest and best manufacturers in the business. I will here say it has been said by some manufacturers that these carriages are of cheap materials, and that the manufacturers do not put their names on them. To explain this: I have got an established business now in this line, and have for the last four years used my own name-plate on every carriage that I warrant, as they are warranted to me. A warrant from me will compare with that of any manufacturer in Vermont, and I have a company to back my warrant, that can own all the carriage manufacturers in this state.

Having sold the past year 242 carriages is a guarantee that the carriages are what I represent.

Every man in want of carriages will save 25 per cent by looking at this stock before purchasing elsewhere. In

The Caledonian has now been printed nearly fifty years. Its character is well-known by nearly all in this part of the State, and a good many outside the State. It endeavors to be honest, true, pure and clean. As a public Journal it is compelled to tell unpleasant truths, but it never hunts for scandal. It believes that a newspaper has a higher mission than to pander to the vile or even the sensational. If its conductors have not kept it up to the ideal, they certainly have received much credit for the high standard it reaches after.

-:STALLION REX PATCHEN:-

REX PATCHEN will make the season of 1884 at Drew's Stable, near St. Johnsbury House.

TERMS, - - $25, to Warrant.

Rex Patchen was sired by Geo. M. Patchen, Jr., (Godfrey's Patchen,) dam by Harris's Hambletonian. Is half brother to Hopeful, Genet, Lady Snell and Wellesley Boy. He is a beautiful bay with black points, stands 15¾ hands high, is perfectly sound and healthy, and of fine disposition, is a perfect natural trotter, and has no superior as a trotting stock horse. He has a record of 2.30 and has trotted on Mystic Park a mile in 2.26 and repeat in 2.24¾ making the last quarter in 33¾ seconds. His colts are all very fine, resembling him closely in form and action, and we know of no yearling selling less than three hundred dollars, and his first, when fourteen months old, sold for five hundred and ten dollars.

Good pasturing free of charge for mares from a distance. All mares at risk of owners, escape and injury. Colts will be holden for services of horse unless promptly paid within the year.

HALL & BALCH,

MAIN STREET, ST. JOHNSBURY.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 37th and 38th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro.,"

Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 2, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable.

J. T. HAYES."

Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HASLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.
